LBJ's Fighting Stance

LYNDON B. JOHNSON
. . . a new stance

By FRANK CORMIER

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson, displaying a new fighting stance in his effort to confound pollsters and woo voters, sets out on a coast-to-coast tour to visit American fighting men ashore and at sea.

Embarking on his first major barnstorming trip of 1967, Johnson was scheduled before nightfall today to watch Army ranger and paratroop training in Georgia, greet Vietnam combat pilots in California and observe operations aboard the nuclear-powered carrier Enteprise somewhere in the Pacific.

The two-day journey will take the commander-in-chief to bases of all the armed services—including the Coast Guard—in four states and on the high seas.

Johnson's fast-paced travels were keyed to the observance Saturday of Veterans Day.

The President got scant rest before taking off. Without advance White House announcement, he flew Thursday night to New York City to speak before some 1,000 patrons of a dinner sponsored by an arm of the Jewish Labor Committee. AFL-CIO President George Meany was the honored guest.

Fighting Style

Johnson, long noted for his nonbilligerent "come let us reason together" phrases, tried out a new, fighting style—to the obvious delight of an audience that interrupted with such cries as, "Give 'em hell."

It's been apparent for several weeks that Johnson has been deeply concerned about public opinion polls depicting him as the underdog in the 1968 election if he decides to seek another term. His tougher language seems a direct new bid to generate voter backing for his policies.

Strengthening the language of his prepared text as he went along, the President asserted "it is just pure bunk" to claim progress in Vietnam must come at the sacrifice of progress at home.

Decrying what he termed "the old coalition of stand-patters and nay-sayers," Johnson said:

"They never wanted to do anything, but this year they say they can't do it because of Vietnam.

Pure Bunk

"That is just pure bunk. They were against progress before Vietnam. They are against progress now. And they'll be against progress when the war in Vietnam is a dim memory."

The President said "we can meet our commitments at home and abroad—and I believe we will."

Arguing for his Vietnam policies, he said the nation "is being tested on the anvil of war," and continued: "If we fail, we may forfeit our hope for world stability. We may risk a far more terrible war in the future because we didn't see this one through."

Despite the absence of fanfare in advance of his New York trip, Johnson was greeted in Manhattan by a vocal knot of antiwar demonstrators shouting, "Johnson, murderer!"

Little of that sort of protest seemed in prospect for his weekend visit to military installations.

His first stop was Ft. Benning, Ga., where Army rangers and airborne units are trained. From there he was flying to the Marine Air Station at El Toro, Calif., to greet pilots back from Vietnam.

Helicopter Trip

Shucking his big jet transport there, he was to fly by helicopter to Camp Pendleton, not far away, which is a major jumping-off point for Vietnam-bound Marines.

Then he was to fly by helicopter to the flight deck of the 85,000-ton Enterprise, the largest warship in the world and a veteran of tours in waters off North Vietnam. The Navy was ready to show him routine carrier operations before and after dark.

Following a night aboard the big ship, Johnson is to fly to McConnell Air Force Base near Wichita, Kan., Saturday, then go to a Coast Guard station at Yorktown, Va.

The President is expected to return to the White House late Saturday or sometime Sunday.

Battle Toll: 14 Americans In Viet Clash

SAIGON (AP) — U. S. Marines and Army infantrymen clashed with dug-in North Vietnamese troops in separate fierce battles within five miles of each other Thursday south of Da Nang.

The two battles, one a marathon of 26 hours along the coastal lowlands in the northernmost 1st Corps area, left 14 Americans dead and 106 wounded, U.S. headquarters reported. Thirty-five North Vietnamese were reported slain, many of them by massive bombardment from U.S. artillery, tactical fighter-bombers and helicopter gunships armed with rockets.

The U.S. Command also disclosed in its weekly summary of aircraft losses that three more American warplanes have been downed in combat over North Vietnam but were not announced at the time, bringing to 735 the total of U.S. combat planes officially reported lost in the air war against North Vietnam.

U.S. pilots flew a total of 153 missions against the North Thursday, their largest number in weeks, but the northeast monsoons blanketed the Hanoi-Haiphong heartland area. Most of the U.S. raids were against targets west and south of the North Vietnamese capital.

In the Mekong Delta, the Viet Cong sank a U.S. Navy river patrol boat with recoilless rifle fire 97 miles south of Saigon. One U.S. soldier was killed and three Navy men were wounded in the attack Thursday; one Viet Cong also was reported killed.

In the coastal lowlands fighting, U.S. Marines pushing through a cluster of heavily fortified North Vietnamese villages in a valley 27 miles south of Da Nang clashed fiercely for 26 hours with tough Communist forces entrenched in a hamlet. It was the second heavy battle for the Marines this week in Operation Essex.

The Marines took the hamlet Thursday night after massive strikes by artillery and tactical fighter-bombers drove the defenders out. Four Marines were killed and 64 wounded. Eight North Vietnamese bodies were found.

Five miles to the south, troops of the 1st Air Cavalry Division and the 4th Infantry Division backed by armored personnel carriers lost 10 dead and 46 wounded under a heavy attack from Communist mortars, recoilless rifles, machine guns and small arms.

Politics Does Make Strange Seatfellows

If Congressman Joseph Y. Resnick had his choice of seat companions on an airplane flight, he couldn't do better than he did yesterday.

Just a bit late for his New York to Washington shuttle flight, the Ellenville Democrat arrived on board just in time to find that the only seat available was one next to U. S. Senator Jacob K. Javits.

Just last Tuesday, unofficial announcement of Resnick's wish to unseat the Republican Javits in a senatorial race next year, was made known.

On arrival in Washington, Resnick quoted Javits as saying, "I guess we'll be seeing quite a bit of each other from now on."

Saturn 5 Brings Moon Bit Closer

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — America looked at a more accessible moon today with the nation's space prospects strengthened and brightened by Thursday's triumphant proving flight of the super-rocket, Saturn 5.

Running low on time, money and public confidence, the space agency stacked moon-flight machinery atop an untested rocket and sent it up.

Long Shot Pays Off

The long shot worked like a dream, evaporating gloom haunting the space program since three astronauts burned to death in their craft at Cape Kennedy on Jan. 27.

President Johnson and Vice President Humphrey sent congratulations, the President saying the flight showed America capable of sending astronauts to the moon and bringing them home safely.

Space officials hastened to say the moon is several flights away, but Dr. Robert C. Seamans, associate administrator of NASA, called the success "clear indication that our team is not found wanting."

Thursday night, the television scout Surveyor 6 dropped gently to a spot in the middle of the moon's visible face and began sending the space agency snapshots of Sinus Medii, the cratered plain which is the last of four potential astronaut landing sites to be checked out.

Seamans said it proved "we do have the capability in this country to be pre-eminent not only in space, but in all technology."

Dr. Wernher Von Braun, who coddled the Saturn 5 from idea to steel in seven years of work, said, "It was undoubtedly the greatest moment of my life."

His "bird," the biggest thing ever to fly, climbed to 117-miles orbit with a world record satellite of 140 tons. From there, an Apollo spacecraft went out a lonely 11,386 miles and sizzled home into a rainy Pacific in a tough test of its heat shield.

From dream countdown to on-the-button liftoff to splashdown only 10 miles off target, it took just eight hours and 37 minutes to prove the United States owner of a clear, wide lead in the space race.

The largest satellite orbited by the Soviet Union weighed only 13' tons, and their well advertised automatic docking mission earlier this month is a symptom that their moon plans are based on a booster capability about half that of Saturn 5. The American rocket can loft the kind of moon craft that the Russians apparently must patch together in orbit.

Lunar Craft Sends Photos

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — Surveyor 6 televised pictures of a very rugged area of the moon today after a lucky soft-landing that climaxed a day of space successes for the United States.

The three-legged spacecraft touched down at 8:01 p.m. EST Thursday just hours after a capsule like the one expected to carry three Apollo astronauts to the moon splashed into the Pacific, ending a successful test of a 36-story-tall Saturn 5 rocket.

Surveyor Program Manager Benjamin Milwitzky told newsmen the double success was "a major step toward landing men on the moon" in 1969. It gives the United States wide flexibility in choosing a landing site, he said.

Within an hour after landing, apparently on a slight slope, Surveyor 6 began sending excellent pictures of the roughest terrain yet photographed in the moon-scouting program. One showed a cliff-like prominence on the horizon a mile away. Others pictured narrow depressions nearby which scientists said they could not immediately explain.

Milwitzky said good fortune played a part in the successful landing—on a surface so rugged Surveyor 6 was given only a 50-50 chance prior to launch Tuesday, from Cape Kennedy, Fla.

The 650-pound spacecraft worked flawlessly as it approached the target area in Medii—Central Bay—almost dead center on the lunar disc. Braking rockets fired about 60 miles above the surface, slowed its 6,000-mile-an-hour speed to three miles per hour in three minutes and the craft dropped gently to the surface.

As pictures started streaming in to flight controllers at the laboratory, Milwitzky said, "We have now satisfied all our obligations to explore beforehand the four equatorial sites believed safest for manned landings."

Cooper Lake Extension Plan

By HUGH REYNOLDS

Mayor Raymond W. Garraghan in one of his first official acts since being swept back into office by Tuesday's vote, today urged the Common Council to bring out of committee a request from the City Water Board for a $750,000 expansion of Cooper Lake.

Meeting Monday

The Council will meet next Monday night. They have had the measure in committee since July 12. A letter from Garraghan requested approval June 16.

Said Garraghan today in an interview with The Freeman, "The expansion of Cooper Lake is vital to the future of the city. People talk about attracting new industry to the city. Well, without an adequate, dependable supply of good water we can forget about new industry."

Cooper Lake is the city's main supply of water. According to Edmund T. Cloonan, superintendent of water, the lake holds some 1.2 billion gallons when at full capacity. The average daily consumption of Kingston is between 3½ and 4 million gallons. The lake holds some 300 days of water in reserve. The new plan, which involves raising the dam by five to six feet, would add another 265 million gallons, or 60 to 70 days storage.

Not New Plan

The plan is not a new one. A thorough study was conducted in 1959 and published in 1960. This was a result of the severe drought in 1957 which saw the storage capacity fall to a historic low of only 35 days.

The study in 1959 included six possible sources of additional water for the city. Expansion of Cooper Lake, located 12 miles north west of the city in the Town of Woodstock, was deemed the most feasible.

Other plans proposed were the building of a new reservoir and dam in Mink Hollow Valley, also called the Upper Beaverkill; diversion of the Sawkill Creek into Cooper Lake, connection into Ashokan Reservoir and paying the city of New York for additional water; use of the Hudson River and building a new pumping station; and digging wells.

The cost of the Cooper Lake enlargement, based on a yardstick of one million gallons per day of dependable yield, was estimated at $10,300. The digging of wells was cheaper ($9,700) but was deemed not as dependable as expansion of the lake. The most expensive project was the diversion of the Sawkill, tabbed at $187,000.

The water board went to the Common Council in the fall of 1962 with a $1,335,000 bond request for the expansion of Cooper Lake and improvements

Sophie Miller of 93 Broadway, well-known Freeman columnist and highly respected resident of this city, died this morning at Kingston Hospital after a brief illness.

Here Since Early Age

A native of Europe, she came to this country at the age of two. She resided in both Port Ewen and Kingston. She was the daughter of the late Isaiah and Marie Kohan Ginzburg. Her father was a well-known pharmacist in Rondout for many years.

Mrs. Miller was devoted to preservation of Hudson Valley history in word and site. Through her popular column, Do You Remember, she stirred the memories of readers almost coast to coast. She also campaigned vigorously to keep Rondout from becoming a wasteland literally or figuratively.

Kingston Point Park, the Mary Powell, Skillypot and other reminders of Hudson River heyday were pet topics with Mrs. Miller who was considered an expert in the history of early Rondout and Kingston.

Also Artist

She was also well-known as a local artist and had attended the Art Students League in New York City. In recent years, she became interested in stamps and and first day covers commemorating historical events. When the Fulton stamp was issued, she spent months preparing first day cover illustrations detailing Hudson River steamboats.

One of the early broadcasters in the Mid-Hudson Valley, Mrs. Miller like to reminisce about her days in radio.

Active in many civic and social spheres, she was a member of Kingston Chapter 155, Order of Eastern Star.

County Legislature: Some Changes Needed

The complexion of Ulster's county government, changed significantly in Tuesday's election, now takes on both a re-apportioned look as well as stronger Republican coloring.

Although the number of representatives remains the same—33, there will probably have to be some shifting of furniture in the county meeting room because there just isn't going to be enough seating space for 28 desks on the GOP side of the room.

The Democrats, who now number 12 will have their county representatives reduced to five. Only one, minority leader, Roger Mabie, was elected to the new legislature.

The present board of supervisors, which goes into annual session within the week, will cease its duties at the end of the year. The new county legislature will convene for the first time during the week of Jan. 1.

Tuesday's election will also change the face of the 17-member Charter Commission appointed this year to present a draft of a proposed charter providing for a county executive form of government.

As called for in a Board of Supervisors resolution, the commission includes in its membership four supervisors. Two of the four, both Democrats, failed to get elected as legislators therefore, two of the five Democrats to serve the county beginning in January, will be asked to serve the Charter Commission too.

County Residents Arrested Upstate

Two Ulster County residents were arrested Thursday by Sheriff William B. Martin and County Investigator Harold T. Bowers on bench warrants issued in Onondaga County. The warrants charged indecency and sodomy in two counts.

Arrested were Angelina Daniels, 33, and her husband, Stanley Daniels, 32, of Highland. Taken before Justice of the Peace Linn Baker of Town of Lloyd they were held in $500 bail each for appearance in Onandaga County Court, Syracuse, at 9:30 a. m. on Nov. 17. The charges are misdemeanors.

Injured Fatally

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (AP) — Joseph Solomon, 56, of nearby Jordan, was injured fatally Thursday in the collision of two automobiles on Route 20 south of here, police said.

A FIRST — Test pilot Tommy Walker floats to earth beneath his "wingless" four place Stimson single-engine airplane Thursday. Both plane and pilot reached the ground safely. In completing man's first parachute descent of a disabled craft, Walker took the plane to an altitude of 6,000 feet, jettisoned the wings and rode "wingless" with the craft for about a thousand feet before bailing out. Utilities Use Load-Shedding To Avoid Another Blackout

NEW YORK (AP) — The house lights flicker and the electricity goes off. Generator failure? Possibly, or it could be the power company deliberately pulled the switch to avoid a repetition of 1965's Big Blackout.

In the two years since that massive Nov. 9 power failure, which hit eight states and affected 30 million people, the utility companies have been working to keep lights on. But sometimes they have to turn some off to do it.

Load Shedding

"There's been more or less a universal effort toward load-shedding which sacrifices some customers for a few minutes to save the system," says Paul H. Shore, regional engineer for the Federal Power Commission in New York.

Loadshedding automatically cuts off portions of an electrical system when the demand on the whole circuit is too great. "It's only temporary," Shore observes.

The 1965 Northeast blackout left the inhabitants of 80,000 square miles of the United States and Canada without light for periods of up to 13 hours. People were stranded in skyscrapers, trapped in elevators and immobilized in darkened subway trains.

Since then the utilities have taken "a long hard look" at themselves, Shore says.

The Consolidated Edison Company which serves nearly all of New York City has taken a number of steps to provide for blackout prevention, rapid restoration of service in the event of a power failure and to avoid equipment damage from sudden surges of electricity.

Installations Made

It has installed auxiliary diesel driven generators at each of its 12 turbine generating stations and 15,000 kilowatt gas turbine generators in two key plants, including one at Ravenswood, Queens, home of the world's largest steam electric turbine generator with a one million kilowatt output. The emergency power plants provide light at the stations and restarting power for the bigger generators.

Con Ed also has purchased and is ready to install 10 more gas turbine generators which will be able to supply enough power directly to the city's subway system in an emergency to keep tunnel lights on, signal systems operating and get trains into the nearest stations.

Equipment also is being installed at substations, a spokesman said, to reduce voltage slightly if necessary, thereby "supplying everybody with a little less power so we don't lose everybody."

Con Ed and some 18 other major utilities in the northeastern United States and Canada also have formed a coordinating council and operate power pools, swapping electricity "back and forth on need." In New York, a central power dispatch center is contemplated near Albany. Computers will do most of the work.

Alarm Systems

Communications and alarm systems also are being installed, says Shore. "If we can locate where trouble is developing," he explains, "we can head it off before it gets serious."

The Big Blackout in 1965 was touched off by a tremendous surge of surplus power from Canada. It pushed through the power lines which weave grid-like through the states.

An FPC report to President Johnson last July recommended utility companies spend about $8 billion by 1975 to install extra high-voltage (KEHV) transmission lines. That's said to be about $3 billion more than the utilities planned.

The EHV lines provide "a much bigger pipe to carry the electricity in," says the Con Ed spokesman, and can absorb larger surges of power.

The FPC has also asked Congress to enact an "Electric Power Reliability Act" to create regional councils of power utilities, both public and private, to develop plans for cooperation aimed at improving power service and making it more dependable.

Nominated Director

WASHINGTON (AP) — Air Force Maj. Gen. Richard P. Klocko, a native of Dunkirk, N. Y., has been nominated as director of the Defense Communications Agency to replace Army Lt. Gen. Alfred D. Starbird.

President Johnson said the appointment, if approved, would be effective next week.

Klocko, 52, currently is deputy director of the National Military Command System Technical Support, Defense Communications Agency. The President said Klocko would be nominated for promotion to lieutenant general in the new post.

Starbird, director of the agency since 1962, has been assigned as system manager of the Ballistic Missile Defense System.

Robbery Charge Is Dismissed After Death

BROCKTON, Mass. (AP) — Two days after he died of a heart attack, charges of bank robbery were dismissed against John J. Cloonan, 47, of Norwood.

Cloonan's counsel, Thomas K. McManus, said his client's doctor believed the heart attack was attributable to the strain he was under.

District Court Judge Robert Welsh dismissed the charge Thursday after McManus presented two affidavits stating Cloonan had been in Maine at the time of the robbery. Cloonan, a salesman, was charged Oct. 26 with a $6,700 holdup Oct. 18.

Airliners Next Question

LAKEHURST, N.J. (AP) — The successful parachuting of a small aircraft to earth at the Naval Air Station here Thursday now opens the question of whether the technique be applied to large commercial airliners.

The wings were blown off a four-seat Stinson Voyager and the aircraft fuselage was gently lowered to earth under a specially built parachute 64 feet in diameter.

"It came off beautifully," said the test pilot, Thomas Walker of New York City. "It went exactly like I thought. Anybody who would have been in the plane would have been safe."

The designers of the system, Dario Manfredi and Angelo Raiti of New York, watched as the craft floated to earth at about the same rate of descent as a man parachuting. For them, it was the realization of a 20-year-old dream.

Walker, the inventors and William Jolly of the Pioneer Parachute Co. said a number of parachutes would be required to lower a jetliner fuselage.

Walker rode the wingless fuselage down to about 1,500 feet, where he bailed out.

No Cause Returned In Negligence Action

A no cause verdict was returned by a Supreme Court jury in a negligence action brought by Mrs. Celia Saperstein, as guardian of her daughter, Nancy Saperstein of Bronx. Miss Saperstein sued to recover for a broken leg which she suffered while a guest at the Rocking Horse Ranch, Highland, Feb. 1, 1964. She was engaging in a ranch sports program when she fell from a toboggan which was being towed by a horse. She alleged negligence on the part of the ranch. The defense contended she was engaged in a sports contest and knew of its dangers. Greenspan and Aurnou appeared for plaintiffs and Goldstein and Goldstein for defendant.

An action for automobile negligence brought by Gwendolyn L. Myer and her husband against Anthony Riggi to recover for injuries which Mrs. Myer received, was settled before being submitted to the jury. Michael Nadrone appeared for Mrs. Myer, who sought $50,000 damages, and Mr. Myer who sought $20,000 damages. Francis Vogt of Larkin and Vogt appeared for defendants.

The Saperstein action was tried before Justice R. Waldron Herzberg and the Myer action was before Justice Louis G. Bruhn.

Jewish Leaders Going to Canada

Three members of Temple Emanuel have been chosen to attend the 49th General Assembly of the Union of American Hebrew Congregations next month in Montreal, according to Charles S. Ronder, president of the congregation.

UAHC is the central body of the Reform branch of Judaism in the Western Hemisphere, with 680 affiliated congregations and more than one million members.

The delegation from Temple Emanuel will join some 3,000 lay and rabbinic leaders at the biennial conclave, which will be held from Nov. 11-16 at the Queen Elizabeth Hotel, Montreal. Rabbi Jonathan Eichhorn, spiritual leader of the congregation, will also attend.

The theme of the convention is Contemporary Challenges to an Eternal People, through which the delegates will explore the major religious and social issues of the times.

Those chosen to represent Temple Emanuel include:

Charles S. Ronder, 286 Clinton Avenue; Harry Gold, 26 Mountain View Avenue; Leon Miller, 171 Main Street.

Robbery Charge Is Dismissed After Death

BROCKTON, Mass. (AP) — Two days after he died of a heart attack, charges of bank robbery were dismissed against John J. Cloonan, 47, of Norwood.

Cloonan's counsel, Thomas K. McManus, said his client's doctor believed the heart attack was attributable to the strain he was under.

District Court Judge Robert Welsh dismissed the charge Thursday after McManus presented two affidavits stating Cloonan had been in Maine at the time of the robbery. Cloonan, a salesman, was charged Oct. 26 with a $6,700 holdup Oct. 18.

Airliners Next Question

LAKEHURST, N.J. (AP) — The successful parachuting of a small aircraft to earth at the Naval Air Station here Thursday now opens the question of whether the technique be applied to large commercial airliners.

The wings were blown off a four-seat Stinson Voyager and the aircraft fuselage was gently lowered to earth under a specially built parachute 64 feet in diameter.

"It came off beautifully," said the test pilot, Thomas Walker of New York City. "It went exactly like I thought. Anybody who would have been in the plane would have been safe."

The designers of the system, Dario Manfredi and Angelo Raiti of New York, watched as the craft floated to earth at about the same rate of descent as a man parachuting. For them, it was the realization of a 20-year-old dream.

Walker, the inventors and William Jolly of the Pioneer Parachute Co. said a number of parachutes would be required to lower a jetliner fuselage.

Walker rode the wingless fuselage down to about 1,500 feet, where he bailed out.

No Cause Returned In Negligence Action

A no cause verdict was returned by a Supreme Court jury in a negligence action brought by Mrs. Celia Saperstein, as guardian of her daughter, Nancy Saperstein of Bronx. Miss Saperstein sued to recover for a broken leg which she suffered while a guest at the Rocking Horse Ranch, Highland, Feb. 1, 1964. She was engaging in a ranch sports program when she fell from a toboggan which was being towed by a horse. She alleged negligence on the part of the ranch. The defense contended she was engaged in a sports contest and knew of its dangers. Greenspan and Aurnou appeared for plaintiffs and Goldstein and Goldstein for defendant.

An action for automobile negligence brought by Gwendolyn L. Myer and her husband against Anthony Riggi to recover for injuries which Mrs. Myer received, was settled before being submitted to the jury. Michael Nadrone appeared for Mrs. Myer, who sought $50,000 damages, and Mr. Myer who sought $20,000 damages. Francis Vogt of Larkin and Vogt appeared for defendants.

The Saperstein action was tried before Justice R. Waldron Herzberg and the Myer action was before Justice Louis G. Bruhn.

Veteran's Day, 1967

The nation tomorrow will be memorializing the living and the dead who fought the wars of this century in the hard, often frustrating defense against totalitarian tyranny. President Woodrow Wilson coined the phrase in 1917, "to make the world safe for democracy," and that has been our overall aim in each of the four wars from that time to the present.

Nearly 28 million men and women have answered their country's call in the four crises the nation has faced this century—4,743,826 in World War I, 16,353,659 in World War II, 5,764,143 in the Korean War and something more than 1,000,000 in the current war in Vietnam. These are the men and women we honor Saturday on Veterans Day.

In World War I, 1914-18, they fought the autocracy of Kaiser Wilhelm's Germany and his associates in the Central Powers, bent on world domination. Smashing the great German, Austro-Hungarian and Ottoman empires cost the allies 5,152,115 dead, of whom this country lost 130,500 killed and missing and 234,000 wounded, a total of 364,500 casualties.

In World War II, 1941-45, the enemy was the facist tyranny of Hitler's Germany, Mussolini's Italy and Tojo's Japan, also headed for total earth conquest. The cost was a horrible 11,380,707, of which the United States loss was 406,742 dead, and 670,846 wounded, a total of 1,078,162 casualties.

In the Korean War, 1950-53, the United Nations under the leadership of the United States, fought Communist aggression marshalled behind China and North Korea. The United States suffered 54,246 deaths and 103,284 wounded, total casualties of 157,530 to achieve an uneasy peace.

The battle for freedom from tyranny has moved to Asia. In the last year, Americans have suffered more than 10,000 killed and 100,000 wounded defending South Vietnam, slowing Red aggressors in their drive for total power. The end is not yet in sight, and more men will be added both to the roll of veterans and of casualties.

When the nation is not at war, Veterans' Day is devoted to commemoration—to remembering those who have served in the Nation's armed forces, and particularly those who have served under fire and made the final sacrifice. It is an occasion, in time of peace, for reflection on our debt to those who fought to preserve the nation.

But at such a time as this there is need for more than commemoration, or for reflection on the abstract virtues of duty and services. The men in Vietnam deserve honor for doing what they are called upon to do. But they deserve something more—our pledge to do all that can be done to effect a just peace and bring them back home. That should be the focal point of our thinking on Veterans' Day 1967.

Roundabout Tax Boost

The Senate Finance Committee's proposal to increase the Social Security tax to 10 per cent, shared equally by employes and employers, and to increase the taxable base to $8,000 would produce $6.1 billion a year. As explained by Senator Russell B. Long, committee chairman, it would also serve as a replacement for the dormant proposal to place a surtax on the income tax, which was to produce $7 billion in general revenue.

Here is a bald proposal to tax workers and their employers not alone for financing an across-the-board increase in Social Security benefits but also to serve to cool inflation, since Congress has refused to consider the surtax without a commensurate cut in federal spending.

It has long ago become apparent that the Social Security trust funds are used not alone for pensioning workers who have paid their share of taxes to earn pensions for themselves, but for other welfare purposes that have no relation to them. Workers and employers have been financing other welfare programs for the disabled, the blind and dependent children, payments which have been depleting the Social Security funds and endangering its viability.

Now they will be asked to pay an even bigger portion of their earnings—for those with incomes of up to $8,000 who are married and have two children, half as much again as the income tax they will pay—to finance broader benefits. It is a worse steal than the proposed surtax which it would replace.

The committee split 9 to 6 on most provisions. That indicates a big enough opposition for Senate floor action to reject its recommendation if it is solidified in time. It should arouse a taxpayers' alarm that will sink it before it can become law.

Texas' penchant for doing things big extends even to the poverty population. They number 2,631,700, topping New York's 2,054,900. More than $263 million anti-poverty funds went to Texas in 1965, the last year for which complete figures are available. And we all thought Texas grew only oil millionaires.

The Hitchhiker

David Lawrence Says

Significant Happenings In Tuesday's Elections

WASHINGTON—Although Tuesday's elections were largely local, there were some significant happenings which the politicians of both parties will not overlook as they determine their strategy for next year's presidential and congressional campaigns.

While the Democrats, for instance, elected Negroes to be mayor in Cleveland, Ohio, and Gary, Ind., the victory in both cases was won by a very narrow margin. The Democrats usually carry these, as well as most other large cities, by overwhelming majorities. If racial questions or any other issue cause the city voters to divide approximately on an even basis, the normal Republican strength in the suburbs and rural districts could be enough to swing the electoral vote of a state to the Republican side in a national election.

In Youngstown, Ohio, the incumbent mayor, a Democrat, won easily over the Negro Republican candidate. But the Republicans made gains in the election of members of the city council.

In Boston, Mrs. Louise Day Hicks—who has been outspoken against the busing of children to achieve racial balance in the schools—lost a close race for mayor in a nonpartisan election, but there is no doubt that the large vote she accumulated represented a form of white "backlash."

The turnover in New Jersey, where the Republicans captured the legislature by a majority of more than two-thirds in both houses, is likely to be construed as part of the undercurrent of dissatisfaction with the Democratic administration nationally. The legislature had been Democratic by 2-to-1.

In Kentucky, the first Republican governor since 1943 was elected. He waged his campaign almost entirely on a denunciation of the Johnson administration. In Mississippi, an anti-administration Democrat who supported Barry Goldwater in 1964, swamped his Republican opponent, who is regarded as more of a "moderate."

But nowhere, with the possible exception of the referendum in San Francisco, was there any evidence of the way the voters feel about national issues. In that city—which has been a center of opposition to the Vietnam War—the voters rejected by approximately a 2-to-1 margin a proposal calling for the immediate withdrawal of American troops from Vietnam.

The gains and losses in state and municipal elections will be interpreted in various ways by the politicians. National Democratic Chairman John M. Bailey, for example says he sees "no particular national trend" in the contests. Ray C. Bliss, chairman of the Republican National Committee, on the other hand, insists that "the Republican upsurge which began in 1966 is continuing." He referred particularly to the displacement of democratic mayors in four different cities—Indianapolis, Ind., Springfield, Mass., Manchester, N. H., and Hartford, Conn. — and to the greatly reduced democratic margins in Cleveland and Philadelphia.

Disinterested observers, after studying the returns, will conclude that, while the elections were largely local, the results reveal some new groupings among the voters which could break down party lines even more in the 1968 presidential and congressional contests. The public attention which has been given, for instance, to open-housing ordinances, as well as to the busing of school children, may be reflected in a protest vote which will cut across customary party affiliations.

Republicans, of course, will derive a good deal of encouragement from the results this week, because up to now they have had in the big cities a small amount of political strength, relatively speaking. Even if they lose those same cities by narrow margins in 1968, any gains in the cities, coupled with the suburban and rural vote, would help the Republicans substantially next year.

Even without the results of this week's elections, however, it has been apparent from the mail received in recent months by members of Congress that there is nationwide unrest. This arises from inflation and the cost of living, from the crime wave, riots and demonstrations, as well as dissatisfaction about the Vietnam war—expressed, on the one hand, by those who advocate the gradual withdrawal of American forces and, on the other hand, by those who think the war already has dragged on too long and should have been fought more vigorously. National discontent usually means that voters turn away from the party in power.

Jim Bishop: Reporter

Hong Kong—I've gone half way around the world on two razor blades. My wife has done as well on two checkbooks. Speaking of money, Gene Kroll and I spent ten minutes in Berlin trying to figure out a restaurant bill. It read: 24.9.67 and the best I could do was read it as 24 marks, 9 pfennings. I didn't know the Germans had a smaller coin. "We haven't," the waiter said. "You gentlemen have been reading the date."

Our party consists of seven persons and each of us has misjudged so many things in so many places that we sometimes fall apart laughing. In Saigon, we sat in a room one night when a bombardment started. Sophie Kroll, who is a nervous optimist, stuck her hand outside the window and said: "Oy, that's not thunder."

Here in Hong Kong, David Haylock, the blond motion pisture photographer, watched a Chinese walk down a street with four sticks tied in a kerchief. "Moving his furniture to a new flat," he murmured. My wife Kelly listened to the Vietnamese artillery one night and said: "If you don't mind, I'm wearing sneakers to bed."

In one city where the water is notorious for the bacteria, which flip out of the glass like goldfish, I asked the waiter for a bottle of spring water. Ne nodded happily, disappeared, and came back with a bottle marked Gordon's Gin. It was full of sink water. "All mellicans clazy."

There was no Turkish coffee on Turkish Airlines and we saw a PX marked "No Americans allowed." After four visits to Israel in thirteen years, I know what the people need: a sense of humor. De Gaulle tells his friends he doesn't like us because "it isn't French."

In India, Kelly got Delhi belly. Richard Winer, the other photographer, forgot to get a cholera shot, and a bearded doctor in a dusty turban gave it to him at the New Delhi airport. It may be one of the few places where they had enough germs to spare.

A bomb exploded beside our hotel here and a thousand Chinese pedestrians paused, glanced, and kept on walking. If you are in a rickshaw and you say: "Chop chop," the coolie will start running, only because he heard the word in American movies. Hong Kong has two t.v. channels, which are on from 5 p. m. to 10:45 p. m. Have you tried "I Love Lucy" with Chinese titles?

In Rome, the Italian customs demanded that we put up "a million lire" or else they would not release our cameras and film. A broker did it. Our overweight charges ran to $105 on each leg of the trip. Most cities get $30 a day for a car and driver. The tourist season is over, but so many millions of people travel all year around that it is difficult to book a room in any hotel.

All of the flights have been restful, almost dreamy. Even when we flew over a typhoon in the South China Sea, Pan American's 707 was high above it in the clear blue. At each stop, we look for mail from the children. Kathy, 12, writes most frequently. Next comes number three daughter, Karen, 14. Then number two child, Gayle, 24. No mail from Virginia Lee, 30, who has seven children and precious little time to take pen in hand.

Gene Kroll didn't get a letter from his son Dick for a couple of weeks, so he snarled: "When I get home I'm gonna kick him in the pants." A letter arrived the same day and Gene grinned at me and said: "He's a great guy, that son of mine."

Wally Lehmann, 71, a quiet gentleman who is "living it up" on this trip, doesn't care if he ever gets a note from home. He's too busy writing postcards. At the halfway mark round the globe, he has mailed 118. Some of the more progressive girls in each country notice that he is alone and they flirt with him. "I don't understand it," he says. "They must be off their nut."

So far, we have shot over 20,000 feet of color film on a TV production called "A Critical Look at the World." Offhand, I'd say it would run about ten hours, and we still have a long way to go.

Some of it hurts. German veterans without arms or legs are pushed around town in East Berlin in baby carriages. A Turkish war veteran without legs walks to work on his hands. Starving children walk up to a $3,000 camera to ask it for a penny. An old lady who forgot how to weep sleeps in a jewelry store doorway.

Chinese follow a garbage truck to pick up what falls off. It isn't a pretty world. And we're not pretty people. . .

Drew Pearson Says

Armed Services Are Put To Work at Rehabilitation

WASHINGTON—Robert S. McNamara has just delivered the most unusual speech of any Secretary of Defense in history — on democracy between men and the rehabilitation of men.

In some ways the speech should be no surprise, because McNamara, before he became head of the giant Ford Motor Company, was a teacher; also because McNamara is the first Secretary of Defense in history who has really acted as boss of the far-flung armed services.

The highlights of McNamara's speech have already been covered by the press associations. However, it is so important that it deserves repetition and diagnosis in this column.

Secretary McNamara didn't know it, but about the time he was delivering the speech before the National Association of Educational Broadcasters in Denver an illustration of what he was talking about took place at Fort Bragg, N.C.

The case involved a young Negro, who had once stolen my car. Instead of being prosecuted, he was turned over to a Big Brother, Henry Thomas, who is a paper-handler at the Washington Post. Big Brother Thomas deserves the initial credit, together with the boy's mother, for putting him on a straight path. But the Army deserves credit for the second step, when the boy graduated from basic training last weekend and marched tall and proud, with his mother watching him, to receive his marksman medal and to be shipped off to St. Louis to join the Engineers.

Secretary McNamara was talking about thousands of similar cases, white and Negro, when he reported on the armed forces' new programs on "Open Housing," Project 100,000," and "Project Transition."

Of these, the best known is Open Housing, in which the armed forces have cracked down hard on landlords who, as McNamara states it, "parade under the pomposity of racial superiority" and deny housing to men "the color of whose blood, when they shed it in the defense of Asia, is all the same shade," but who, when they return home, find that it's the "color of their skin" that matters.

"The Negro serviceman has been loyal and responsible to his country," said McNamara, "but the people of his country have failed in their loyalty and responsibility to him."

Accordingly, McNamara told how he was using the far-flung power of the armed services to boycott landlords who discriminated against Negro families.

Project Rehabilitation

McNamara's second project is to rehabilitate dropouts, the uneducated, the draft rejects. Of 1.8 million young men reaching military service age each year, he said, some 600,000—a third—failed to qualify under draft standards. In some states Negroes were rejected at the rate of 80 per cent.

"These men have a potential," the Secretary of Defense pointed out, "but the slow and silent poison of the poverty virus has paralyzed it in many of them. They have grown up in an atmosphere of drift and discouragement—in a ghetto of the human spirit."

Accordingly the Defense Department, which McNamara described as "the world's largest producer of skilled men," has already undertaken to rehabilitate 49,000 rejected draftees this first year, as part of a project to rehabilitate 100,000 each year.

McNamara reported that the first year 96 per cent of these men successfully completed basic training, which is only 2 per cent less than the normal graduation rate. The men have not been told that they are sub-standard. Only the armed forces know that they are on trial.

"It is absolutely imperative that they believe in themselves and their own potential," said McNamara. "They obviously cannot do that if we treat them with anything remotely suggesting condescendence.

"The plain fact is that our 'Project 100,000' is succeeding beyond even our most hopeful expectations. Many of our commanders report that these men are turning out to be even more highly motivated than some servicemen with a much more privileged background."

McNamara vs. Generals

The job of being Secretary of Defense has not always been smooth sledding for Bob McNamara. In the past, the generals and the admirals have run their own shops under civilian chiefs who ducked authority. There has been undercutting of McNamara on Capitol Hill when some top brass have sneaked up to whisper in the ear of Rep. Mendel Rivers, D-S.C., the alcoholic who heads the House Armed Services Committe, or into the ear of Sen Strom Thurmond, R-S.C., No. 1 hawk on Capitol Hill.

But in Project 100,000 the Secretary is getting enthusiastic support from his military commanders. The armed forces had already done a great job in World War II under Gen. George Marshall and his deputy, Gen. "Buck" Lanham, in their education and instruction program, which permitted thousands of men to take college degrees while in the services.

Today the armed services are going further, under McNamara, with a third "Project Transition" to help the 750,000 men who retire every year to civilian life get into the right kind of jobs. This is a voluntary program, carried on with the assistance of the Labor Department, the Post Office, and HEW, so men who have been trained in battle can adjust to civilian life for the benefit of both themselves and their country.

McNamara says all this can be done without "stretching our resources." They are programs which will bolster the security of this nation.

Young Rebels Earn Tag: 'Dropouts From Decency'

By BRUCE BIOSSAT
NEA Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON (NEA) — Many young Americans scorn their elders, from President Johnson on down, on the ground that much of their behavior is immoral and basely motivated.

Since they take this haughty stance, we must imagine that they believe themselves to be idealistic and highly moral in their outlook and conduct.

But, at least among the more militant antiadult, antiestablishment young people, the evidence for this is pretty hard to come by.

Mostly in antiwar and other protest movements, but also in more average pursuits, their behavior is at once self-degrading and contemptuous of others.

The harsh but true thing to say about many of them is that they are ugly people.

They are ugly in their profane speech, in their tendency to personal filth, in their readiness to lie, cheat and steal, in their disdain for any moral precepts in interpersonal behavior.

If somehow they do not fall into these patterns, they are nevertheless ugly in their arrogant assertion that violent assault upon or resistance to he law is "dissent," and that any attempt to answer dissent is really an effort to suppress it.

The young who fit this description are not "democrats" in a free society but low-grade autocrats with a totalitarian insistence upon their own narrow, disjointed vision of life, to the exclusion of all other views. In their minds, existing standards of whatever sort are the banners of the enemy.

There is in all this a complete rejection of human decency and dignity.

It can hardly be argued successfully that the route to idealistic goals and strong moral imperatives is this twisting low road. Men, young or old, do not improve society by imitating the errors they complain of.

In the present instance, the performance of misguided young militants goes beyond imitation to gross exaggerations of their elders' sins.

The fact is, much of this degrading behavior has nothing to do with the pursuit of high ideals and morals. The young "dropouts from decency" simply are using adult shortcomings as excuse for misbehavior they would rationalize in some other way if they had to.

This does not mean there is not genuine cause for disillusionment at the performance of modern adult society. Any civilization which finds itself stumbling into war again and again, which looks upon the extermination of millions of Jews, which offers only thin hope to millions suffering poverty and discrimination is bound to shake popular confidence profoundly.

The self-confidence of adults today is, for the most part, rudely shattered. If so many did not themsleves have so much self-doubt, they would not be so hesitant about applying stricter standards to the misguided young.

The adults' tolerance of youthful self-degradation has nothing in it that is modern, progressive or partaking of "new freedom." What it has to do with is the adults' own confusion, their own disillusionment, their failure to find a new upward path.

Society has always relied upon its young people for fresh infusions of idealism. This country and all nations never needed it more.

But it will never be provided in sufficient flood so long as aggressive young militants dissipate their energy in orgies of self-hate. Men who respect nothing, not even themselves, will not be listened to when they attack the failings of others.

Government Payrolls

By EDWIN A. LAHEY
Chicago Daily News Service

WASHINGTON, Nov. 7 — The fastest growing business in our country today is government. Federal, state and local governments are all growing at a rate in excess of anything else in our growing nation.

We are passing the 200,000,000 mark in a few weeks. This represents a growth of 1.15 per cent in a year.

Total employment in August of this year was 66,473,000. This was 1,866,000 more jobs than there were in August a year ago. The growth rate in all jobs was 2.9 per cent.

Now let us break down these figures.

Private industry supplied 55,228,000 jobs in August 1967. This was 1,141,000 more than the same month a year ago. The number of jobs created by the "private sector" of the economy thus grew at a rate of 2.1 per cent.

We next come to government poyrollls.

In August of this year there were 11,245,000 people on federal, state and local payrolls.

This was an increase of 725,000 public payroll jobs in this country in one year.

The growth rate of the number of public payroll jobs was a shade below 7 per cent.

Let us recapitulate:

Private industry jobs, the basic source of the wealth from which we derive taxes, increase at the rate of 2.1 per cent a year.

Public payroll jobs, financed by these taxes, are increasing at a rate of 7 per cent a year.

For some years, most of the growth in government jobs could be attributed to state and local governments. In the past year the expansion of federal jobs has added to the dizzy pace.

Federal employment increased in one year from 2,631,000 to 2,804,000. Civilian employment in the Department of Defense was a big factor in this growth.

State and local government jobs increased from 7,889,000 a year ago to 8,441,000 in August of 1967.

The population explosion, the drift to the suburbs, the need for new public services, have all provided valid excuses for the growth in state and local payrolls for years.

But total population increases at a 1.15 per cent rate. For how long do state and local jobs expand at a 7 per cent rate before we are taking in one another's washing.

Manufacturing employment is a good measure for comparing the growth in public payroll jobs. Manufacturing, which employed some 19,480,000 workers in August of this year is the largest single category in the makeup of our labor force.

A year ago, as manufacturing workers went about their jobs creating taxable wealth, every 100 of them carried 54 government workers on their backs.

Today every hundred manufacturing workers are carrying 57 government employes on their backs.

We hate to sound like the far right wing. But no genius is required to joint out that the load carried by workers in the "private sector" will have to level off one of these years.

KINGSTON, NEW YORK, NOVEMBER 10, 1967

Veteran's Day, 1967

The nation tomorrow will be memorializing the living and the dead who fought the wars of this century in the hard, often frustrating defense against totalitarian tyranny. President Woodrow Wilson coined the phrase in 1917, "to make the world safe for democracy," and that has been our overall aim in each of the four wars from that time to the present.

Nearly 28 million men and women have answered their country's call in the four crises the nation has faced this century—4,743,826 in World War I, 16,353,659 in World War II, 5,764,143 in the Korean War and something more than 1,000,000 in the current war in Vietnam. These are the men and women we honor Saturday on Veterans Day.

In World War I, 1914-18, they fought the autocracy of Kaiser Wilhelm's Germany and his associates in the Central Powers, bent on world domination. Smashing the great German, Austro-Hungarian and Ottoman empires cost the allies 5,152,115 dead, of whom this country lost 130,500 killed and missing and 234,000 wounded, a total of 364,500 casualties.

In World War II, 1941-45, the enemy was the facist tyranny of Hitler's Germany, Mussolini's Italy and Tojo's Japan, also headed for total earth conquest. The cost was a horrible 11,380,707, of which the United States loss was 406,742 dead, and 670,846 wounded, a total of 1,078,162 casualties.

In the Korean War, 1950-53, the United Nations under the leadership of the United States, fought Communist aggression marshalled behind China and North Korea. The United States suffered 54,246 deaths and 103,284 wounded, total casualties of 157,530 to achieve an uneasy peace.

The battle for freedom from tyranny has moved to Asia. In the last year, Americans have suffered more than 10,000 killed and 100,000 wounded defending South Vietnam, slowing Red aggressors in their drive for total power. The end is not yet in sight, and more men will be added both to the roll of veterans and of casualties.

When the nation is not at war, Veterans' Day is devoted to commemoration—to remembering those who have served in the Nation's armed forces, and particularly those who have served under fire and made the final sacrifice. It is an occasion, in time of peace, for reflection on our debt to those who fought to preserve the nation.

But at such a time as this there is need for more than commemoration, or for reflection on the abstract virtues of duty and services. The men in Vietnam deserve honor for doing what they are called upon to do. But they deserve something more—our pledge to do all that can be done to effect a just peace and bring them back home. That should be the focal point of our thinking on Veterans' Day 1967.

Roundabout Tax Boost

The Senate Finance Committee's proposal to increase the Social Security tax to 10 per cent, shared equally by employes and employers, and to increase the taxable base to $8,000 would produce $6.1 billion a year. As explained by Senator Russell B. Long, committee chairman, it would also serve as a replacement for the dormant proposal to place a surtax on the income tax, which was to produce $7 billion in general revenue.

Here is a bald proposal to tax workers and their employers not alone for financing an across-the-board increase in Social Security benefits but also to serve to cool inflation, since Congress has refused to consider the surtax without a commensurate cut in federal spending.

It has long ago become apparent that the Social Security trust funds are used not alone for pensioning workers who have paid their share of taxes to earn pensions for themselves, but for other welfare purposes that have no relation to them. Workers and employers have been financing other welfare programs for the disabled, the blind and dependent children, payments which have been depleting the Social Security funds and endangering its viability.

Now they will be asked to pay an even bigger portion of their earnings—for those with incomes of up to $8,000 who are married and have two children, half as much again as the income tax they will pay—to finance broader benefits. It is a worse steal than the proposed surtax which it would replace.

The committee split 9 to 6 on most provisions. That indicates a big enough opposition for Senate floor action to reject its recommendation if it is solidified in time. It should arouse a taxpayers' alarm that will sink it before it can become law.

Texas' penchant for doing things big extends even to the poverty population. They number 2,631,700, topping New York's 2,054,900. More than $263 million anti-poverty funds went to Texas in 1965, the last year for which complete figures are available. And we all thought Texas grew only oil millionaires.

Significant Happenings In Tuesday's Elections

WASHINGTON—Although Tuesday's elections were largely local, there were some significant happenings which the politicians of both parties will not overlook as they determine their strategy for next year's presidential and congressional campaigns.

While the Democrats, for instance, elected Negroes to be mayor in Cleveland, Ohio, and Gary, Ind., the victory in both cases was won by a very narrow margin. The Democrats usually carry these, as well as most other large cities, by overwhelming majorities. If racial questions or any other issue cause the city voters to divide approximately on an even basis, the normal Republican strength in the suburbs and rural districts could be enough to swing the electoral vote of a state to the Republican side in a national election.

In Youngstown, Ohio, the incumbent mayor, a Democrat, won easily over the Negro Republican candidate. But the Republicans made gains in the election of members of the city council.

In Boston, Mrs. Louise Day Hicks—who has been outspoken against the busing of children to achieve racial balance in the schools—lost a close race for mayor in a nonpartisan election, but there is no doubt that the large vote she accumulated represented a form of white "backlash."

The turnover in New Jersey, where the Republicans captured the legislature by a majority of more than two-thirds in both houses, is likely to be construed as part of the undercurrent of dissatisfaction with the Democratic administration nationally. The legislature had been Democratic by 2-to-1.

In Kentucky, the first Republican governor since 1943 was elected. He waged his campaign almost entirely on a denunciation of the Johnson administration. In Mississippi, an anti-administration Democrat who supported Barry Goldwater in 1964, swamped his Republican opponent, who is regarded as more of a "moderate."

But nowhere, with the possible exception of the referendum in San Francisco, was there any evidence of the way the voters feel about national issues. In that city—which has been a center of opposition to the Vietnam War—the voters rejected by approximately a 2-to-1 margin a proposal calling for the immediate withdrawal of American troops from Vietnam.

The gains and losses in state and municipal elections will be interpreted in various ways by the politicians. National Democratic Chairman John M. Bailey, for example says he sees "no particular national trend" in the contests. Ray C. Bliss, chairman of the Republican National Committee, on the other hand, insists that "the Republican upsurge which began in 1966 is continuing." He referred particularly to the displacement of democratic mayors in four different cities—Indianapolis, Ind., Springfield, Mass., Manchester, N. H., and Hartford, Conn. — and to the greatly reduced democratic margins in Cleveland and Philadelphia.

Disinterested observers, after studying the returns, will conclude that, while the elections were largely local, the results reveal some new groupings among the voters which could break down party lines even more in the 1968 presidential and congressional contests. The public attention which has been given, for instance, to open-housing ordinances, as well as to the busing of school children, may be reflected in a protest vote which will cut across customary party affiliations.

Republicans, of course, will derive a good deal of encouragement from the results this week, because up to now they have had in the big cities a small amount of political strength, relatively speaking. Even if they lose those same cities by narrow margins in 1968, any gains in the cities, coupled with the suburban and rural vote, would help the Republicans substantially next year.

Even without the results of this week's elections, however, it has been apparent from the mail received in recent months by members of Congress that there is nationwide unrest. This arises from inflation and the cost of living, from the crime wave, riots and demonstrations, as well as dissatisfaction about the Vietnam war—expressed, on the one hand, by those who advocate the gradual withdrawal of American forces and, on the other hand, by those who think the war already has dragged on too long and should have been fought more vigorously. National discontent usually means that voters turn away from the party in power.

Hong Kong—I've gone half way around the world on two razor blades. My wife has done as well on two checkbooks. Speaking of money, Gene Kroll and I spent ten minutes in Berlin trying to figure out a restaurant bill. It read: 24.9.67 and the best I could do was read it as 24 marks, 9 pfennings. I didn't know the Germans had a smaller coin. "We haven't," the waiter said. "You gentlemen have been reading the date."

Our party consists of seven persons and each of us has misjudged so many things in so many places that we sometimes fall apart laughing. In Saigon, we sat in a room one night when a bombardment started. Sophie Kroll, who is a nervous optimist, stuck her hand outside the window and said: "Oy, that's not thunder."

Here in Hong Kong, David Haylock, the blond motion picture photographer, watched a Chinese walk down a street with four sticks tied in a kerchief. "Moving his furniture to a new flat," he murmured. My wife Kelly listened to the Vietnamese artillery one night and said: "If you don't mind, I'm wearing sneakers to bed."

In one city where the water is notorious for the bacteria, which flip out of the glass like goldfish, I asked the waiter for a bottle of spring water. He nodded happily, disappeared, and came back with a bottle marked Gordon's Gin. It was full of sink water. "All mellicans clazy."

There was no Turkish coffee on Turkish Airlines and we saw a PX marked "No Americans allowed." After four visits to Israel in thirteen years, I know what the people need: a sense of humor. De Gaulle tells his friends he doesn't like us because "it isn't French."

In India, Kelly got Delhi belly. Richard Winer, the other photographer, forgot to get a cholera shot, and a bearded doctor in a dusty turban gave it to him at the New Delhi airport. It may be one of the few places where they had enough germs to spare.

A bomb exploded beside our hotel here and a thousand Chinese pedestrians paused, glanced, and kept on walking. If you are in a rickshaw and you say: "Chop chop," the coolie will start running, only because he heard the word in American movies. Hong Kong has two t.v. channels, which are on from 5 p. m. to 10:45 p. m. Have you tried "I Love Lucy" with Chinese titles?

In Rome, the Italian customs demanded that we put up "a million lire" or else they would not release our cameras and film. A broker did it. Our overweight charges ran to $105 on each leg of the trip. Most cities get $30 a day for a car and driver. The tourist season is over, but so many millions of people travel all year around that it is difficult to book a room in any hotel.

All of the flights have been restful, almost dreamy. Even when we flew over a typhoon in the South China Sea, Pan American's 707 was high above it in the clear blue. At each stop, we look for mail from the children. Kathy, 12, writes most frequently. Next comes number three daughter, Karen, 14. Then number two child, Gayle, 24. No mail from Virginia Lee, 30, who has seven children and precious little time to take pen in hand.

Gene Kroll didn't get a letter from his son Dick for a couple of weeks, so he snarled: "When I get home I'm gonna kick him in the pants." A letter arrived the same day and Gene grinned at me and said: "He's a great guy, that son of mine."

Wally Lehmann, 71, a quiet gentleman who is "living it up" on this trip, doesn't care if he ever gets a note from home. He's too busy writing postcards. At the halfway mark round the globe, he has mailed 118. Some of the more progressive girls in each country notice that he is alone and they flirt with him. "I don't understand it," he says. "They must be off their nut."

So far, we have shot over 20,000 feet of color film on a TV production called "A Critical Look at the World." Offhand, I'd say it would run about ten hours, and we still have a long way to go.

Some of it hurts. German veterans without arms or legs are pushed around town in East Berlin in baby carriages. A Turkish war veteran without legs walks to work on his hands. Starving children walk up to a $3,000 camera to ask it for a penny. An old lady who forgot how to weep sleeps in a jewelry store doorway.

Chinese follow a garbage truck to pick up what falls off. It isn't a pretty world. And we're not pretty people. . .

Armed Services Are Put To Work at Rehabilitation

WASHINGTON—Robert S. McNamara has just delivered the most unusual speech of any Secretary of Defense in history — on democracy between men and the rehabilitation of men.

In some ways the speech should be no surprise, because McNamara, before he became head of the giant Ford Motor Company, was a teacher; also because McNamara is the first Secretary of Defense in history who has really acted as boss of the far-flung armed services.

The highlights of McNamara's speech have already been covered by the press associations. However, it is so important that it deserves repetition and diagnosis in this column.

Secretary McNamara didn't know it, but about the time he was delivering the speech before the National Association of Educational Broadcasters in Denver an illustration of what he was talking about took place at Fort Bragg, N.C.

The case involved a young Negro, who had once stolen my car. Instead of being prosecuted, he was turned over to a Big Brother, Henry Thomas, who is a paper-handler at the Washington Post. Big Brother Thomas deserves the initial credit, together with the boy's mother, for putting him on a straight path. But the Army deserves credit for the second step, when the boy graduated from basic training last weekend and marched tall and proud, with his mother watching him, to receive his marksman medal and to be shipped off to St. Louis to join the Engineers.

Secretary McNamara was talking about thousands of similar cases, white and Negro, when he reported on the armed forces' new programs on "Open Housing," Project 100,000," and "Project Transition."

Of these, the best known is Open Housing, in which the armed forces have cracked down hard on landlords who, as McNamara states it, "parade under the pomposity of racial superiority" and deny housing to men "the color of whose blood, when they shed it in the defense of Asia, is all the same shade," but who, when they return home, find that it's the "color of their skin" that matters.

"The Negro serviceman has been loyal and responsible to his country," said McNamara, "but the people of his country have failed in their loyalty and responsibility to him."

Accordingly, McNamara told how he was using the far-flung power of the armed services to boycott landlords who discriminated against Negro families.

Project Rehabilitation

McNamara's second project is to rehabilitate dropouts, the uneducated, the draft rejects. Of 1.8 million young men reaching military service age each year, he said, some 600,000—a third—failed to qualify under draft standards. In some states Negroes were rejected at the rate of 80 per cent.

"These men have a potential," the Secretary of Defense pointed out, "but the slow and silent poison of the poverty virus has paralyzed it in many of them. They have grown up in an atmosphere of drift and discouragement—in a ghetto of the human spirit."

Accordingly the Defense Department, which McNamara described as "the world's largest producer of skilled men," has already undertaken to rehabilitate 49,000 rejected draftees this first year, as part of a project to rehabilitate 100,000 each year.

McNamara reported that the first year 96 per cent of these men successfully completed basic training, which is only 2 per cent less than the normal graduation rate. The men have not been told that they are sub-standard. Only the armed forces know that they are on trial.

"It is absolutely imperative that they believe in themselves and their own potential," said McNamara. "They obviously cannot do that if we treat them with anything remotely suggesting condescendence.

"The plain fact is that our 'Project 100,000' is succeeding beyond even our most hopeful expectations. Many of our commanders report that these men are turning out to be even more highly motivated than some servicemen with a much more privileged background."

But total population increases at a 1.15 per cent rate. For how long do state and local jobs expand at a 7 per cent rate before we are taking in one another's washing.

Manufacturing employment is a good measure for comparing the growth in public payroll jobs. Manufacturing, which employed some 19,480,000 workers in August of this year is the largest single category in the makeup of our labor force.

A year ago, as manufacturing workers went about their jobs creating taxable wealth, every 100 of them carried 54 government workers on their backs.

Today every hundred manufacturing workers are carrying 57 government employes on their backs.

We hate to sound like the far right wing. But no genius is required to joint out that the load carried by workers in the "private sector" will have to level off one of these years.

Cub Pow-Wow Rated Success

Despite the downpour which occurred around registration time, some 50 Cub Scout leaders, representing 15 Cub Packs in the Rip Van Winkle Council area, gathered last Saturday at the Lutheran Church of the Redeemer in Kingston for the annual Cub Leaders' Pow Wow.

Those who attended were treated to an afternoon of good fellowship and a lot of information and training on the new features and changes in the Cub Scouting program. The pow wow staff were pleased to have, among the trainees, a delegation of four leaders from Pack 27 of Newburgh — two den mothers and two Webelos den leaders who were unable to attend the pow wow in their home Council.

Chairing this year's Council-sponsored pow wow was William Burgin of West Hurley, leadership training chairman for the Onteora Trail District.

Burgin, assisted by Dr. Clement Angstrom, of Kingston, council training chairman, presided over the early-afternoon session, dealing with "fundamentals"—the purposes of Cub Scouting, the methods of Cub Scouting and the Cub Scout advancement program. Brand new visual aids were used in presenting these topics.

The mid-afternoon "coffee break" was presided over by Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hudson of Pack 32, Saugerties. During the break, trainees were able to look over many interesting and colorful exhibits provided by packs in attendance. Exhibits covered the field of games, crafts, ceremonies and Den and Pack equipment. Also at this time, Council President Oliver Tweedy, of Hurley, was introduced to the group.

In the latter part of the afternoon, trainees were divided into two groups (den mothers and male pack leaders), with each group receiving instruction in three areas. Den mothers' sessions were games for dens, instructed by Ted Blankschan, Cubmaster of Pack 9; den ceremonies, demonstrated by Robert Tremper, Asst. CM with Pack 26; and den leader coach training, taught by Mrs. Sadie Marks, of Pack 172. Pack leaders and committeemen were concerned with pack ceremonies again with Bob Tremper; games for packs, Anderson, of Pack 7; and handled by Mr. and Mrs. Roy Anderson, of Pack 7; and Webelos den leader training, instructed by Erwin Tate, Cubmaster of Pack 32.

At the closing session, Dr. Angstrom expressed his appreciation to the entire pow wow staff for the excellent instruction and training which had been presented. Chairman Burgin presented training certificates to all participants before the closing ceremonies. Assisting at the pow wow from the Council's executive staff were Robert Bechmann, John Holmer and John Vliet, District Scout Executives.

In addition to Pack 27 of Newburgh the following Rip Van Winkle Council Packs were represented at the pow wow: Packs 9, 10 and 12 of Kingston; 16 of Stone Ridge; 17 of Tillson; 26 of Port Ewen; 32 of Saugerties; 39 of Flatbush; 51 of Windham; 66 of West Hurley; 70 of Highland; 72 of New Paltz; 76 of Wallkill; 100 of Palenville; and 172 of New Paltz. The Rip Van Winkle Council is a member agency of the Ulster County Community Chest.

"'Pot' roast AGAIN?"

Wilson Popularity Dropping As Laborite Revolt Erupts

LONDON (AP) — A major revolt erupted inside Britain's ruling Labor party against Prime Minister Harold Wilson's austerity policies, and a public opinion poll showed Wilson's popularity with the voters is dropping sharply.

More than 70 Laborite legislators signed a motion calling for an immediate change in the government's program to keep unemployment up this winter, partly to reduce imports and partly to encourage workers to shift to export industries.

Wilson failed in the House of Commons lobbies Wednesday night to head off an open revolt. Political sources said he offered the rebels a debate on employment policy in a closed party caucus but they rejected this attempt to take the heat out of the issue and went ahead with their censure motion.

A national opinion poll by the pro-Conservative Daily Mail showed that 9 per cent of those questioned were satisfied with Wilson, compared with 54 per cent in the Mail's last poll Oct. 19. Opposition leader Edward Heath's rating climbed from 36 to 47 per cent. The poll showed that in a general election now, 45.6 per cent would vote Conservative and 37.6 per cent Labor. Labor had a 1.9 per cent lead three weeks ago.

The Laborite rebels know that if they forced new elections, most of them would lose their seats. Their motion is not likely to come to a Commons vote that could bring down Wilson's government.

But it is especially embarrassing to Wilson because the rebels are not confined to the party's militant left wing. They include right-wing members from the trade unions and veteran party workhorses.

Multi-Media Is Topic at Tillson Meet

Several members of the Tillson Elementary School Parent-Teacher Association attended a lecture given by Richard Scott on the recently developed Multi-Media Center. The program took place Monday night and was preceded by a business meeting presided over by Kate Howe, president. At this time those present voted approval of a motion made to cancel the December and February P-TA meetings.

During the lecture, Scott, a reading coordinator from the Multi-Media Center, explained the function of the Center in its aid to children having reading problems. The children are selected by schools' principals on the basis of their being two or more years behind their grade level in reading skills. They are then referred to the center where they undergo a series of tests to determine causes of their reading difficulties and treatment methods to be used in each case.

The success of the Multi-Media Center in dealing with reading problems is made evident by the large increase in the number of schools it serves and by the fact that from being a Federally sponsored project, it is now backed by the Kingston Consolidated School System. It is hoped that within the next year, the center will establish a system for kindergarten screening which will spot children's reading problems at the beginning of their school careers and offer help before these difficulties become more serious.

The lecture was followed by a question period, after which refreshments were served and parents examined exhibits from the Science Fair which was held this week.

State's Science and Technology Progress Hailed by Peterson

FISHKILL—"New York State means business in its efforts to create new jobs through business and industrial expansion, and through effective application of science and technology," State Commerce Commissioner Ronald B. Peterson said Thursday night.

Speaking before the IBM Chemical Control Council dinner-meeting at the Holiday Inn here, Commissioner Peterson said the State's ability to train scientists and engineers and to attract technically trained people was a definite asset.

"Continued growth of research and development activties in our economy not only provides direct job opportunities, but supplies the new ideas, new processes, new techniques and new products for whole new industries," he emphasized.

Labs Doubled

He pointed out that the number of industrial research laboratories in New York State had more than doubled in the last 13 years—from 650 in 1954 to approximately 1,400.

"Research and development has grown into a billion dollar industry in New York State, with more than 61,000 professional scientists, engineers and technicians, and thousands of additional supporting personnel, engaged in research," the Commissioner said.

He noted that IBM's World Research Center at Yorktown Heights and the company's other research facilities in the State helped swell this total.

Peterson said the State Commerce Department had a special interest in the chemical industry "because it is one of our State's most important industrial categories and New York State is one of the nation's leaders in the chemical field."

Leader in Chemist Total

He told the group that New York is the national leader in the number of chemists, second in the number employed in the chemical industry, and third in value added by manufacture.

He said that his Department had received reports of 11 new chemical plants and 296 major expansions of existing chemical facilities in the State from 1961 through August 1967. Reports of 220 of the 307 idicate an investment of nearly $246 million for new plants or additions.

"In essence," Commissioner Peterson concluded, "the success of the chemical industry in New York State is due to the availability of scientists and skilled technicians, and to the State's ideal climate for re-research and development."

Jennifer Jones Found in Surf Near Death

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Academy Award winning actress Jennifer Jones was rushed to Mt. Sinai Hospital today after sheriff's deputies found her "near death" in the Pacific surf at the foot of a 440-foot cliff.

The shy, beautiful actress found unconscious and not breathing, may have fallen about 100 feet, said Los Angeles County sheriff's deputies.

A deputy restored her breathing after performing mouth-to-mouth resuscitation for two or three minutes.

The deputies found her footprints winding down a 1,000-foot-long path to the surf and said they ended about 100 feet from where she was found.

Her stomach was pumped at the Malibu Hospital before she was taken to Mt. Sinai. A sheriff's spokesman said Miss Jones, widow of producer David O. Selznick, reportedly had called her personal physician and said she was about to take some pills.

There was no immediate word from hospital officials on her condition.

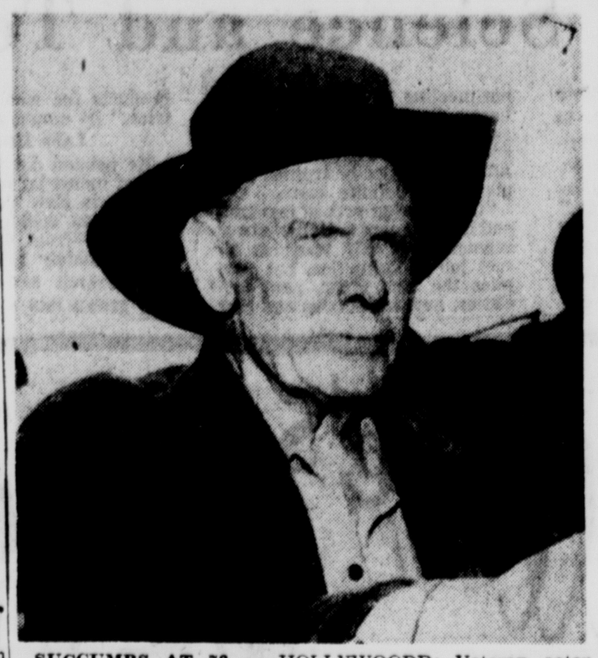

Sheriff's deputies found her after spotting her sports car at the top of the cliff.

Miss Jones won an Academy Award for her performance in her first film, "Song of Bernadette." She was found just hours after the death of her costar in that film, Charles Bickford. Bickford died at UCLA Medical Center of emphysema.

Miss Jones, 48, born Phylis Isley in Tulsa, Okla., married the late actor Robert Walker in 1939. The couple had two sons. She was divorced from Walker in 1945 and in 1949 married Selznick. They had one daughter.

In 1955, Miss Jones was voted by some 15 million movie goers as the best actress of the year for her performance in "Love Is a Many Splendored Thing." The Oscar for the best performance by an actress that year, however, was awarded to Anna Magnani for her role in "The Rose Tattoo."

During her years as a star, Miss Jones was rarely seen in public and never at public functions.

Lang's Market Burglarized of Money, Smokes

Burglars scaled a wall to a roof and forced a window and door to enter Lang's Market at 567 Abeel Street, sometime Thursday night or early today and made off with $350 and cartons of cigarettes after rifling the safe.

Frederick C. Lang, of 86 O'Neil Street, proprietor of the market said "they ruined my safe." He reported the intruders peeled the safe and took the cash and then stole 10 to 12 cartons of assorted cigarettes before making a getaway.

According to Lang, a woman resident who lives next to the Abeel Street market, noticed a door of the store open shortly after 7 a. m. and before the usual hour for opening the market for business. Lang said the woman went inside aand found no one but saw the safe had been peeled.

The woman telephoned the Lang residence and reported the safe burglary. Police were notified and investigation got underway.

Lang told a reporter that the burglar or burglars climbed a wall to the roof of the building, forced open a window of an upper floor which had been securely nailed, and then made their way downstairs to the lower hall where a door was forced open. Lang said the door had been bolted and a bar had been placed across it inside the store, but that didn't prevent the breakin.

to the city's distribution system. The council did approve money for improvement of the distribution system ($660,000) but failed to act on Cooper Lake expansion. Distribution improvement began in September of 1964 and concluded in December, 1966.

Costlier Today

The estimated cost of the Cooper Lake project in 1960 was between a half million dollars and $600,000. Cloonan estimates that at today's costs the bill would be another $100,000 to $150,000.

Time Factor Problem

If the bond issue is brought out for a floor vote and approved by the council Monday night, it would take another four to five years for completion. The time factor, termed "lead time" by Cloonan, also presents problems.

Garraghan is expected to ask for a rider on any approval of bonds which would prohibit borrowing at present rates, which in the mayor's words are "sky high." The decision city officials must make is whether to borrow the money at today's rates (around five per cent) or wait for them to come down while construction costs are rising steadily. Estimates of construction cost increases in the past seven years are around seven per cent.

Won't Afffect Rate

Both Cloonan and Garraghan emphasized today that any borrowing by the water department would not affect the city's tax rate or credit status.

Said Garraghan, "Water bonds are paid for out of water revenues, solely and entirely from the sale of water. They don't affect the general tax rate at all."

"We're looking ahead 40-50 years with this expansion of Cooper Lake. Kingston is blessed with a good supply of quality water. With population increase and new business we're going to need a lot more. The time to act is now," Garraghan concluded.

City Police Arrest Three, 2 Held on Robbery Charge

Three Kingston youths, two charged with first degree robbery and the third with attempted auto theft in separate instances, were arrested by city police early this morning.

Facing robbery accusations are Michael Cecelia, 17, of 56 Sycamore Street and Bernard Kearney, 20, of 14 Brown Avenue. The pair arraigned in city court today, pleaded innocent, and had their case adjourned until Saturday.

The third figure, Gregory T. Lyke, 18, of 240 Lucas Avenue, charged with criminal trespass in the attempted theft of an auto, also pleaded innocent in court today. His case is slated to be heard Nov. 21. He was released in the custody of his father.

Cecelia and Kearney were taken into custody following an investigation by Kingston detectives, police said. The pair were sought as suspects in the forceable entry and theft of a television set from a St. James Street apartment, officers noted.

Police said that James Dayton of 68 St. James Street notified headquarters prior to midnight that two males, described as dark complexioned, had just entered his dwelling, assaulted him and stole his portable TV. Dayton told police the two were last seen walking toward Fair Street.

Investigators acting on this information and additional reports apprehended Cecelia and Kearney around 12:55 a. m. They were confined in the county jail during the night, police disclosed.

Appearing in court, 17-year old Cecelia, who is presently facing grand jury action on burglary charges along with Kearney, insisted that bail be set in the robbery matter. Judge George A. Beck ordered that both youths be confined without bail in jail.

Lyke, who left court this morning with his father after a youth division counselor made the recommendations to the court, was arrested near Browning Terrace, police declared. Reports indicate the youth was attempting to steal a car when apprehended.

In another incident, an auto reported stolen last night from near the Railroad Club was later recovered in that vicinity by detectives, authorities report.

Mrs. Irene Benkert, 28, of 21 Washington Avenue, listed her car as stolen around 10:20 p. m.

The Railroad Club is located near the Broadway underpass. There is presently a model train display at the club.

Request Longer Seaway Season, Toll Changes

CHICAGO (AP) — The Indiana secretary of state called Thursday for a longer navigation season on the St. Lawrence Seaway and an end to "disciminating tolls and user charges."

Edgar D. Whitcomb, who doubles as chairman of the Great Lakes Commission, spoke to some 250 leaders at the national waterways conference.

Users of the waterways need "fair and equitable treatment on inland freight rates to and from Great Lakes ports," Whitcomb said. "Inland carriers presently blatantly discriminate against cargo transiting Great Lakes ports."

"We need a longer navigation season. Studies are under way to investigate how reaches susceptible to early icing, locks, dams and channels, may be kept free longer."

Whitcomb also called for an end to dumping municpal and industrial wates into the waterways.

L. P. Struble of the Dravo Corp. shipbuilders, said that a 12-foot channel is needed to connect Pittsburgh, Chicago and New Orleans.

The veteran, Michael Peter Carr, Boatswain's Mate 3rd Class, son of Donald H. Carr, 12 Ora Place, died of wounds received during a riverboat patrol skirmish on July 23 of this year.

The medals, which include the Purple Heart, the Vietnam Service Medal, the National Defense Medal and the Republic of Vietnam Campaign Ribbon bar, will be presented to the father by Lt. Commander David W. Dellinger, commanding officer of the U. S. Naval Reserve Training Center in Poughkeepsie.

Petty Officer Carr attended Kingston schools and joined the Navy on Jan. 14, 1965. His brother, Charles, recently completed a tour of duty in Vietnam as a Marine.

Saturday's brief ceremony, starting at 11 a. m., is in charge of the Kingston Veteran's Association, comprising veteran organizations in the city.

The ceremony will be open to the public.

Funeral Rites Held in Texas For John Garner

UVALDE, Tex. (AP) — John Nance Garner, former vice president and speaker of the U.S. House of Representatives, was buried Thursday beneath a big mimosa tree on the outskirts of his hometown.

Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey joined several hundred other mourners as they stood in the sticky, cold mud and repeated the Lord's Prayer for the man who twice tried to be the first U.S. president from Texas.

Garner died Tuesday, 16 days before his 99th birthday.

"Death is nothing but a horizon and the horizon is nothing but the limit of our sight," said the Rev. Romilly Timmins.

The Rev. Mr. Timmins conducted an Episcopal service at a downtown funeral chapel and another at the graveside.

More than 500 persons filed past Garner's open casket as he lay in state for almost two days.

Humphrey, accompanied by U.S. Sen. Ralph Yarborough, D-Tex., and Rep. O.C. Fisher, D-Tex., brought condolences from President Lyndon B. Johnson.

A large spray of bronze and yellow crysanthemums from the White House stood near Garner's casket.

Garner's body was carried about 1½ miles from the funeral home chapel to the cemetery. Hundreds of Uvalde residents, many of them Mexican-Americans, lined the street.

Ranch hands in work clothes held their wide brimmed hats over their hearts as the procession passed. Others with carloads of children held up their youngest to see the hearse carrying the body of the former vice president and possibly get a glimpse of the present vice president.

Massive Action Urged by King To Lift Negroes

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — Dr. Martin Luther King has called for a "massive action program" to end an economic depression among the nation's Negroes that he says is worse than the Great Depression of the 1930s.

The Negro civil rights leader winner of the Nobel Peace Prize, suggested a $40-billion federal program over the next two years to wipe out slums and poverty in the United States.

He made his comments Thursday night before an audience of 2,500 at an address sponsored by the Graduate Student Asscoiation of the State University at Buffalo.

King, a sharp critic of the Johnson Administration's Vietnam policy, decried the threatened Congressional slashing of the federal anti-poverty program, which amounted to $1.6 billion in the last full year.

"There is a mix-up in our national priorities when we are spending $500,000 to kill one enemy soldier in Vietnam and only $50 a year to lift each American out of poverty," he asserted.

Cuts in the anti-poverty campaign, he added, "would be an open invitation to riots. Our winters of delay are the cause of our summers of riots."

"Negroes are perishing on an island of poverty in a vast ocean of economic prosperity," King said. "Conditions for the masses of Negroes are worsening instead of improving, and we are facing a major depression."

"Negro unemployment is about 16 per cent, which is more staggering than the total unemployment during the Depression of the 1930s, and 50 per cent of our young Negro men are unemployed or are earning less than the poverty level," he added.

Returning to the Vietnam question, King president of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference, said he doubted whether a third-party "peace" candidate could be elected President in 1968.

A nominee of this type by one of the two major parties, however, would be victorious, he claimed.

Jennifer Jones Found in Surf Near Death

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Academy Award winning actress Jennifer Jones was rushed to Mt. Sinai Hospital today after sheriff's deputies found her "near death" in the Pacific surf at the foot of a 440-foot cliff.

The shy, beautiful actress found unconscious and not breathing, may have fallen about 100 feet, said Los Angeles County sheriff's deputies.

A deputy restored her breathing after performing mouth-to-mouth resuscitation for two or three minutes.

The deputies found her footprints winding down a 1,000-foot-long path to the surf and said they ended about 100 feet from where she was found.

Her stomach was pumped at the Malibu Hospital before she was taken to Mt. Sinai. A sheriff's spokesman said Miss Jones, widow of producer David O. Selznick, reportedly had called her personal physician and said she was about to take some pills.

There was no immediate word from hospital officials on her condition.

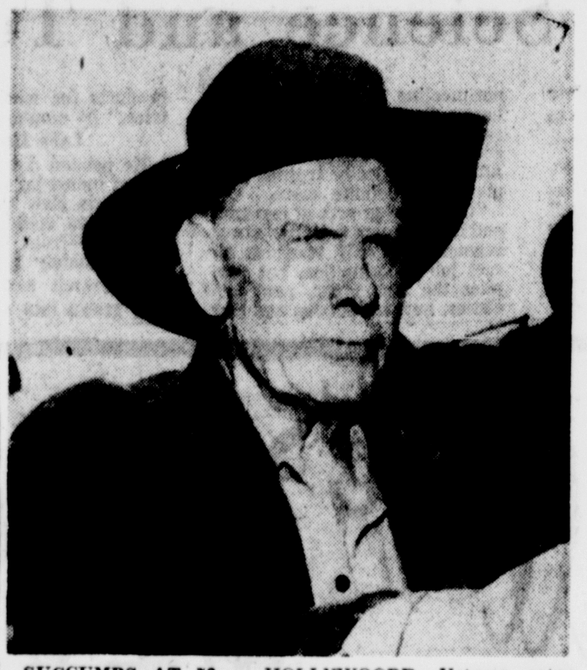

Sheriff's deputies found her after spotting her sports car at the top of the cliff.

Burglars scaled a wall to a roof and forced a window and door to enter Lang's Market at 567 Abeel Street, sometime Thursday night or early today and made off with $350 and cartons of cigarettes after rifling the safe.

to the city's distribution system. The council did approve money for improvement of the distribution system ($660,000) but failed to act on Cooper Lake expansion. Distribution improvement began in September of 1964 and concluded in December, 1966.

Costlier Today

The estimated cost of the Cooper Lake project in 1960 was between a half million dollars and $600,000. Cloonan estimates that at today's costs the bill would be another $100,000 to $150,000.

Time Factor Problem

If the bond issue is brought out for a floor vote and approved by the council Monday night, it would take another four to five years for completion. The time factor, termed "lead time" by Cloonan, also presents problems.

Garraghan is expected to ask for a rider on any approval of bonds which would prohibit borrowing at present rates, which in the mayor's words are "sky high." The decision city officials must make is whether to borrow the money at today's rates (around five per cent) or wait for them to come down while construction costs are rising steadily. Estimates of construction cost increases in the past seven years are around seven per cent.

Won't Afffect Rate

Both Cloonan and Garraghan emphasized today that any borrowing by the water department would not affect the city's tax rate or credit status.

Said Garraghan, "Water bonds are paid for out of water revenues, solely and entirely from the sale of water. They don't affect the general tax rate at all."

"We're looking ahead 40-50 years with this expansion of Cooper Lake. Kingston is blessed with a good supply of quality water. With population increase and new business we're going to need a lot more. The time to act is now," Garraghan concluded.

City Police Arrest Three, 2 Held on Robbery Charge

Three Kingston youths, two charged with first degree robbery and the third with attempted auto theft in separate instances, were arrested by city police early this morning.

Facing robbery accusations are Michael Cecelia, 17, of 56 Sycamore Street and Bernard Kearney, 20, of 14 Brown Avenue. The pair arraigned in city court today, pleaded innocent, and had their case adjourned until Saturday.

The third figure, Gregory T. Lyke, 18, of 240 Lucas Avenue, charged with criminal trespass in the attempted theft of an auto, also pleaded innocent in court today. His case is slated to be heard Nov. 21. He was released in the custody of his father.

Cecelia and Kearney were taken into custody following an investigation by Kingston detectives, police said. The pair were sought as suspects in the forceable entry and theft of a television set from a St. James Street apartment, officers noted.

Police said that James Dayton of 68 St. James Street notified headquarters prior to midnight that two males, described as dark complexioned, had just entered his dwelling, assaulted him and stole his portable TV. Dayton told police the two were last seen walking toward Fair Street.

Investigators acting on this information and additional reports apprehended Cecelia and Kearney around 12:55 a. m. They were confined in the county jail during the night, police disclosed.

Appearing in court, 17-year old Cecelia, who is presently facing grand jury action on burglary charges along with Kearney, insisted that bail be set in the robbery matter. Judge George A. Beck ordered that both youths be confined without bail in jail.

Lyke, who left court this morning with his father after a youth division counselor made the recommendations to the court, was arrested near Browning Terrace, police declared. Reports indicate the youth was attempting to steal a car when apprehended.

In another incident, an auto reported stolen last night from near the Railroad Club was later recovered in that vicinity by detectives, authorities report.

Mrs. Irene Benkert, 28, of 21 Washington Avenue, listed her car as stolen around 10:20 p. m.

The Railroad Club is located near the Broadway underpass. There is presently a model train display at the club.

Request Longer Seaway Season, Toll Changes

CHICAGO (AP) — The Indiana secretary of state called Thursday for a longer navigation season on the St. Lawrence Seaway and an end to "disciminating tolls and user charges."

Edgar D. Whitcomb, who doubles as chairman of the Great Lakes Commission, spoke to some 250 leaders at the national waterways conference.

Users of the waterways need "fair and equitable treatment on inland freight rates to and from Great Lakes ports," Whitcomb said. "Inland carriers presently blatantly discriminate against cargo transiting Great Lakes ports."

"We need a longer navigation season. Studies are under way to investigate how reaches susceptible to early icing, locks, dams and channels, may be kept free longer."

Whitcomb also called for an end to dumping municpal and industrial wates into the waterways.

L. P. Struble of the Dravo Corp. shipbuilders, said that a 12-foot channel is needed to connect Pittsburgh, Chicago and New Orleans.

Ceremony For Vets Saturday

Posthumous decorations earned by a Kingston Navy man killed in Vietnam will be presented to the father during the city's annual observance of Veterans Day Saturday morning at the plaque in front of City Hall.

The veteran, Michael Peter Carr, Boatswain's Mate 3rd Class, son of Donald H. Carr, 12 Ora Place, died of wounds received during a riverboat patrol skirmish on July 23 of this year.

The medals, which include the Purple Heart, the Vietnam Service Medal, the National Defense Medal and the Republic of Vietnam Campaign Ribbon bar, will be presented to the father by Lt. Commander David W. Dellinger, commanding officer of the U. S. Naval Reserve Training Center in Poughkeepsie.

Petty Officer Carr attended Kingston schools and joined the Navy on Jan. 14, 1965. His brother, Charles, recently completed a tour of duty in Vietnam as a Marine.

Carr was a World War II veteran who served with the U. S. Army in the Pacific area.

Saturday's brief ceremony, starting at 11 a. m., is in charge of the Kingston Veteran's Association, comprising veteran organizations in the city.

The ceremony will be open to the public.

Action Continued

An automobile negligence action arising out of an automobile accident on December 24, 1964, was continued in Supreme Court before Justice R. Waldron Herzberg and a jury today. Patrick D. Sangaline seeks to recover for injuries in his action against Holly Ruff. He claims neck and head injuries and seeks to recover for loss of wages during a three-weeks period when he alleges he suffered severe headaches and pain of the neck and was required to wear a neck collar.

Sangaline is represented by Gaffney and Hill with Joseph Hill as trial counsel. Holly Ruff is represented by Flood and McClosky. Holly Beye Ruff also brought an action against Patrick D. Sangaline in which Michael Nardone appears for Ruff and George F. Roesch for Sangaline.

Funeral Rites Held in Texas For John Garner

UVALDE, Tex. (AP) — John Nance Garner, former vice president and speaker of the U.S. House of Representatives, was buried Thursday beneath a big mimosa tree on the outskirts of his hometown.

Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey joined several hundred other mourners as they stood in the sticky, cold mud and repeated the Lord's Prayer for the man who twice tried to be the first U.S. president from Texas.

Garner died Tuesday, 16 days before his 99th birthday.

"Death is nothing but a horizon and the horizon is nothing but the limit of our sight," said the Rev. Romilly Timmins.

The Rev. Mr. Timmins conducted an Episcopal service at a downtown funeral chapel and another at the graveside.

More than 500 persons filed past Garner's open casket as he lay in state for almost two days.

Humphrey, accompanied by U.S. Sen. Ralph Yarborough, D-Tex., and Rep. O.C. Fisher, D-Tex, brought condolences from President Lyndon B. Johnson.

A large spray of bronze and yellow crysanthemums from the White House stood near Garner's casket.

Garner's body was carried about 1½ miles from the funeral home chapel to the cemetery. Hundreds of Uvalde residents, many of them Mexican-Americans, lined the street.

Ranch hands in work clothes held their wide brimmed hats over their hearts as the procession passed. Others with carloads of children held up their youngest to see the hearse carrying the body of the former vice president and possibly get a glimpse of the present vice president.

Massive Action Urged by King To Lift Negroes

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — Dr. Martin Luther King has called for a "massive action program" to end an economic depression among the nation's Negroes that he says is worse than the Great Depression of the 1930s.

The Negro civil rights leader winner of the Nobel Peace Prize, suggested a $40-billion federal program over the next two years to wipe out slums and poverty in the United States.

He made his comments Thursday night before an audience of 2,500 at an address sponsored by the Graduate Student Asscoiation of the State University at Buffalo.

King, a sharp critic of the Johnson Administration's Vietnam policy, decried the threatened Congressional slashing of the federal anti-poverty program, which amounted to $1.6 billion in the last full year.

"There is a mix-up in our national priorities when we are spending $500,000 to kill one enemy soldier in Vietnam and only $50 a year to lift each American out of poverty," he asserted.

Cuts in the anti-poverty campaign, he added, "would be an open invitation to riots. Our winters of delay are the cause of our summers of riots."

"Negroes are perishing on an island of poverty in a vast ocean of economic prosperity," King said. "Conditions for the masses of Negroes are worsening instead of improving, and we are facing a major depression."

"Negro unemployment is about 16 per cent, which is more staggering than the total unemployment during the Depression of the 1930s, and 50 per cent of our young Negro men are unemployed or are earning less than the poverty level," he added.

Returning to the Vietnam question, King president of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference, said he doubted whether a third-party "peace" candidate could be elected President in 1968.

A nominee of this type by one of the two major parties, however, would be victorious, he claimed.

The Statistics on Jobless: Tragedy, Waste Underscored

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — In his economic message to Congress this year, President Johnson stated: "The coexistence of job vacancies and idle workers unable to fill them represents a bitter human tragedy and an inexcusable economic waste."

The tragedy and the waste were underscored this week by the most recent unemployment statistics. At the very time skilled workers were demanding and getting higher wages, the unskilled found it harder even to find jobs.

Strange Contrast

This situation has produced a strange contrast, for these poor exist side by side with the most materially comfortable workers the world has seen.

Unemployment in October, the Labor Department announced, rose for the second straight month to a surprising high 4.3 per cent of the labor force, the highest percentage in two years.

Compared with some other postwar years this percentage still might be viewed as relatively healthy, but like the shiny red apple, the outer layers may have to be peeled to reval the core.

Probing into this 4.3 per cent figure reveals that joblessness among white collar workers remained at 2.5 per cent, but that for every other category of worker unemployment was greater than the overall average.

Among blue collar workers the percentage rose to 4.9 from 4.6, service workers to 5.5 from 5.1, and non-farm laborers to 9.2 from 8.1. Negro unemployment — skilled and unskilled combined — reached 8.8 per cent. The white rate was 3.8 per cent.

Likely to Grow

This disparity between the skilled and unskilled is bad enough, but it is likely to persist and even grow as the economy continues to mechanize and automate, and thus nearly eliminate much of hand labor.

If you need a reminder, try to recall the hundreds of pick, shovel and rake men needed to build a road in the 1930s. Compare that picture with 1967, when a few men clustered around a few machines can do the same work.

The fact is that unskilled labor, no matter how willing and adaptable, is just about the most difficult commodity to sell in the marketplace. It is uterly defenseless in a recession. And it is sinking relatively lower on the social and economic scale as more people develop skills.

Month after month the unemployment statistics give immutable evidence that the best intentions of government and corporate officials to provide jobs are doomed to frustration unless abilities are developed and skills are taught.

Business, no matter what is said, cannot long tolerate any make-work projects without profits being damaged and stockholders howling. Its obligation is to upgrade the skills of its workers in the name of production, rather than to downgrade its requirements for the sake of charity.

Boy, 7, Dies In Jersey Fire; Other Son Saved

RINGWOOD, N.J. (AP)—A 7-year-old boy died despite valiant efforts of his parents as fire swept a home in this Passaic County community early today.

Police said Mr. and Mrs. Richard Dennison were unable to battle their way through an inferno of flame to reach Richard Jr., who was sleeping upstairs, when the fire erupted shortly after 2 a.m.

They did however manage to rescue another son, 2-year-old Brian, who was asleep on the first floor.

The wooden home was destroyed.

Both parents were treated at Chilton Memorial Hospital in Pompton Plains for cuts and burns sustained in their rescue attempts.

Released, they went to Dennison's parents home in Eagle Valley, N.Y.

A spokesman for the Erskine Lakes volunteer fire department said the fire apparently started in the upper section of the home. All that was standing after firemen had tried for an hour to bring the blaze under control, was the house's chimney and foundation, he said.

NEW YORK (AP) — A reviving stock market moved sharply higher early Friday. Trading was active.

Taking off from Thursday's advance — the first in nine sessions — the market moved ahead on a broad front.

Gains outnumbered losses by a margin of about 3 to 1. The Dow Jones industrial average advanced about 5 points.

The industrial blue chips continued to put on a strong performance. Some rails and selected growth stocks also did well.

Steels, autos, rubbers and mail order-retails advanced solidly, although most of their gains were fractional.

Army's Former 'Lonesome End' Is Decorated

HONOLULU (AP) — Army Capt. William S. Carpenter Jr. received the Distinguished Service Cross, the nation's second highest award, for bravery in combat in a ceremony Thursday at Schofield Barracks.

The 29-year-old former Army football star was cited for bravery for calling down a napalm barrage on his own position which was under attack June 10 last year in South Vietnam.

The napalm bombs hit the top of the trees in the center of the company's position and exploded above ground. The fiery napalm carried directly into the charging enemy troops and bypassed most of the Americans, forcing the Viet Cong to withdraw.

Carpenter, who was captain of the West Point football team and an All-America in 1959 when he gained fame as the "Lonesome End," was wounded twice in Vietnam in 1964 while serving as an adviser to South Vietnamese troops.

Don't Chase High Multiple Stocks

Q—I have $1,500 which my fiance suggests I invest in strong growth stocks such as Litton Industries, Xerox Corp. and Control Data. I have never bought stock and wonder if you recommend these stocks for investment. —R. M.

A—I dislike very much going counter to your fiance's suggestion, but I feel that if $1,500 represents your total savings, part at least belongs where it is. Xerox is an excellent stock, selling at a very high multiple. The same can be said of Control companies in the electronic data processing field. Each of these stocks I regard as good, but they are volatile and I would not chase them at current high levels. Litton has a fine record, seems fore reasonably priced than the others and you might please your fiance by putting $1,000 into this issue.

Q—Under what conditions are stocks bought by me placed in the name of the broker? Dividends are issued in the name of the broker and the broker sends his check to me, sometimes after considerable delay. — E. L.

A—There are only two reasons why a broker should put your stocks in his name. The first is required, the second is optional with you. If you have a margin account, all stocks must be held in the broker's name. Only in this way can he utilize the shares on which he is lending you money. At your option, the broker may — only if instructed by you — hold your stocks in his name for convenience in trading. If you have no margin account and have not instructed your broker to put your shares in his name, he is in error. Tell him you want your certificates delivered to you in your name and I'm sure he will do so at once.

Phinney Is Ahead By 4 in City Vote

According to results of Tuesday's election of eight members of the new Ulster County Legislature which will replace the Board of Supervisors on Jan. 1, Republican Robert F. Phinney finished in the eighth spot in the Third, Fourth, Fifth, and Sixth Districts—the City of Kingston.

Some doubt had been indicated in checking available figures as to whether the eighth legislator was Phinney or Republican Joseph J. Turck.

Election Commissioner Seymour Werbalowsky said official results had not reached the office of the Board of Elections. Certification of results will be made at a recanvass of votes registered on the machines to be held soon in the presence of the Board of Supervisors, the custodians of the voting machines and party representatives.

City Clerk Thomas R. Lyle this morning reported results of the election of legislators in the city showed Turck lost his bid for a seat on the County Legislature by four votes.

Lyle's records show the following vote for legislators in Kingston:

Turck's vote was reported at 5350.

The Statistics on Jobless: Tragedy, Waste Underscored

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — In his economic message to Congress this year, President Johnson stated: "The coexistence of job vacancies and idle workers unable to fill them represents a bitter human tragedy and an inexcusable economic waste."

The tragedy and the waste were underscored this week by the most recent unemployment statistics. At the very time skilled workers were demanding and getting higher wages, the unskilled found it harder even to find jobs.

Strange Contrast

This situation has produced a strange contrast, for these poor exist side by side with the most materially comfortable workers the world has seen.

Unemployment in October, the Labor Department announced, rose for the second straight month to a surprising high 4.3 per cent of the labor force, the highest percentage in two years.

Compared with some other postwar years this percentage still might be viewed as relatively healthy, but like the shiny red apple, the outer layers may have to be peeled to reval the core.

Probing into this 4.3 per cent figure reveals that joblessness among white collar workers remained at 2.5 per cent, but that for every other category of worker unemployment was greater than the overall average.

Among blue collar workers the percentage rose to 4.9 from 4.6, service workers to 5.5 from 5.1, and non-farm laborers to 9.2 from 8.1. Negro unemployment — skilled and unskilled combined — reached 8.8 per cent. The white rate was 3.8 per cent.

Likely to Grow

This disparity between the skilled and unskilled is bad enough, but it is likely to persist and even grow as the economy continues to mechanize and automate, and thus nearly eliminate much of hand labor.

If you need a reminder, try to recall the hundreds of pick, shovel and rake men needed to build a road in the 1930s. Compare that picture with 1967, when a few men clustered around a few machines can do the same work.

The fact is that unskilled labor, no matter how willing and adaptable, is just about the most difficult commodity to sell in the marketplace. It is uterly defenseless in a recession. And it is sinking relatively lower on the social and economic scale as more people develop skills.

Month after month the unemployment statistics give immutable evidence that the best intentions of government and corporate officials to provide jobs are doomed to frustration unless abilities are developed and skills are taught.

Business, no matter what is said, cannot long tolerate any make-work projects without profits being damaged and stockholders howling. Its obligation is to upgrade the skills of its workers in the name of production, rather than to downgrade its requirements for the sake of charity.

Boy, 7, Dies In Jersey Fire; Other Son Saved

RINGWOOD, N.J. (AP)—A 7-year-old boy died despite valiant efforts of his parents as fire swept a home in this Passaic County community early today.

Police said Mr. and Mrs. Richard Dennison were unable to battle their way through an inferno of flame to reach Richard Jr., who was sleeping upstairs, when the fire erupted shortly after 2 a.m.

They did however manage to rescue another son, 2-year-old Brian, who was asleep on the first floor.

The wooden home was destroyed.

Both parents were treated at Chilton Memorial Hospital in Pompton Plains for cuts and burns sustained in their rescue attempts.

Released, they went to Dennison's parents home in Eagle Valley, N.Y.

A spokesman for the Erskine Lakes volunteer fire department said the fire apparently started in the upper section of the home. All that was standing after firemen had tried for an hour to bring the blaze under control, was the house's chimney and foundation, he said.

NEW YORK (AP) — A reviving stock market moved sharply higher early Friday. Trading was active.

Taking off from Thursday's advance — the first in nine sessions — the market moved ahead on a broad front.

Gains outnumbered losses by a margin of about 3 to 1. The Dow Jones industrial average advanced about 5 points.

The industrial blue chips continued to put on a strong performance. Some rails and selected growth stocks also did well.

Steels, autos, rubbers and mail order-retails advanced solidly, although most of their gains were fractional.

Phinney Is Ahead By 4 in City Vote

According to results of Tuesday's election of eight members of the new Ulster County Legislature which will replace the Board of Supervisors on Jan. 1, Republican Robert F. Phinney finished in the eighth spot in the Third, Fourth, Fifth, and Sixth Districts—the City of Kingston.

Some doubt had been indicated in checking available figures as to whether the eighth legislator was Phinney or Republican Joseph J. Turck.

Election Commissioner Seymour Werbalowsky said official results had not reached the office of the Board of Elections. Certification of results will be made at a recanvass of votes registered on the machines to be held soon in the presence of the Board of Supervisors, the custodians of the voting machines and party representatives.

City Clerk Thomas R. Lyle this morning reported results of the election of legislators in the city showed Turck lost his bid for a seat on the County Legislature by four votes.

Turck's vote was reported at 5350.

British Publicans Plan to Protest New Drink - Driving Law

BY GRANVILLE WATTS
Associated Press Writer

LONDON (AP) — Britain's new don't-drive-after-drinking law, one month old, is changing things.

Trade has slumped by more than 20 per cent at Vincent Parsons' pub The Swan, in the London suburb of West Drayton.

"It's splitting up old friendships, it's going to leave a gap in people's lives," Parsons says.

"A good pub is like a safety valve. You can let off steam about your job or the state of the nation or your wife. But who is going to stand around drinking tomato juice all night?"

Parsons is one of thousands of disgruntled British publicans complaining about the new law, which authorizes police to carry out random roadside checks with a breath-test instrument called a breathalyser.

The worst-hit pubs are those in country areas which depend largely on motorists.

Faced with dwindling bar sales, some of the tavern owners have even threatened to organize a nationwide pub strike and a protest march on government offices.

First police figures, however, show that the breathalyser law is working. In one area of Yorkshire accidents have dropped nearly 40 per cent. But it is likely to be early next year before an official judgment is passed on the breathalyser method.

Motorists' organizations are expressing concern at the number of drivers who are being tested and found fit to drive. They feel the police should only stop motorists who are obviously suspicious.

In the spot checks drivers are asked to breathe into a tube. If chemically treated crystals turn green beyond a certain mark the driver is taken to a police station and subjected to blood or urine tests.

Anyone found with more than 80 milligrams of alcohol in 100 millilitres of his blood faces a $280 fine, four months' imprisonment or both.

Just where the danger mark lies is any drinker's guess.

One hefty publican downed 12 quick vodkas and still passed the test. A thinner and less experienced drinker failed the test after two pints of beer.

The law has hit hotels and restaurants as well as pubs.

Hotels throughout Britain have reported scores of canceled functions for fear of that late drive home.

Trade drops are marginal in pubs in the center of London and other cities. Breweries hope increased drinking at home will cut down losses.

But in the country pubs, the impact has been hard.

"That's right there'll be no party this Christmas?" asked a husky beer drinker in The Swan.

"Afraid so," said the barman.

Fourth Vote Tuesday

Questions, Answers on Rhinebeck School Budget

By LYNN MULVANEY

Why, when the state pays 90 per cent of the cost, can't Rhinebeck's school children have bus transportation?

Why are athletic and textbook expenses lumped together in the school budget?

Why isn't the cost of supporting the school band listed in the budget among co-curricular activity costs?

These and many other questions which have perhaps contributed along with a proposed higher school tax rate to the three-time defeat of the budget, are being answered.

On Austerity Budget

A program of public information fostered by both the Board of Education and a citizen's committee has been instituted in hopes that an enlightened public may, next Tuesday when it ballots a fourth time, pass a budget.

Rhinebeck has been operating for several months on an austerity program which has denied the school children many services.

A committee of interested citizens, headed by Richard May, has prepared a list of questions and answers relating to the addition of five items to the school budget.

The Facts

They are: 1. Why isn't science fair transportation expense provided for under transportation?

Answer—Budgeting for this item appears under field trip expense. This activity was dropped following the June defeat of the budget.

2. Why can't the children have transportation without a vote? The state pays 90 per cent. Also, the cafeteria which is self-supporting?

Answer—The state pays 90 per cent of transportation within the limits it sets. At the present, because the contingency budget was not sanctioned by voters, the limit was set at two and three miles. If the budget were approved the state would provide aid for one and one-half mile trips. Service beyond this limit must be paid entirely by the school district.

The state does not consider the cafeteria self-supporting because it gives aid to the program, this year in the amount of $9,000.

3. Please explain co-curricular activities. Only partial expenses are shown in the budget. Band is listed but the expense is not budgeted.

Answer—Co-curricular activities are extra programs. Some cost money while others don't. Most of the clubs do not require money. Senior plays and band competitions do. However, other band expenses are part of the instructional program and are budgeted for under that heading.

4. Will a vote for an $800 cafeteria expense mean a hot lunch program or just a milk program?

Answer—A vote for "Item Four" means the entire hot lunch program.

5. If the voter should turn down the proposal for instructional supply costs, will that item be voted again separating textbook and athletic supplies?

Answer—"It is not possible to give an answer to this question at this time," according to May.

If the instructional service item is not passed, then the athletic transportation would remain unspent and would be added to next year's budget as surplus.

6. Why are athletic expenses combined with textbooks and library expenses?

Answer—Athletics and physical education are considered part of the instructional program along with textbooks and other needed supplies. All such instructional expenses are budgeted under a single heading as prescribed by the practices of the state.

The questions and answers are among many solicited by the citizen's group through the employment of "question boxes" distributed at various business places in the community in recent weeks.

$53,641 Increase

Voters will go to the polls Nov. 14 to vote on an increase of $53,641.50 to the austerity budget of $1,300,677.61. Actually the increases amounts to less than that figure, or, $49,892.27 since the delay in budgeting since June has caused a decrease in projected expenses.

Troopers Arrest Motorists for Drunk Driving

Highland State Police early today arrested two motorists on charges of driving motor vehicles while intoxicated.

Rosaire Powlin, 23, of Quebec and Highland, was cited by Troopers Edward Pulver and Philip Koenig after he was stopped on Route 9W at the traffic circle. He also was charged with driving the wrong way around the circle.

Powlin, according to Trooper John Crodelle, refused to submit to a blood test. He was released in $50 bail by Justice of the Peace Linn Baker, Town of Lloyd, and hearing was adjourned until Jan. 9, 1968. The alleged violations occurred at 3 a. m.

John Benjamin Conn, 67, of Grand Street, Marlboro, was arrested at 4:45 a. m. on Route 9W in Marlboro by Troopers Pulver and Koenig. Troopers arraigned Conn before Justice of the Peace Patrick Mataraza, Town of Marlboro, on a drunken driving charge. Hearing was adjourned until Saturday, Nov. 25. Conn, who submitted to a blood test, was released pending disposition of the case.

Moose Lodge Initiation Set

State Young GOP Sets Victory Fete

There will be a victory celebration at the annual fall meeting of the New York State Young Republicans at the Sheraton Hotel and Motor Inn in Rochester, today through Sunday.

Congressman Barbar Conable, a member of the House of Representatives Ways and Means Committee will speak at the three day conference.

In announcing the meeting, New York State Young Republican President Mrs. Charles T. Knauss of Livingston and that "several hundred Young Republican Leaders from every part of New York State are expected to attend the meeting, where they will discuss their recent election victories and the passage of the Mass Transportation Bond Issue by an overwhelming margin."

Area Span Employe Back as Collector

Kingdon Proctor, Rip Van Winkle Bridge employe who was suspended from his duties a weekago when he refused to distribute pro-bond issue literature, was today reinstated as toll collector.

Edward J. Burns, administrative officer for the New York State Bridge Authority, said from Poughkeepsie early this morning that Proctor would be back on the job today. Burns allegedly is the man who suspended Proctor.

'Merely Suspended'

The chief bridge officer said "This whole matter has been twisted and misunderstood. We never intended to fire Proctor. He was merely suspended." Burns said that Proctor would receive backpay for the days he missed.

Proctor, who resides in Germantown, could not be reached for comment. However, the Rip Van Winkle Bridge spokesman confirmed the reinstatement. A spokesman declared, "Proctor begins work tomorrow. He has a meeting in Poughkeepsie today."

Proctor walked off the job last Friday when he refused to pass out bond issue material to motorists. At the time he said Burns had asked whether he would distribute the literature and when refused Burns said he should go home.

The bond issue was overwhelmingly endorsed by New Yorkers on Election Day. Proctor said he refused to hand the literature out because "...my job isn't politics."

Dr. John Edwards, a Hudson physician who is also chairman of the New York State Bridge Authority and who backed Burns' decision to suspend Proctor, could not be reached today. His secretary said, "The doctor is out and I don't know when he will return."

Yesterday it was reported that Proctor had received the news of his reinstatement from Benjamin Slutsky, owner of the Nevele Hotel in Ellenville and a member of the bridge authority. The news apparently was received Wednesday night.

Slutsky, who is in New York City on business and could not be reached, allegedly pushed for Procor's return to the job.

Criticized by Resnick

After learning of the suspension last week, Congressman Joseph Y. Resnick termed the action "callous and a shocking disregard of an employe's basic rights." The congressman demanded that Proctor be immediately reinstated and Burns reprimanded.

In Washington Resnick said last night that he was elated that Proctor's problem had been resolved. He noted that humanitarian considerations had prompted the bridge worker's reinstatement.

Beacon Votes Pay Hike for Public Servants

Beacon city police and fire truck drivers were voted across-the-board pay increases of $500 and fringe benefits on Tuesday. The vote in favor was 2,163 and 1,548 voted against the proposal.

Under the former pay plan, patrolmen and fire drivers started at $5,400 a year and reached a maximum of $6,800 after five years.

Officials estimated that the increase, plus fringe benefits would raise the tax rate $1.72 above the present $45.21 per $1,000 of assessed valuation.

Earlier this week the Beacon City Council slashed by 44 per cent pay raises proposed for themselves Mayor Charles Wolf said at the time it was feared the plan would have an adverse affect on the proposal for police and fire raises in salary.

Fourth Vote Tuesday

Questions, Answers on Rhinebeck School Budget

By LYNN MULVANEY

Why, when the state pays 90 per cent of the cost, can't Rhinebeck's school children have bus transportation?

Why are athletic and textbook expenses lumped together in the school budget?

Why isn't the cost of supporting the school band listed in the budget among co-curricular activity costs?

These and many other questions which have perhaps contributed along with a proposed higher school tax rate to the three-time defeat of the budget, are being answered.

On Austerity Budget

A program of public information fostered by both the Board of Education and a citizen's committee has been instituted in hopes that an enlightened public may, next Tuesday when it ballots a fourth time, pass a budget.

Rhinebeck has been operating for several months on an austerity program which has denied the school children many services.

A committee of interested citizens, headed by Richard May, has prepared a list of questions and answers relating to the addition of five items to the school budget.

The Facts

They are: 1. Why isn't science fair transportation expense provided for under transportation?

Answer—Budgeting for this item appears under field trip expense. This activity was dropped following the June defeat of the budget.

2. Why can't the children have transportation without a vote? The state pays 90 per cent. Also, the cafeteria which is self-supporting?

Answer—The state pays 90 per cent of transportation within the limits it sets. At the present, because the contingency budget was not sanctioned by voters, the limit was set at two and three miles. If the budget were approved the state would provide aid for one and one-half mile trips. Service beyond this limit must be paid entirely by the school district.

The state does not consider the cafeteria self-supporting because it gives aid to the program, this year in the amount of $9,000.

3. Please explain co-curricular activities. Only partial expenses are shown in the budget. Band is listed but the expense is not budgeted.

Answer—Co-curricular activities are extra programs. Some cost money while others don't. Most of the clubs do not require money. Senior plays and band competitions do. However, other band expenses are part of the instructional program and are budgeted for under that heading.

4. Will a vote for an $800 cafeteria expense mean a hot lunch program or just a milk program?

Answer—A vote for "Item Four" means the entire hot lunch program.

5. If the voter should turn down the proposal for instructional supply costs, will that item be voted again separating textbook and athletic supplies?

Answer—"It is not possible to give an answer to this question at this time," according to May.

If the instructional service item is not passed, then the athletic transportation would remain unspent and would be added to next year's budget as surplus.

6. Why are athletic expenses combined with textbooks and library expenses?

Answer—Athletics and physical education are considered part of the instructional program along with textbooks and other needed supplies. All such instructional expenses are budgeted under a single heading as prescribed by the practices of the state.

The questions and answers are among many solicited by the citizen's group through the employment of "question boxes" distributed at various business places in the community in recent weeks.

$53,641 Increase

Voters will go to the polls Nov. 14 to vote on an increase of $53,641.50 to the austerity budget of $1,300,677.61. Actually the increases amounts to less than that figure, or, $49,892.27 since the delay in budgeting since June has caused a decrease in projected expenses.

Troopers Arrest Motorists for Drunk Driving

Highland State Police early today arrested two motorists on charges of driving motor vehicles while intoxicated.

Rosaire Powlin, 23, of Quebec and Highland, was cited by Troopers Edward Pulver and Philip Koenig after he was stopped on Route 9W at the traffic circle. He also was charged with driving the wrong way around the circle.

Powlin, according to Trooper John Crodelle, refused to submit to a blood test. He was released in $50 bail by Justice of the Peace Linn Baker, Town of Lloyd, and hearing was adjourned until Jan. 9, 1968. The alleged violations occurred at 3 a. m.

John Benjamin Conn, 67, of Grand Street, Marlboro, was arrested at 4:45 a. m. on Route 9W in Marlboro by Troopers Pulver and Koenig. Troopers arraigned Conn before Justice of the Peace Patrick Mataraza, Town of Marlboro, on a drunken driving charge. Hearing was adjourned until Saturday, Nov. 25. Conn, who submitted to a blood test, was released pending disposition of the case.

Hanging Objects Is Easy With Handy Fasteners

By MR. FIX

Hanging a picture or a mirror or fastening a shelf on a wall are jobs that can be approached with a feeling bordering on panic. There is an awareness that one simply doesn't drive a nail into the wall and then hope for the best.

There are visions of broken plaster, torn wallpaper and cracked concrete. Or perhaps one does try driving a nail and dimly remembering something about locating the joists, goes about pounding the wall listening for a solid sound.

Ingenious wall fasteners are available that will handle almost any situation. It is worth your time now and then to browse among store counters for them.

One of the simplest is adhesive-backed, made of cloth with a metal hook on it. This is strictly in the lihgtweight class, but it goes up fast and won't mar your walls.

The cloth is soaked in water and the whole affair is applied to the wall. In 20 minutes, it's ready to use. To remove, soak with water and peel off.

Matching hooks are available for the backs of pictures.

Replace Toothpicks

Toothpicks used to be placed between ceramic tiles to properly space them when they were being installed. Now domestically made wall and floor tiles come equipped with built-in spacing lugs, known as "ears," on their edges, says the Tile Council of America.

The Green Thumb

By George Abraham

HOUSE PLANT CARE: If your plants have been growing outdoors, chances are they are tall and gawky, big as a bush. Rather than lug the whole plant indoors sometimes it's better to start new plants from cuttings. You don't need elaborate equipment. Just a 10 inch clay pot filled with sand. Put a small pot in the center, with its drainage hole plugged with a cork. The small pot acts as a reservoir, allowing the sand to be kept uniformly moistened by the simple process of seepage. Take tip cuttings from your geraniums, fuchtsia, coleus, and other plants, insert them into the sand. Most cuttings ("slips") can be three to four inches long. Remove the lower leaves from each cutting to prevent rotting. The double-pot propagator is good for starting all kinds of house plants, but the secret for success is to keep the sand moistened at all times. One or two dryings will cause the cuttings to shrivel.

Newly made cuttings should be shaded with paper or cloth for three or four days after being placed in the propagator. Do not expose to bright sunlight until well rooted. If a plastic tent is placed over the pot it will maintain a moist atmosphere, necessary for rooting.

CLUMP BIRCH: This handsome ornamental causes a lot of distress, mainly because of its susceptibility to leaf miners, aphids and borers. Leaf miners can be checked by using Lindane in early May, or you can scatter a "systemic" material on the base of the tree. It's absorbed by the plant sap and kills the miners. Borers are difficult to check, once they get inside. Cut out any dead wood, and burn it. Also keep the tree sprayed with malathion.

CHECK CHICKWEED: While handpulling is an easy way to get rid of chickweed in local spots, chemical control is simpler in large areas. Use 2, 4-D trade names. It's also effective against Pursulane (commonly called "pussley").

WINDOW SILL TOMATOES: For winter enjoyment, try growing yourself a few cherry tomatoes. Take a pot of soil (sand, peat and loam, sow a few seeds in and cover lightly with peatmoss. Within a week they'll sprout, and when about 1 inch tall pull out all but 2 or 3, or better still, transplant them to extra pots for your friends. They like a bright window, ample moisture. Aphids and white flies may be a problem. Spray outdoors with malathion.

GREEN THUMB CLINIC: Please tell me if I can leave my fuchsia, geranium and azalea outdoors or should they be brought in?"

Answer: Geraniums, azaleas, and other tender items should be brought in for the winter. Hydrangea (florist type) can be brought indoors, left in the basement (watered sparingly) during the winter. Then in spring, set the plant outdoors where it will bloom. The florist azalea is not hardy, nor is the hydrangea.

On the House

By ANDY LANG
AP Newsfeatures

The concept of "open" planning in the modern house serves its purpose of creating an illusion of extra space. Where two rooms are not separated by full partitions and doors, there seems to be more total area than if each room were viewed by itself.

In many cases, however, there is a desire to indicate some sort of dividing line, especially when the rooms serve different functions. Hence, the popuarity of so-called dividers which show the line of demarcation but do not block the vista.

One way to handle the problem from a visual standpoint is to use a different type of flooring in each area—or the same kind of flooring with an insert between the two. This can be done very effectively with resilient flooring, either tiles or the continuous surface type.

If, for example, a homeowner wished to keep his adjoining dining room and living room wide open, with no conventional room divider, yet keep them separated in some way, he can do it with resilient tiles of different designs, colors or sizes. The large-size tiles presumably would be more appropriate for the living room, the small for the dining room. (You can get Andy Lang's booklet, "Installing Resilient Floor Tiles," by sending 25 cents and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to Know-How, P.O. Box 954, Jamaica, N.Y. 11431.)

Clay Pots Produce Top Plants

Some timely Fall advice for the country's millions of indoor plant enthusiasts turns up in a recent survey of top U.S. pot plant growers, conducted by the National Clay Pot Manufactureres.

Nearly 77 per cent of the floral crop growers responding to the survey stated they used red clay pots to grow and finish from 95 to 100 per cent of their plants.

About 95 per cent of the professional growers responding said they preferred clay pots because of their porosity, which merits better constant drainage and continuous leaching out of excess harmful salts. Porosity was also cited by 90 per cent of the "pros" as making it easier to water plants without danger of over-watering or "drowning" roots. This same quality provides better aeration through pot wall and permits the porous clay containers to pick up moisture from below by natural capillary action.

Tree Talk

For most areas in the eastern states north of Florida the days between Halloween and Thanksgiving Day are the days of the "LAST CALL" for tree care as winter fast approaches. These are the days for the completion of mulching, moving, anti-wilt spraying and the final protection of tender trees and shrubs.

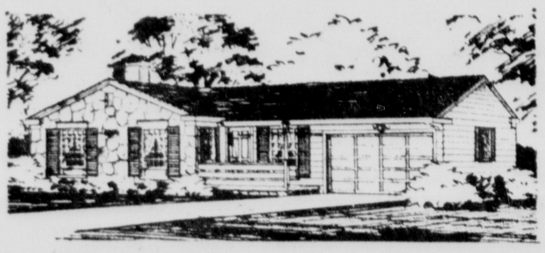

Trees that are dormant are far from dead. According to the men of the Bartlett Tree Research Laboratories a surprising amount of activity goes on in trees—in insects even in some of the animals that are hibernating. It has been shown, for example, that tree roots (below the inhibiting of real frost) put on a surprising amount of growth. And on the south and southwest sides of white pine and other tree trunks there is cell activity when the sun's rays elevate the temperatures locally. Some bark beetles move about and do some feeding under the bark. Squirrels and chipmunks will be seen interrupting their winter sleep from time to time. But after nibbling a few disappointingly cold, dry twigs or buds they sensibly scurry back to the snug warmth of their nests.

This "LAST CALL" time is a good time to plan the pruning of hollies for Christmas greens. It is a good time to prune out obvious dead branches that were hidden by foliage on the maples. What better time to select some trees for removal? Older plantings are almost always overcrowded due to our reluctance to plan ahead. Take out a tree or two and get yourself a Yule Log. Come to think of it — that isn't much of a "do it yourself" type of job for most of us. Better call in a professional arborist who has the equipment and know-how to do the job efficiently. Unless you know more about tree work than most of us you and your trees will look forward to a happier Thanksgiving Day this way.

Hanging Objects Is Easy With Handy Fasteners

By MR. FIX

Hanging a picture or a mirror or fastening a shelf on a wall are jobs that can be approached with a feeling bordering on panic. There is an awareness that one simply doesn't drive a nail into the wall and then hope for the best.

There are visions of broken plaster, torn wallpaper and cracked concrete. Or perhaps one does try driving a nail and dimly remembering something about locating the joists, goes about pounding the wall listening for a solid sound.

Ingenious wall fasteners are available that will handle almost any situation. It is worth your time now and then to browse among store counters for them.

One of the simplest is adhesive-backed, made of cloth with a metal hook on it. This is strictly in the lihgtweight class, but it goes up fast and won't mar your walls.

The cloth is soaked in water and the whole affair is applied to the wall. In 20 minutes, it's ready to use. To remove, soak with water and peel off.

Matching hooks are available for the backs of pictures.

Replace Toothpicks

Toothpicks used to be placed between ceramic tiles to properly space them when they were being installed. Now domestically made wall and floor tiles come equipped with built-in spacing lugs, known as "ears," on their edges, says the Tile Council of America.

The Green Thumb

By George Abraham

HOUSE PLANT CARE: If your plants have been growing outdoors, chances are they are tall and gawky, big as a bush. Rather than lug the whole plant indoors sometimes it's better to start new plants from cuttings. You don't need elaborate equipment. Just a 10 inch clay pot filled with sand. Put a small pot in the center, with its drainage hole plugged with a cork. The small pot acts as a reservoir, allowing the sand to be kept uniformly moistened by the simple process of seepage. Take tip cuttings from your geraniums, fuchtsia, coleus, and other plants, insert them into the sand. Most cuttings ("slips") can be three to four inches long. Remove the lower leaves from each cutting to prevent rotting. The double-pot propagator is good for starting all kinds of house plants, but the secret for success is to keep the sand moistened at all times. One or two dryings will cause the cuttings to shrivel.

Newly made cuttings should be shaded with paper or cloth for three or four days after being placed in the propagator. Do not expose to bright sunlight until well rooted. If a plastic tent is placed over the pot it will maintain a moist atmosphere, necessary for rooting.

CLUMP BIRCH: This handsome ornamental causes a lot of distress, mainly because of its susceptibility to leaf miners, aphids and borers. Leaf miners can be checked by using Lindane in early May, or you can scatter a "systemic" material on the base of the tree. It's absorbed by the plant sap and kills the miners. Borers are difficult to check, once they get inside. Cut out any dead wood, and burn it. Also keep the tree sprayed with malathion.

CHECK CHICKWEED: While handpulling is an easy way to get rid of chickweed in local spots, chemical control is simpler in large areas. Use 2, 4-D trade names. It's also effective against Pursulane (commonly called "pussley").

WINDOW SILL TOMATOES: For winter enjoyment, try growing yourself a few cherry tomatoes. Take a pot of soil (sand, peat and loam, sow a few seeds in and cover lightly with peatmoss. Within a week they'll sprout, and when about 1 inch tall pull out all but 2 or 3, or better still, transplant them to extra pots for your friends. They like a bright window, ample moisture. Aphids and white flies may be a problem. Spray outdoors with malathion.

GREEN THUMB CLINIC: Please tell me if I can leave my fuchsia, geranium and azalea outdoors or should they be brought in?"

Answer: Geraniums, azaleas, and other tender items should be brought in for the winter. Hydrangea (florist type) can be brought indoors, left in the basement (watered sparingly) during the winter. Then in spring, set the plant outdoors where it will bloom. The florist azalea is not hardy, nor is the hydrangea.

On the House

By ANDY LANG
AP Newsfeatures

The concept of "open" planning in the modern house serves its purpose of creating an illusion of extra space. Where two rooms are not separated by full partitions and doors, there seems to be more total area than if each room were viewed by itself.

In many cases, however, there is a desire to indicate some sort of dividing line, especially when the rooms serve different functions. Hence, the popuarity of so-called dividers which show the line of demarcation but do not block the vista.

One way to handle the problem from a visual standpoint is to use a different type of flooring in each area—or the same kind of flooring with an insert between the two. This can be done very effectively with resilient flooring, either tiles or the continuous surface type.

If, for example, a homeowner wished to keep his adjoining dining room and living room wide open, with no conventional room divider, yet keep them separated in some way, he can do it with resilient tiles of different designs, colors or sizes. The large-size tiles presumably would be more appropriate for the living room, the small for the dining room. (You can get Andy Lang's booklet, "Installing Resilient Floor Tiles," by sending 25 cents and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to Know-How, P.O. Box 954, Jamaica, N.Y. 11431.)

Clay Pots Produce Top Plants

Some timely Fall advice for the country's millions of indoor plant enthusiasts turns up in a recent survey of top U.S. pot plant growers, conducted by the National Clay Pot Manufactureres.

Nearly 77 per cent of the floral crop growers responding to the survey stated they used red clay pots to grow and finish from 95 to 100 per cent of their plants.

About 95 per cent of the professional growers responding said they preferred clay pots because of their porosity, which merits better constant drainage and continuous leaching out of excess harmful salts. Porosity was also cited by 90 per cent of the "pros" as making it easier to water plants without danger of over-watering or "drowning" roots. This same quality provides better aeration through pot wall and permits the porous clay containers to pick up moisture from below by natural capillary action.

Tree Talk

For most areas in the eastern states north of Florida the days between Halloween and Thanksgiving Day are the days of the "LAST CALL" for tree care as winter fast approaches. These are the days for the completion of mulching, moving, anti-wilt spraying and the final protection of tender trees and shrubs.

Trees that are dormant are far from dead. According to the men of the Bartlett Tree Research Laboratories a surprising amount of activity goes on in trees—in insects even in some of the animals that are hibernating. It has been shown, for example, that tree roots (below the inhibiting of real frost) put on a surprising amount of growth. And on the south and southwest sides of white pine and other tree trunks there is cell activity when the sun's rays elevate the temperatures locally. Some bark beetles move about and do some feeding under the bark. Squirrels and chipmunks will be seen interrupting their winter sleep from time to time. But after nibbling a few disappointingly cold, dry twigs or buds they sensibly scurry back to the snug warmth of their nests.

This "LAST CALL" time is a good time to plan the pruning of hollies for Christmas greens. It is a good time to prune out obvious dead branches that were hidden by foliage on the maples. What better time to select some trees for removal? Older plantings are almost always overcrowded due to our reluctance to plan ahead. Take out a tree or two and get yourself a Yule Log. Come to think of it — that isn't much of a "do it yourself" type of job for most of us. Better call in a professional arborist who has the equipment and know-how to do the job efficiently. Unless you know more about tree work than most of us you and your trees will look forward to a happier Thanksgiving Day this way.

Science Authorities Will Assist New Ulster Academy in Project

Two eminent figures in science education will come to Kingston Saturday to help the new Ulster Academy to formulate its science curriculum.

The science consultation has been arranged by Raymond A. Nelson, headmaster of the independent secondary school which opens next September. The guests will be Frank Trevor, head of the science department at the Millbrook School, Millbrook, and Prentice K. Stout, chairman of the science department at the Far Hills Country Day School, Far Hills, N. J.

The meeting, to which members of Ulster Academy's board of trustees and their wives have been invited, is set for 1:30 p.m. Saturday in the education building of the Fair Street Reformed Church.

Aims of Meet

According to Nelson, the consultation has been arranged to acquaint the trustees with the latest programs, techniques and texts in the field of secondary school science; to evaluate a curriculum sequence appropriate to Ulster Academy, which in its initial year will offer grades seven through ten; to suggest original programs of study in science for immediate or future consideration; to determine the nature and variety of physical equipment necessary; to develop guide lines for a long-range science development and acquisition plan; to suggest titles for a core science library; and to recommend design of facilities in a given building.

Background in Field

Trevor is a member of the ornithology laboratory at Cornell University, where he had served as acting curator and undergraduate assistant. He has worked with the College Entrance Examination Board on its committee of examiners on biology, advanced placement panel, secondary boards and tests of developed abilities in science. Trevor has been a longtime associate of Roswell Miller and a pioneer in underwater color photography. He has served as marine biology lecturer and consultant for Yale University, the U. S. Navy and private industry.

Stout was graduated from Denison University and has done advanced work at Hunter College and Wesleyan University. He taught at the Hotchkiss School and has served as an instructor in ornithology and lecturer for the Audubon Society. He is the producer of The Broken Chain, an ecological movie, and author of an elementary science text for seventh-graders.

INSTALL NEW ANTENNA — A new addition to the large family of specially engineered antennas at Kingston Cablevision's "head end" in the town of Esopus is being installed by Bill Hart, technician, on the tower. The new array is an effort to reduce cochannel interference being experienced by TV viewers in the area that utilizes the New York city channels, according to William Krajci, manager, who termed the giant installation "another big step" in Cablevision's effort to bring better quality TV viewing to Kingston residents. MRS. ETHEL REILLY

Esopus PM Confirmed in Senate Action

The Senate has confirmed the nomination of Mrs. Ethel M. Reilly as postmaster of Esopus.

Announcement of her nomination by President Johnson was published in The Freeman Oct. 18.

Mrs. Reilly has been acting postmaster in Esopus since June 17 of last year. She replaced Mrs. Alice Jones who retired in December of 1965.

Mrs. Reilly, the former Ethel May VanTassell, is married to David Reilly, an IBM employe.

The couple suffered the loss of their son, James, a Marine private, who was killed in Vietnam, March 1. Pfc. Reilly, only 19 at the time of his death, dove on a Viet Cong hand grenade, saving the life of a buddy.

Pfc. Reilly was awarded the Purple Heart, the Navy Cross and the New York State Conspicuous Service Cross for heroism.

Mr. and Mrs. Reilly have two other sons, David Jr., who served in the Marine Corps and is now at IBM and Dennis, who is in the air force.

Shirley Temple Black in Race

Nine Seek California Seat

REDWOOD CITY, Calif. (AP) — A former Marine who won the Navy Cross, Silver Star and Purple Heart in Korea.

The founder of controversial Ramparts magazine who has the support of actor Robert Vaughn of "The Man From U.N.C.L.E."

The son of a World War II undersecretary of the Army.

A sheriff who wants tougher crime laws.

These are among the nine congressional candidates who think Congress can and should get along without the race's most celebrated entrant: Shirley Temple Black.

They are running in next Tuesday's special election in San Mateo County's 11th Congressional District to fill the vacancy created by the death of Republican Rep. J. Arthur Younger.

The rivals concede that Mrs. Black, the dimple-cheeked child star of the 1930s, is a tough and famous foe. They note that while she is 39, wife of an executive and mother of three teenagers, she has listed herself on the ballot as Shirley Temple Black and not Mrs. Charles Black.

But political observers here doubt that any one of the 10—four Republicans and six Democrats—will get more than 51 percent of the vote. This would mean that the top vote-getter in each party will face each other in a runoff on Dec. 12.

The Vietnam war has become a key issue.

Mrs. Black, a Republican, says the war should be ended quickly and honorably and that the tactics of fighting the war should be left to military leaders.

Some polls put Republican lawyer Paul McCloskey, 40, who was a Marine lieutenant in Korea, in the lead. He opposes the war, and thinks the Geneva accords of 1954 should be enforced. He has the Black camp worried.

Vaughn has joined the battle on behalf of Edward M. Keating, 42, a Democrat, who wants the United States to stop the bombing of North Vietnam and negotiate an end to the war.

The other Republican candidates are Palo Alto businessman William H. Draper III and County Sheriff Earl Whitmore.

Draper, 39, whose father was undersecretary of the army during World War II, went to Vietnam in October and thinks the United States is winning and should not back down.

Whitmore, 49, has won every race for sheriff since 1950 and promises to work in Congress for laws that will make crime "unattractive and unprofitable."

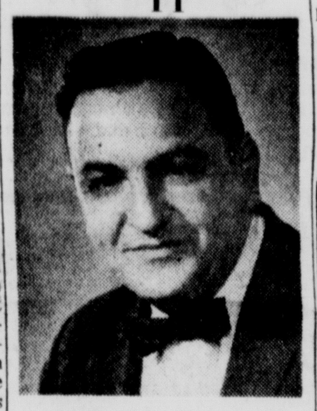

Among the other Democrats, Roy Archibald, 47, for 10 years a city councilman in San Mateo where he also was mayor, is expected to do well.

Patrick F.X. McGucken, 47, a lawyer from Emmitsburg, Md., said he was "a stand-in for President Johnson" but has done no campaigning.

Daniel Monaco, 45, an attorney, also visited Vietnam and wants an unconditional halt in the bombing.

The other Democratic candidates are Bryant McDonald, 55, a real estate man who lost a race for Congress in 1964 as a Republican in San Francisco, and Andrew Baldwin, 40, a teacher.

DA, Banker Head County NCCD Appeal

JOSEPH P. TORRACA

JOSEPH A. FASSBENDER

Joseph P. Torraca, re-elected Ulster County district attorney, has been named chairman of the Ulster County Appeal for the National Council on Crime Delinquency. Appointed to serve as co-chairman was Joseph A. Fassbender of 87 Roosevelt Avenue. Fassbender is treasurer of the Ulster County Savings Bank and has been active in many civic organizations.

Torraca has been district attorney for the past three years and was assistant district attorney for eight years. He is on the executive committee of the New York State District Attorney's Association and is a member of the New York Bar, the National District Attorney's Association as well as the International Narcotics Enforcement Officers Association. He served in World War II as a Naval Intelligence officer and was law investigator with the New York City Police Depart.

NCCD's Ulster County Appeal began this week. The National Council on Crime and Delinquency is a non-profit, non-partisan, private agency that conducts research, sets standards and promotes citizen action programs throughout the country. It works to prevent and control crime and see that criminal offenders receive effective treatment.

Strongly Oppose Plan To Induct Protestors

WASHINGTON (AP) — Justice Department officials reportedly are strongly opposed to a Selective Service System plan to induct antiwar protesters who violate the draft law, rather than use the courts for prosecution and appeal.

Sources also say the Selective Service System, headed by Lt. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, doesn't think the Justice Department is prosecuting vigorously men charged with violating the law.

Hershey's office has prepared for legal study an order that would change the definition of a draft delinquent to cover anyone who destroys his draft card or disrupts the drafting process.

Delinquents are automatically put at the top of induction lists.

Present regulations define a delinquent as one who, for example, fails to carry required draft registration and classification cards.

The Justice Department is said to feel the proposed new regulation would substitute draft boards for courts in cases where the accused seeks to appeal delinquent classification.

In an Oct. 26 letter to local draft boards, Hershey recommended that college students interfering with military recruiting officers be subject to immediate draft.

The American Association of University Professors, which claims 85,000 members, protested Hershey's letter Thursday, saying it "sets down such a vague standard that local boards may induct persons for the exercise of constitutional rights."

Lottery Outlet Appeal Heard by Supervisors

An appeal for more outlets for sale of New York State lottery tickets was made to the Board of Supervisors Thursday night by Edward Lavin, a representative of the State Lottery Commission.

County Building Eyed

Lavin asked the supervisors to consider sale of lottery tickets by the county, towns and villages. He noted the strategic location of the county office building which he said was an ideal place to sell lottery tickets and suggested that one of the county offices on the first floor be designated as a sales place. Lavin pointed out that 55 cents of each dollar taken in went toward education and that a portion of the proceeds from each ticket sold would go toward reduction of local school district tax and the selling agent would retain the sale fee as was done by other sales agencies. He recommended that the supervisors consider town authorization for sale of tickets.

Thursday night's session was the beginning of the annual session. The board voted to suspend Rule 6, Section 7 so that resolutions calling for an appropriation could be voted on the same night as offered.

Routine Business

Other routine business was transacted.

Donald MacCollam, representing Public Employes Local No. 445, asked the Board to act on adoption of Local Law No. 2, 1967, which would authorize the creation of an Ulster County Public Relations Board to hear labor matters.

A resolution offered by Supervisor James Rapp and John Sangaline authorizing the appointment of the three member Ulster County Public Relations Board under Local Law No. 2, 1967, was withdrawn pending further clarification. County Attorney Abram F. Molyneaux is attempting to get this information from the State. A public hearing has been held on the proposed law.

Hanawalt Associates, engaged for the purpose of making a salary and efficiency survey for the employes of Ulster County, were engaged on a time and expense basis to take the necessary steps toward installation of the plan. The cost is not to exceed $2,950. Among the things which the resolution, offered by Chairman Peter Savago, calls for is determining the policies and guidelines that must be applied in making the installation; determining and make a record of "earned longevity" in order to determine longevity increments to be credited as part of the present salary; calculate correct salary under the new salary plan; discuss the above steps with employe groups as desired; interview employes who wish to grieve or ask further questions.

On motion of Supervisor Rapp (R), first ward, withdrawal of the existing bounty on bobcats, gray and red foxes was referred to the Committee on propogation of Game. His resolution would authorize the bounty money to be appropriated to the Ulster County Humane Committee.

Hugh Greer, Ulster County Fire Inspector, filed a report of inspection of the County Infirmary in which he made certain minor recommendations.

Communications Read

Communications were read from several residents of the Alligerville area in regard to shelving the plan to construct a county highway through a portion of the old D & H canal bed in that area which would destroy the historic Peter Davis basin.

The board authorized the disposal of certain old records at the TB Hospital which may be disposed of under the law after the elapse of a certain number of years. Removal of TB patients to the Homer Folks State Hospital at Oneonta and closing of the local TB hospital facility makes retention of the records no longer necessary.

On recommendation of County Treasurer Fred H. DuBois the sum of $2,300 was transferred from one account to another to provide monies for payment of hospitalization of patients at the Homer Folks Hospital in Oneonta. The county cost is $5 per day per patient.

The board also approved a resolution by Supervisor Douglas Dye, (R) Kingston, for transfer of the sum of $13,576 to pay the bill from Orange County for confinement of Ulster County prisoners at the Orange County Jail. Overflow prisoners are housed in the Orange County Jail.

Supervisor Irving Bell, 6th ward Democrat, withdrew a resolution calling for creation of a permanent Ulster County Air Pollution Commission of seven members.

The board adjourned to Thursday, Nov. 16 at 8 p. m. out of respect to the memory of Justice of the Peace Allan Dargie of town of Esopus who died Oct. 30.

Mt. Beacon Rail Terminal Lost In Blast, Fire

BEACON, N.Y. (AP) — Three explosions and resultant fire destroyed the ground-level terminal of the Mt. Beacon Incline Railway and one of its two cable cars at 2 a.m. today.

The blazing car that was in the terminal went up the 1,800-foot track for about 100 feet.

The other car, attached to the single cable, came down the same distance from the terminal at a 700-foot altitude, and then the emergency brake took hold, stopping both cars.

The 50-year-old railway, whose operators claim has the steepest incline in the world, is a tourist attraction near the Hudson River about 65 miles north of mid-Manhattan.

Firemen and police said the cause of the explosions was not known. No official estimate of damage was available.

Communications Experts Meeting

Educational communications experts convened Tuesday at Grossingers Hotel in Liberty to discuss improvements in teaching and learning processes through the utilization of technology, it was reported.

Michael Kaufman, director of Educational Communications, Board of Cooperative Educational Services, New Paltz, made the announcement. He said the group would meet through Friday.

During the convocation, 73 sessions will be held dealing with topics such as libraries, use of video tape, recorders and programmed instructional materials.

About 41 per cent of women who have ever been married were first married before their 20th birthday, the Census Bureau reports.

Lottery Outlet Appeal Heard by Supervisors

An appeal for more outlets for sale of New York State lottery tickets was made to the Board of Supervisors Thursday night by Edward Lavin, a representative of the State Lottery Commission.

County Building Eyed

Lavin asked the supervisors to consider sale of lottery tickets by the county, towns and villages. He noted the strategic location of the county office building which he said was an ideal place to sell lottery tickets and suggested that one of the county offices on the first floor be designated as a sales place. Lavin pointed out that 55 cents of each dollar taken in went toward education and that a portion of the proceeds from each ticket sold would go toward reduction of local school district tax and the selling agent would retain the sale fee as was done by other sales agencies. He recommended that the supervisors consider town authorization for sale of tickets.

Thursday night's session was the beginning of the annual session. The board voted to suspend Rule 6, Section 7 so that resolutions calling for an appropriation could be voted on the same night as offered.

Routine Business

Other routine business was transacted.

Donald MacCollam, representing Public Employes Local No. 445, asked the Board to act on adoption of Local Law No. 2, 1967, which would authorize the creation of an Ulster County Public Relations Board to hear labor matters.

A resolution offered by Supervisor James Rapp and John Sangaline authorizing the appointment of the three member Ulster County Public Relations Board under Local Law No. 2, 1967, was withdrawn pending further clarification. County Attorney Abram F. Molyneaux is attempting to get this information from the State. A public hearing has been held on the proposed law.

Hanawalt Associates, engaged for the purpose of making a salary and efficiency survey for the employes of Ulster County, were engaged on a time and expense basis to take the necessary steps toward installation of the plan. The cost is not to exceed $2,950. Among the things which the resolution, offered by Chairman Peter Savago, calls for is determining the policies and guidelines that must be applied in making the installation; determining and make a record of "earned longevity" in order to determine longevity increments to be credited as part of the present salary; calculate correct salary under the new salary plan; discuss the above steps with employe groups as desired; interview employes who wish to grieve or ask further questions.

On motion of Supervisor Rapp (R), first ward, withdrawal of the existing bounty on bobcats, gray and red foxes was referred to the Committee on propogation of Game. His resolution would authorize the bounty money to be appropriated to the Ulster County Humane Committee.

Hugh Greer, Ulster County Fire Inspector, filed a report on inspection of the County Infirmary in which he made certain minor recommendations.

Communications Read

Communications were read from several residents of the Alligerville area in regard to shelving the plan to construct a county highway through a portion of the old D & H canal bed in that area which would destroy the historic Peter Davis basin.

The board authorized the disposal of certain old records at the TB Hospital which may be disposed of under the law after the elapse of a certain number of years. Removal of TB patients to the Homer Folks State Hospital at Oneonta and closing of the local TB hospital facility makes retention of the records no longer necessary.

On recommendation of County Treasurer Fred H. DuBois the sum of $2,300 was transferred from one account to another to provide monies for payment of hospitalization of patients at the Homer Folks Hospital in Oneonta. The county cost is $5 per day per patient.

The board also approved a resolution by Supervisor Douglas Dye, (R) Kingston, for transfer of the sum of $13,576 to pay the bill from Orange County for confinement of Ulster County prisoners at the Orange County Jail. Overflow prisoners are housed in the Orange County Jail.

Supervisor Irving Bell, 6th ward Democrat, withdrew a resolution calling for creation of a permanent Ulster County Air Pollution Commission of seven members.

The board adjourned to Thursday, Nov. 16 at 8 p. m. out of respect to the memory of Justice of the Peace Allan Dargie of town of Esopus who died Oct. 30.

Mt. Beacon Rail Terminal Lost In Blast, Fire

BEACON, N.Y. (AP) — Three explosions and resultant fire destroyed the ground-level terminal of the Mt. Beacon Incline Railway and one of its two cable cars at 2 a.m. today.

The blazing car that was in the terminal went up the 1,800-foot track for about 100 feet.

The other car, attached to the single cable, came down the same distance from the terminal at a 700-foot altitude, and then the emergency brake took hold, stopping both cars.

The 50-year-old railway, whose operators claim has the steepest incline in the world, is a tourist attraction near the Hudson River about 65 miles north of mid-Manhattan.

Firemen and police said the cause of the explosions was not known. No official estimate of damage was available.

JEANNE, 'HAPPY' AND CAMERAMEN
(Freeman Photo by Powell.)

Pretty, Talkative and Vivacious Jeanne Fox Overcomes Blindness

By RAY W. TYSON

Jeanne Fox is pretty, talkative, vivacious—and blind.

It would be a tragedy except she doesn't make it so. In fact, she has just completed filming the final sequences of a movie concerning seeing-eye dogs. Jeanne believes her seeing-eye dog is the only such one in Kingston and she feels that this is a shame.

Jeanne, who resides with her parents at 33 Grandview Avenue and works as a secretary in her father's real estate business, recently said, "You can't imagine the freedom this dog permits," indicating a brown Boxer asleep on the floor.

"There are so many blind people around here who think it's quite an accomplishment just to go to the mail box. My dog allows me to go Downtown, take walks and even go to church," she declared.

Jeanne, now 22 years old, lost her sight suddenly. She said, "I awoke one morning and my vision was blurred. Two months later I was totally blind."

Nearly two years have passed since that morning. First she learned braille and use of a cane at a school in Syracuse. But dissatisfied with being confined, Jeanne sought a dog.

"I can't say enough about my dog," she stated, scratching the animal's ears.

"Happy," her sight-seeing dog, was acquired through the Seeing Eye School in Morristown, N. J., the oldest institution of its type in America. Devoted to the training and use of seeing-eye dogs, the school has aided untold hundreds in living a normal and productive life.

Describes Rigors

Jeanne described the rigors and fundamentals involved in the acquisition of such a dog. "When you first go to Morristown," she said, "you spend three and a half weeks. You arise at 5:30 a.m. and work until after dark. The entire time is spent learning about your dog."

Jeanne said the school operates two classes at a time. She recalled that eight persons are in each section and that the dogs are given to the pupil two daws after arrival.

"The pupil has no choice in selecting which animal will serve as their companion. Dog and master are determined by experts who try to match the dog's personality with the owner's. Preliminary paper work is one of the factors used to determine ownership," Jeanne said.

Traditionally German Shepherds were used as the primary breed for leading the blind. But Boxers, Labrador Retrievers and Golden Retrievers are also used.

Jeanne noted that the dogs are placed in a 4-H family at birth. She explained that this was necessary to acquaint them with people. At one year they are turned over to the school and then trained for seven months.

Tells of Training

Jeanne disclosed that most of the training dealt with commands, harness and leash. After the first three and a half weeks the dogs are taken home, she said. Later pupil and dog return to the school to be checked for adjustment.

Wednesday, Jeanne completed filming a movie to be used by the Seeing Eye for informational purposes. Many of its sequences were shot in Kingston.

The film will be offered for presentation to television as a public service and special audiences interested in learning about seeing-eye dogs. Jeanne said the film would not be used for fund-raising. She noted the institution was completely self-supporting.

The movie, shot in color and slated to run 26 minutes, is directed by Dennis Knife of the Wolper group. It will be available eventually in the Kingston area.

For Jeanne, who attended Kingston High School and graduated from Ulster County Community College, the dog has given her the freedom and independence once denied the sightless.

Lottery Ticket Sales Test Set In Supermarkets

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — New York State residents would be able to purchase lottery tickets at supermarkets under an experiment planned by the State Tax Department.

The state agency says it plans a test run to determine the "sales potential" of lottery tickets in places with high pedestrian traffic.

These would include drugstores, newstands, supermarkets and department stores, a spokesman for the state agency said.

The test, which will begin in a few days, will be conducted over a three-week period.

Tax Department personnel, the spokesman said, will work out of offices in Albany, Binghamton, Buffalo, New York City, Mineola, White Plaines, Utica, Watertown, Rochester and Syracuse. They will set up ticket booths in one location for a few days, then move elsewhere.

The study results would be used to demonstrate the sales potential of the lottery tickets, in the event that the Legislature considered expanding the number of outlets, he said.

A bill has been passed in the House of Representatives to prohibit banks from selling state lottery tickets. Banks currently sell most of the tickets, and are among the few types of outlets permitted under state law.

Republicans Plan Battle On Social Security Hike

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate Republicans vow a floor fight against a proposed record boost in Social Security benefits they contend has a financing feature pegged to help Democrats in the 1968 elections.

The $3.6 billion measure to provide 15 per cent benefit hikes cleared the Senate Finance Committee on a party-line, 11-6 vote Thursday. Chairman Russell B. Long, D-La., predicted quick approval for the measure when the Senate takes it up, probably next week.

The bill would boost benefits beginning next April—before November's presidential race—but wouldn't increase Social Security taxes until January 1969.

That financing schedule was called irresponsible and politically motivated by Sen. John J. Williams of Delaware, senior Republican on the Finance Committee. He predicted stiff GOP opposition aimed at reducing the hike in benefits to the 12½ per cent level already approved by the House.

Senate GOP Leader Everett M. Dirksen, indicating the line Republicans will take in opposing the measure, called it a "fly now, pay later" scheme.

Under the Senate committee bill, the present payroll tax rate of 4.4 per cent for employe and employer would be continued through 1968. The taxable wage base would be broadened effective next Jan. 1 from $6,600 to $8,000.

Thus a worker earning at least $8,000 and his employer each would pay a maximum of $352 next year in Social Security taxes compared with the current $290.40 maximum.

The bill provides that beginning in 1969 the tax rate would be raised to 4.8 per cent and the wage base would go up to $8,800, with other increases scheduled in future years.

In addition to the 15 per cent hike in benefit levels the bill would raise the minimum Social Security payment from $44 monthly to $70, a 59 per cent increase.

The House bill, passed in August, would raise the minimum monthly payment to $50. Like the Senate bill, this legislation would also maintain the 4.4 per cent payroll tax through next year but would provide a wage base of only $7,600.

Both House and Senate bills would let Social Security retirement beneficiaries earn a maximum of $1,680 annually next year and $2,000 starting in 1969, compared with the present $1,500 limit.

Other provisions in the Senate bill would reject the House-approved freeze on the number of recipients under the Aid to Dependent Children program, liberalize House provisions that would force mothers on welfare with small children to work or take job training and increase federal matching funds voted by the House for birth control counseling.

Man Accused Of Removing Mobile Home

Accused of removing a mobile home from a trailer park in Leeds and abandoning it off Route 23 opposite the State Police barracks, Edward Corrin, 33, operator of the park was arrested Thursday on a warrant issued by Justice of the Peace George E. Carl, Town of Catskill.

State Police said Corrin was charged with harrassment and criminal tampering, second degree. Corrin pleaded innocent before Judge Carl and the hearing was adjourned to Friday, Nov. 17 at 8 p. m. Corrin posted $200 bail.

The complaint was made by Frank J. Tefft, a disabled veteran and father of seven children, whose ages range from two to 19 years.

Tefft's wife told a reporter that she and her husband and children left their home in Corrin's Trailer Park on Route 23 at Leeds at 10:15 a. m. on Sunday and returned at about 11:30 p. m. to find their home trailer missing. On Monday, Mrs. Tefft said she and her husband saw the trailer abandoned off Route 23 opposite the Leeds state troopers station. Troopers said the trailer was there this morning.

Mrs. Teffts said the rent had been paid up to Dec. 1. She said as the result of the incident the family of nine had to stay at the home of her mother, Mrs. Ruth Strother in Leeds. The dimensions of the home trailer are 12 by 55 feet, according to Mrs. Tefft.

BOCES in Service Phase One Finale

The last meeting in a special series of four inservice workshops designed to focus on the "Arts" will be held Nov. 14 at the BOCES Educational Center. Consultants at this session will be Dale Stein and Maurice Brown of the SUNY, New Paltz faculty. The theme of this series is Art As a Way of Life. All of the participants have focused upon the concept of opening the doors to further direct communications between the schools, the "art world," and the professional artist.

Representatives from all of the Central Schools of Ulster County as well as visitors from neighboring counties enthusiastically participated in many lively discussions at the three initial meetings of this series. One of the signs of the success of this program is reflected in the fact that the "word" spread so that the enrollment went from eighteen members at the first to 28 participants at the third session last week.

Quality Control Meets Tuesday

Duties of Executor Noted by Local Bank

When a man makes his will he must name an executor to carry out its provision. The duties of the executor involve the assembling of the money, securities, and any other property which the decedent left, complying with the necessary legal formalities, paying death taxes and other items incident to estate administration, and paying out the legacies in accordance with the terms of the will.

The Kingston Trust Co., in addition to its usual duties of an executor, advises families on how to cope with the problems ahead. The local banking firm, a spokesman said, "prides itself on dealing with people — not merely accounts."

This is one of the intangibles found in naming or recommending Kingston Trust as executor or trustee under wills, he added. "It is the policy of Kingston Trust," he continued "to have the necessary legal work done by the family attorney who prepared the will."

The person who makes a will is called a testator, and the real purpose of naming an executor in the will is to have someone "execute" the wishes of the testator as expressed in the will.

The financial result for the surviving wife and family depends in a large measure upon the executor's knowledge and experience. The fact that a man made a success in his own business or profession by no means insures his success as an estate executor, for estate administration is in many respects highly technical and involves requirements and procedures unfamiliar to persons who have not had previous experience in estate work.

The executor must make sure the deceased person's income and gift taxes have been paid. Federal estate tax and state inheritance tax returns must be filed. The executor must have available at all times all the necessary financial information about the securities and other property in the estate. If he is preoccupied by his own business affairs or becomes ill, or has to go out of town for long periods, the administration of the estate will be correspondingly delayed and the family will suffer as a result. The importance of naming a well qualified executor in the will, therefore, cannot be too strongly emphasized.

An inexperienced executor can cause the estate all kinds of loss. Sometimes if the loss is clearly due to the executor's negligence, the executor must make good out of his own pocket. More often, however, the losses are chargeable to poor business judgment, to the absence or illness of the executor at a critical moment, or because of wasted motion or the engaging of useless services. In most of these instances nobody comes to the estate's aid, and the beneficiaries suffer. When the estate is that of a husband and provider, the widow and children take the loss.

Acting as executor is one of many functions of the bank's trust department, and its trust officer and his associates are thoroughly experienced in the work. In some instances the bank is the sole executor, while in others it is named as co-executor to serve with a surviving wife or other member of the family.

Asks to Revamp N.Y. Central Rail Structure

NEW YORK (AP) — The New York Central Railroad said it would ask the Public Service Commission for permission to completely restructure its passenger services in New York State.

The railroad's new plan provides for service between New York City and Albany every two hours beginning at 8:30 a.m. each day through 10:30 p.m.

The plan also calls for service every four hours during the same period between Albany and Buffalo.

The new schedules are the result of a marketing study "to determine the customers' needs and the service pattern to meet these needs," a line spokesman said.

Central President Alfred E. Perlman said the new service "will provide convenient, comfortable, fast, on-time passenger service for the people of the State of New York."

Under the new proposal, the 6:30 p.m. westbound train from New York City would provide overnight sleeping car and coach service to Chicago, Detroit and Toronto. Through cars for coach and sleeping car passengers from the Boston & Albany line would be included in this train from Albany.

The 10:30 p.m. departure from New York would be used for the movement of Cleveland and Montreal sleepers, mail and coach passengers within New York State. 3

The westbound Albany departures would be at 7:15 a.m., 11:15 a.m., 3:15 p.m. and 5:15 p.m. These trains would arrive in Syracuse two hours and 15 minutes later on the half hour and in Buffalo two and one-half hours later on the hour.

The proposed Central eastbound service to New York would leave Buffalo at 6:30 a.m., 10:30 a.m. and 12:30 p.m. Service to Albany would be provided by a 5:30 p.m. departure from Buffalo.

The railroad said the 10:30 p.m. westbound train from New York and the 4:30 a.m. eastbound train from Albany would provide buffet-lounge service All other through trains in both directions will be equipped to provide food and beverages.

A Central spokesman said the marketing study showed that the vast majority of travel within New York State is done between the hours of 7 a.m. and 8 p.m., but present long-distance travel schedules are timed for departures and arrivals at locations beyond the state.

Pretty, Talkative and Vivacious Jeanne Fox Overcomes Blindness

By RAY W. TYSON

Jeanne Fox is pretty, talkative, vivacious—and blind.

It would be a tragedy except she doesn't make it so. In fact, she has just completed filming the final sequences of a movie concerning seeing-eye dogs. Jeanne believes her seeing-eye dog is the only such one in Kingston and she feels that this is a shame.

Jeanne, who resides with her parents at 33 Grandview Avenue and works as a secretary in her father's real estate business, recently said, "You can't imagine the freedom this dog permits," indicating a brown Boxer asleep on the floor.

"There are so many blind people around here who think it's quite an accomplishment just to go to the mail box. My dog allows me to go Downtown, take walks and even go to church," she declared.

Jeanne, now 22 years old, lost her sight suddenly. She said, "I awoke one morning and my vision was blurred. Two months later I was totally blind."

Nearly two years have passed since that morning. First she learned braille and use of a cane at a school in Syracuse. But dissatisfied with being confined, Jeanne sought a dog.

"I can't say enough about my dog," she stated, scratching the animal's ears.

"Happy," her sight-seeing dog, was acquired through the Seeing Eye School in Morristown, N. J., the oldest institution of its type in America. Devoted to the training and use of seeing-eye dogs, the school has aided untold hundreds in living a normal and productive life.

Describes Rigors

Jeanne described the rigors and fundamentals involved in the acquisition of such a dog. "When you first go to Morristown," she said, "you spend three and a half weeks. You arise at 5:30 a.m. and work until after dark. The entire time is spent learning about your dog."

Jeanne said the school operates two classes at a time. She recalled that eight persons are in each section and that the dogs are given to the pupil two daws after arrival.

"The pupil has no choice in selecting which animal will serve as their companion. Dog and master are determined by experts who try to match the dog's personality with the owner's. Preliminary paper work is one of the factors used to determine ownership," Jeanne said.

Traditionally German Shepherds were used as the primary breed for leading the blind. But Boxers, Labrador Retrievers and Golden Retrievers are also used.

Jeanne noted that the dogs are placed in a 4-H family at birth. She explained that this was necessary to acquaint them with people. At one year they are turned over to the school and then trained for seven months.

Tells of Training

Jeanne disclosed that most of the training dealt with commands, harness and leash. After the first three and a half weeks the dogs are taken home, she said. Later pupil and dog return to the school to be checked for adjustment.

Wednesday, Jeanne completed filming a movie to be used by the Seeing Eye for informational purposes. Many of its sequences were shot in Kingston.

The film will be offered for presentation to television as a public service and special audiences interested in learning about seeing-eye dogs. Jeanne said the film would not be used for fund-raising. She noted the institution was completely self-supporting.

The movie, shot in color and slated to run 26 minutes, is directed by Dennis Knife of the Wolper group. It will be available eventually in the Kingston area.

For Jeanne, who attended Kingston High School and graduated from Ulster County Community College, the dog has given her the freedom and independence once denied the sightless.

Republicans Plan Battle On Social Security Hike

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate Republicans vow a floor fight against a proposed record boost in Social Security benefits they contend has a financing feature pegged to help Democrats in the 1968 elections.

The $3.6 billion measure to provide 15 per cent benefit hikes cleared the Senate Finance Committee on a party-line, 11-6 vote Thursday. Chairman Russell B. Long, D-La., predicted quick approval for the measure when the Senate takes it up, probably next week.

The bill would boost benefits beginning next April—before November's presidential race—but wouldn't increase Social Security taxes until January 1969.

That financing schedule was called irresponsible and politically motivated by Sen. John J. Williams of Delaware, senior Republican on the Finance Committee. He predicted stiff GOP opposition aimed at reducing the hike in benefits to the 12½ per cent level already approved by the House.

Senate GOP Leader Everett M. Dirksen, indicating the line Republicans will take in opposing the measure, called it a "fly now, pay later" scheme.

Under the Senate committee bill, the present payroll tax rate of 4.4 per cent for employe and employer would be continued through 1968. The taxable wage base would be broadened effective next Jan. 1 from $6,600 to $8,000.

Thus a worker earning at least $8,000 and his employer each would pay a maximum of $352 next year in Social Security taxes compared with the current $290.40 maximum.

The bill provides that beginning in 1969 the tax rate would be raised to 4.8 per cent and the wage base would go up to $8,800, with other increases scheduled in future years.

In addition to the 15 per cent hike in benefit levels the bill would raise the minimum Social Security payment from $44 monthly to $70, a 59 per cent increase.

The House bill, passed in August, would raise the minimum monthly payment to $50. Like the Senate bill, this legislation would also maintain the 4.4 per cent payroll tax through next year but would provide a wage base of only $7,600.

Both House and Senate bills would let Social Security retirement beneficiaries earn a maximum of $1,680 annually next year and $2,000 starting in 1969, compared with the present $1,500 limit.

Other provisions in the Senate bill would reject the House-approved freeze on the number of recipients under the Aid to Dependent Children program, liberalize House provisions that would force mothers on welfare with small children to work or take job training and increase federal matching funds voted by the House for birth control counseling.

Lottery Ticket Sales Test Set In Supermarkets

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — New York State residents would be able to purchase lottery tickets at supermarkets under an experiment planned by the State Tax Department.

The state agency says it plans a test run to determine the "sales potential" of lottery tickets in places with high pedestrian traffic.

These would include drugstores, newstands, supermarkets and department stores, a spokesman for the state agency said.

The test, which will begin in a few days, will be conducted over a three-week period.

Tax Department personnel, the spokesman said, will work out of offices in Albany, Binghamton, Buffalo, New York City, Mineola, White Plaines, Utica, Watertown, Rochester and Syracuse. They will set up ticket booths in one location for a few days, then move elsewhere.

The study results would be used to demonstrate the sales potential of the lottery tickets, in the event that the Legislature considered expanding the number of outlets, he said.

A bill has been passed in the House of Representatives to prohibit banks from selling state lottery tickets. Banks currently sell most of the tickets, and are among the few types of outlets permitted under state law.

Man Accused Of Removing Mobile Home

Accused of removing a mobile home from a trailer park in Leeds and abandoning it off Route 23 opposite the State Police barracks, Edward Corrin, 33, operator of the park was arrested Thursday on a warrant issued by Justice of the Peace George E. Carl, Town of Catskill.

State Police said Corrin was charged with harrassment and criminal tampering, second degree. Corrin pleaded innocent before Judge Carl and the hearing was adjourned to Friday, Nov. 17 at 8 p. m. Corrin posted $200 bail.

The complaint was made by Frank J. Tefft, a disabled veteran and father of seven children, whose ages range from two to 19 years.

Tefft's wife told a reporter that she and her husband and children left their home in Corrin's Trailer Park on Route 23 at Leeds at 10:15 a. m. on Sunday and returned at about 11:30 p. m. to find their home trailer missing. On Monday, Mrs. Tefft said she and her husband saw the trailer abandoned off Route 23 opposite the Leeds state troopers station. Troopers said the trailer was there this morning.

Mrs. Teffts said the rent had been paid up to Dec. 1. She said as the result of the incident the family of nine had to stay at the home of her mother, Mrs. Ruth Strother in Leeds. The dimensions of the home trailer are 12 by 55 feet, according to Mrs. Tefft.

Area Weekend Movie Fare Is Previewed

CYCLISTS in scene from The Born Losers which is currently being screened at the Community Theatre.

Up, Down Staircase

This movie has been culled from the pages of Bel Kaufman's No. 1 best seller of last year; is now playing at the Woodstock Theatre through Monday and is also on screen at the Lyceum in Red Hook.

Alienation, the central theme of modern literature, is also the theme which has entered into Staircase. And though the film's moral scheme is based on that ever so commonplace battle of good versus evil, the movie succeeds brilliantly in creating memorable figures out of the lower depths of an American "problem area" high school.

Staircase says yes so strongly that it can stir any audience out of its apathy; touches a social nerve that is not new, but can be only a tense undercurrent to those who have never confronted the hostility to conformity embodied in mixed-up youngsters.

The kids in Staircase make their own way and the ones who rebel pay for that rebellion. But, in the end, a handful have been helped toward the development of their consciousness and responsibility and toward taking their places as men and women . . . and more than that cannot be expected in so dense a jungle as Collidge High School, Stairway's crumbling educational fortress on the edge of the metropolitan slums.

Scholmarm Heroine

Through these cold, callous, garbage-strewn streets comes Sandy Dennis, an Academy Award winner who re-creates with considerable grace the tyro schoolmarm of the novel. There is no denying she is excellent in the role of Sylvia Barrett, brand new teacher whose "respectful" students welcome her aboard with the catcall of the streets, "Hi, teach!"

But when all is said and done, and the Dennis professionalism and sometimes too cloying mannerisms are stripped from the script, it is the kids themselves, recruited from those same New York City streets, who carry this film.

Non-professionals all, they are the real stars in the classless society in which they live. If their problems revolve around broken homes, harsh parents, street gangs and poverty in all its guises—including juvenile delinquency—they shed a light on the future. Even though their current education may offer some possible escape, the promise of maturity holds little for a teen-ager, they seem to say. The dull part-time job of today will probably become the duller full-time job of tomorrow, the dull life of the slums can only be exchanged, if at all, for a life of boob tubes, freezers which de-ice and refuse to function, babies and baby sitters, power-driven lawnmowers with broken blades, an annual wage that never quite makes ends meet, taxes and more taxes, too little social security, inadequate hospitalization insurance, platitudinous patriotism, hypocritical idealism . . . and death.

Staircase is a movie that entertains in spite of all this because it has the ring of truth, because it moves, and because it forces the audience to take home an unresolved, disturbing recognition of social difficulties. The fine performances come fast and furiously and, in addition to Miss Dennis and her pupils, Eileen Heckart is superb as another teacher.

Real School Used

By using actual school buildings as backgrounds, the staging has been kept simple—allows the actors' faces and voices to do the work, and illustrates better than any constructed set how a delinquent's hostility to authority is aroused.

Staircase has much humor and is dramatic and disturbing . . . but we can identify with the hatreds and hopes it inspires.

Up the Down Staircase goes on at Woodstock, 7 and 9 p. m. tonight and tomorrow and at 8 o'clock Sunday and Monday. It can be seen in Red Hook at the regular times, except for Saturday and Sunday afternoon at 2 p.m. when "Smokey," based on Will James' story of a once noble horse demoted to pulling a junk wagon, will be seen. In color, this one stars Fess Parker, TV's Daniel Boone.

* * *

The Born Losers

Any resemblance to a film with clarity and a compelling dramatic line will not be found in this movie—all about those vicious cycles and playing at the Community in Kingston tonight, tomorrow and Sunday. The Losers of the title are a bunch of heavy boozing, all shook up motorcyclists who get their kicks by behaving like the hoods they are, mauling women and terrorizing towns. Even the police steer clear of confrontations with these sordid types, and the uneducated riff raff is allowed to lord it over the natives of California and, but natch, wear swastikas and iron crosses and talk in pre-hippie bebop language.

Crime is how they keep their cool and it makes for nowhere viewing. Finally brought to justice by, of all people, a rodeo bum of partial Indian ancestry (played by Tom Laughlin), they get their come uppance. The audience can only breath a sigh of relief when, like say, hey, man, cool baby, they throw in the sponge and cry into their beards.

Losers also has Jane Russell, but she's slipped far down the ladder since "The Outlaw," although that one, too, was a low-grade western . . . with horses instead of cycles. Still, Miss Russell emerges from the fray in far better shape than the audience. She has lost only some of her old physical attributes—but the audiences loses everything from the price of admission to a wasted evening. The cliche of the century comes when a policeman scowls cameraward and asks, "Where did we go wrong?" One expects the viewers to thunder in reply: "Like, man, from the first uncool reel, hey, baby!"

It Is Long

But, if you decide to sit through this one, you might as well stay for the rest of the Community's double bill. Dub-bed "The Long Duel," it's exactly 1 hour and 55 minutes of Paramount porridge, vintage 1967—an English made period melodrama in color starring Trevor Howard and Yul Brynner.

Elsewhere around the area, TO SIR, WITH LOVE (reviewed as excellent fare in The Freeman last week) continues into next week at the Mayfair in Kingston. It stars Sidney Poitier and "Lulu," Britain's singing sensation.

The Sand Pebbles

The Pebbles (praised in this paper several weeks back) is at the Rosendale Theatre. A big film, it's about a gunboat in China in 1926; has Steve McQueen as an engineer who'd rather work with engines than fight; Richard Attenborough as an old salt who'd rather love than fight; and Richard Crenna as the captain, who'd rather fight. There's lots of war, good acting and authentic locations.

If you're heading up Albany way any time this month, GONE WITH THE WIND (and which of us does not remember this one) has opened at the Hellman Theatre there.

Hall of Fame Show Begins 17th Season

By BOB THOMAS
AP Movie-Television Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — The Hallmark Hall of Fame, which has captured more Emmies and added more distinction to television than any other series of programs, begins its 17th season Saturday night with an "opened-up" version of "A Bell for Adano."

The special is based on Paul Osborne's 1944 Broadway play, which was based on John Hershey's novel. But the television program will not be limited to indoor sets.

"It has been opened up," explains star John Forsythe, using the trade expression employed in the transition of plays to the film medium.

"We shot some scenes down at the harbor, in the hills, all over. Television viewers demand this nowadays, especially with the advent of color and the popularity of movies on TV. You can no longer play a show like this one entirely in a studio.

"Otherwise the play is mostly intact. Roger Hirshon, who adapted it for television, also went back to the Hersey novel for added material, particularly the humor which wasn't as noticeable in the play version. We have used nothing from the movie, which starred John Hodiak and wasn't very successful"

Forsythe plays Major Joppola, the Italian-American officer who tries to govern a small Italian village after it has been liberated by the allied armies. The role was created by Frederic March on Broadway.

The NBC special marks the actor's return to television after the disastrous "John Forsythe Show" of a season ago. The experience appears to have caused no trauma for Forsythe, a remarkably well-adjusted actor.

"It was my own fault," he commented, "for letting myself be talked into it. I made the mistake of not demanding a strong producer to watch over the show; I thought perhaps I could keep an eye on things myself, but that's impossible when you're starring in a series."

Forsythe himself had a five-year hit in "Bachelor Father," which he admits "made me rich beyond my wildest dreams of avarice." For that reason he can afford to call his shots, such as "A Bell for Adano" and his recent film, "In Cold Blood."

Vassar Concert Set Saturday by Fredonia Group

The Fredonia Percussion Ensemble, under the direction of Theodore C. Frazeur, will give a concert at Vassar College Saturday at 8:30 p. m. in Skinner Recital Hall. Area residents are invited.

The program will include Michael Colgrass' Variations for Tuned Drums and Viola, Interactions for Vibraphone and Percussion, by John Bergamo, and Circles, 1960, by Luciano Berio, based on Poems by E. E. Cummings. After a short intermission, the Percussion Sextet will play Richard Fitz' Chamber Sonata, 1964, and the Percussion Quartet will perform Wililam Kraft's Suite for Percussion Quartet. The final number will be Divertimento for Piano and Percussion, by Nicholas Flagello.

Mr. Frazeur, director of the Fredonia Percussion Ensemble, is assistant professor of percussion in the music department of the State College at Fredonia. He holds the degrees of Bachelor of Music and Master of Music and the Performers Certificate from the Eastman School of Music of the University of Rochester. In addition to his performances as a percussion solist, he has composed extensively for a variety of media.

Under his guidance, the Percussion Ensembles was formed in 1956 at Fredonia as part of the then newly instituted major in percussion. The Ensemble has won critical acclaim for its three annual concerts at Fredonia and for its appearances at the New York State Music Conference, the Music Educators National Conference, and on state-wide tours.

Data Available At Onteora for College Exams

Onteora Central School Guidance Director William Yeaple has announced that information is now available on the new college-level examination program.

According to Yeaple, the college board is initiating a new testing program conceived to serve not the traditional full-time student who moves from secondary school to college, but almost everyone else interested in continuing his education and getting formal recognition for it.

The new program, sponsored by the non-profit College Entrance Examination Board, is expected to create a greater sense of equality of opportunity and, if the program succeeds, it can improve access to higher education, encourage individual development, and provide better utilization of human resources.

The college-level examination program will give credit by examination and should afford adults a chance to demonstrate what they have learned through independent study, work experience, correspondence courses, TV courses, adult education courses, on-the-job studies, and military service.

Examination results may be used for college credit, professional advancement, self-fulfillment, college equivalency, licensing requirements, or certification requirements.

Examination will be given monthly at 50 centers throughout the country.

Program headquarters are at Box 977, Princeton, N. J.

BOCES in Service Phase One Finale

The last meeting in a special series of four inservice workshops designed to focus on the "Arts" will be held Nov. 14 at the BOCES Educational Center. Consultants at this session will be Dale Stein and Maurice Brown of the SUNY, New Paltz faculty. The theme of this series is Art As a Way of Life. All of the participants have focused upon the concept of opening the doors to further direct communications between the schools, the "art world," and the professional artist.

Representatives from all of the Central Schools of Ulster County as well as visitors from neighboring counties enthusiastically participated in many lively discussions at the three initial meetings of this series. One of the signs of the success of this program is reflected in the fact that the "word" spread so that the enrollment went from eighteen members at the first to 28 participants at the third session last week.

Duties of Executor Noted by Local Bank

When a man makes his will he must name an executor to carry out its provision. The duties of the executor involve the assembling of the money, securities, and any other property which the decedent left, complying with the necessary legal formalities, paying death taxes and other items incident to estate administration, and paying out the legacies in accordance with the terms of the will.

The Kingston Trust Co., in addition to its usual duties of an executor, advises families on how to cope with the problems ahead. The local banking firm, a spokesman said, "prides itself on dealing with people — not merely accounts."

This is one of the intangibles found in naming or recommending Kingston Trust as executor or trustee under wills, he added. "It is the policy of Kingston Trust," he continued "to have the necessary legal work done by the family attorney who prepared the will."

The person who makes a will is called a testator, and the real purpose of naming an executor in the will is to have someone "execute" the wishes of the testator as expressed in the will.

The financial result for the surviving wife and family depends in a large measure upon the executor's knowledge and experience. The fact that a man made a success in his own business or profession by no means insures his success as an estate executor, for estate administration is in many respects highly technical and involves requirements and procedures unfamiliar to persons who have not had previous experience in estate work.

The executor must make sure the deceased person's income and gift taxes have been paid. Federal estate tax and state inheritance tax returns must be filed. The executor must have available at all times all the necessary financial information about the securities and other property in the estate. If he is preoccupied by his own business affairs or becomes ill, or has to go out of town for long periods, the administration of the estate will be correspondingly delayed and the family will suffer as a result. The importance of naming a well qualified executor in the will, therefore, cannot be too strongly emphasized.

An inexperienced executor can cause the estate all kinds of loss. Sometimes if the loss is clearly due to the executor's negligence, the executor must make good out of his own pocket. More often, however, the losses are chargeable to poor business judgment, to the absence or illness of the executor at a critical moment, or because of wasted motion or the engaging of useless services. In most of these instances nobody comes to the estate's aid, and the beneficiaries suffer. When the estate is that of a husband and provider, the widow and children take the loss.

Acting as executor is one of many functions of the bank's trust department, and its trust officer and his associates are thoroughly experienced in the work. In some instances the bank is the sole executor, while in others it is named as co-executor to serve with a surviving wife or other member of the family.

Asks to Revamp N.Y. Central Rail Structure

NEW YORK (AP) — The New York Central Railroad said it would ask the Public Service Commission for permission to completely restructure its passenger services in New York State.

The railroad's new plan provides for service between New York City and Albany every two hours beginning at 8:30 a.m. each day through 10:30 p.m.

The plan also calls for service every four hours during the same period between Albany and Buffalo.

The new schedules are the result of a marketing study "to determine the customers' needs and the service pattern to meet these needs," a line spokesman said.

Central President Alfred E. Perlman said the new service "will provide convenient, comfortable, fast, on-time passenger service for the people of the State of New York."

Under the new proposal, the 6:30 p.m. westbound train from New York City would provide overnight sleeping car and coach service to Chicago, Detroit and Toronto. Through cars for coach and sleeping car passengers from the Boston & Albany line would be included in this train from Albany.

The 10:30 p.m. departure from New York would be used for the movement of Cleveland and Montreal sleepers, mail and coach passengers within New York State. 3

The westbound Albany departures would be at 7:15 a.m., 11:15 a.m., 3:15 p.m. and 5:15 p.m. These trains would arrive in Syracuse two hours and 15 minutes later on the half hour and in Buffalo two and one-half hours later on the hour.

The proposed Central eastbound service to New York would leave Buffalo at 6:30 a.m., 10:30 a.m. and 12:30 p.m. Service to Albany would be provided by a 5:30 p.m. departure from Buffalo.

The railroad said the 10:30 p.m. westbound train from New York and the 4:30 a.m. eastbound train from Albany would provide buffet-lounge service All other through trains in both directions will be equipped to provide food and beverages.

A Central spokesman said the marketing study showed that the vast majority of travel within New York State is done between the hours of 7 a.m. and 8 p.m., but present long-distance travel schedules are timed for departures and arrivals at locations beyond the state.

Mary Beth Anne Smith of Hurley--Crowned Sewing Queen

By DOROTHY A. NAREL

Eighteen of America's top 10-18 year old seamstresses promenaded down the runway in the Plaza Ballroom in New York yesterday afternoon before hundreds of fashion press and guests and our own Mary Beth Anne Smith of Hurley, a 12-year old, was crowned "Queen of Sewing" in her Junior Miss Division.

From Villanova to Vancouver, from Phoenix to Feeding Mills (Mass.) the 18 young ladies competed within their own age groups in the Grand Ballroom of the Plaza Hotel at the climax of the nationwide contest which attracted nearly 68,000 entrants throughout the nation.

Judging the finals were Eugenia Sheppard, nationally-syndicated fashion columnist; They judged the girls individually within three age categories: Deb, 16 to 18 years old; Sub-Deb, 13 to 15; and Junior Miss, 10-12.

The finals climaxed a busy week of sightseeing and special events for the girls and their mothers. Highlights of the week included a reception by Mrs. John V. Lindsay, wife of New York's Mayor, at Gracie Mansion; meeting Harry Gaz backstage after a performance of "Fiddler on the Roof;" a luau at Trader Vic's; dinner at the Royal Box to see Ella Fitzgerald; fashion photography sessions; and a visit to the pattern houses of Vogue-Butterick, McCall's and Simplicity.

Joining the circle of queens with Mary Beth were: Martha Lynn West, 15 year old from Lexington, Tenn., Sub Deb Division; and Pamela Kay Sebesta, 17 year old from Houston, Texas, Deb Division.

The three "Queens of Sewing" will be awarded all-expense paid trips to London, Paris or Rome and a cash award. Each may elect to accept $1,800 in lieu of the trip. In addition to having won a Singer phonograph and sewing machine, Mary Beth also wins $400 in cash as well as the trip abroad.

To enter the contest, sponsored by the Singer Sewing Company, each of the finalists enrolled in an eight-lesson sewing course at her local Singer Center. Local judging narrowed down the 68,000 entries to about 3,500 which were judged in 25 agencies. These winners received battery-powered portable phonographs. The 75 regional winners were each awarded a "Touch and Sew" sewing machine, and their entries were sent to New York City for semi-final judging in September. The 18 finalists were selected from this group.

For the competition, Mary Beth Anne made a three-piece wool ensemble consisting of sheath type dress, coat and matching hat in tones of toast brown.

The young Queen of Sewing is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph A. Smith of 46 Mountain View Avenue, Hurley. Mrs. Smith accompanied her daughter to the competition.

It was interesting to note that all the girls in the competition have earmarked their prize money for college. They are also very interested, and have definite opinions on, fashion. Mary Quant, Laroche, Christian Dior and Yves Saint Laurent are mentioned most often among them as favorite designers. For most of the style makers, the mini and Twiggy are in, but long hair on boys is out.

Highlights of the competition will be featured next week on the Woman's Pages of The Freeman.

Business Leaders' Conference Held Recently

Several local business teachers attended the area conference at Poughkeepsie on Friday, Nov. 3, under the sponsorship of the State Education Department, Bureau of Business and Distributive Education. Attending were: Mrs. Audrey Heinze, chairman, Highland High School; Loryne Connick, chairman, Kingston High School; Mrs. Thelma L. Loth, chairman, Marlboro High School; Mrs. Doris B. White, chairman, New Paltz Central School; Bernard Stahl, chairman, Onteora Central School, Boiceville; Mrs. Marian Traver, chairman, Rondout Valley Central School, Accord; Mrs. Joan Beckwith and Neil Ryder, Division of Business, Ulster County Community College, Stone Ridge.

Also: Mrs. Edith Luft, business department, associate professor, Orange County Community College, Middletown; Barry Rothschild, Fallsburgh Central High School; Carol Kirll, business department, Sullivan County Community College, Fallsburgh; Robert Wilcox, business division, Ulster County Community College, Stone Ridge.

Similar conferences in 15 areas throughout the State are being held to encourage better understanding among schools, business, industry, and post-secondary institutions.

The morning session, "Why Is Industry Looking for Increased Skills in Business Education Graduates," concentrated on bridging the communication gap between industry and formal business training. Glen R. Osberg, personnel representative IBM, examined with the teachers student development and vocational objectives. Mr. Osberg listed six general factors involved in hiring procedures for his company: testing, experience, education, background, interview, and medical examination. He emphasized the importance of the ability of applicants to communicate as well as being competent in the skills area. Changes in office equipment and procedures, rising costs, time involvement were identified within the framework of industry's concern about skills of administrative people by Vincent Coughlin, branch manager of IBM Poughkeepsie Office Products Division. Mr. Coughlin highlighted his presentation with a film on the value, use, and operation of IBM "Selectric" composition equipment in technical graphic reproduction. Millard Collins manager of Education Services Office Products Division stimulated the morning session with a survey of techniques being used by schools to increase utilization of teachers' time and skills in the teaching of typewriting, office practice, and secretarial practice. Mr. Collins concluded that business teachers must find new and practical ways to teach basic skills in less time in order to devote more time to preparing students for job requirements in new areas of job specilization.

At Taconic Hall, Dutchess Community College, Anthony Krzywicki, head of the Department of Business Technologies, chaired the afternoon session centered around the theme "Articulation Between High School Business Departments and Community Colleges." Dr. Lawrence H. Monaco, dean of Collegiate Technical Division, extended greetings from the College. Panelists included M. Dorothy MacPherson, chairman of Business Administration; Arthur P. Rose, chairman of Retailing; Charles W. Grech, chairman, Accounting and Data Processing; and Anthony Krzywicki, Secretarial Science. The panel members stressed the importance of creating better understanding between high school and post-secondary teachers by encouraging active visitation programs. Representatives from the business departments of Orange, Sullivan and Ulster counties community colleges participated in the discussion.

Mrs. Thelma Loth, business-area coordinator of Marlboro High School, planned and coordinated events as chairman of the Area 10 Business Leaders Conference. Mr. Ronald Wing, associate spervisor of Business Education, represented the State Bureau. The conference will be followed by workhops and seminars at the community colleges in each county.

The Doctor Says

Alcohol, Barbiturates Dangerous Combination

By Wayne G. Brandstadt, M.D.

(Last of Three Related Articles)

Q—I have heard that death may be caused by a combination of alcohol and barbiturates. Is this because, when intoxicated, a person is likely to take an overdose of barbiturate? What about taking muscle relaxants after drinking?

A—Although the worst results of taking barbiturates after drinking are due to taking an overdose, the combination is always dangerous because both drugs are nervous system depressants and the alcohol more than doubles the depressant action of the barbiturate.

Some muscle relaxants contain barbiturates and others are liver poisons, just as is ascohol. All of them, like alcohol, are depressants. Therefore, although little is known specifically about their effect when combined with alcohol, I would advise that they be used with great caution, if at all, when you have had a few drinks.

Q—What is neuritis? How long dows it last? What kind of doctor is best for it?

A—This is an inflammation of one or more nerves. It may be caused by poisoning with lead, arsenic, alcohol and other chemicals; such infections as dephtheria, leprosy, German measles, typhus and typhoid; pressure on the nerve by a tumor; injury; poor circulation or a vitamin B deficiency. How long it would last depends on the cause and how promptly corrective measures are applied. A nerve specialist would be able either to help you or prevent your wasting time and money following false leads.

DINNER TURKEY

Poultry breeders recognize two quite distinct breeds of domestic turkey in this country—the black-plumed Norfolk breed, and the more variegated Cambridge breed — and it is believed that the former is descended from the North American bird, and the latter from the more southern form. The turkey is ready for the table in about nine months, when a large cock may weigh as much as 20 lbs. In the olden days, when big flocks were "walked" into London — a journey often taking a week or more — the birds were protected from "cold feet" by being shod, their feet being tied up in sacking and provided with leather boots. Geese do not allow themselves to be shod, and the feet of these birds, when similarly driven, were protected by a coat of tar covered with grit. As a result the phrase to "shoe a goose" was once a cant simile for attempting a hopeless task.

The turkey cock is larger than the hen and less economical, as its bones are heavier; as a rule the hen is also more tender than the cock. A large turkey cock with sharp spurs is best stuffed by a taxidermist; it is an old bird to be avoided by all cooks. The best turkey is a hen from seven to nine months old which has been reared in semi-liberty, and given plenty of food, but made to scratch for at least some of it. It's legs should be black, the neck short, the breast broad and plump, and the flesh snow-white.

Area Weekend Movie Fare Is Previewed

CYCLISTS in scene from The Born Losers which is currently being screened at the Community Theatre.

Up, Down Staircase

This movie has been culled from the pages of Bel Kaufman's No. 1 best seller of last year; is now playing at the Woodstock Theatre through Monday and is also on screen at the Lyceum in Red Hook.

Alienation, the central theme of modern literature, is also the theme which has entered into Staircase. And though the film's moral scheme is based on that ever so commonplace battle of good versus evil, the movie succeeds brilliantly in creating memorable figures out of the lower depths of an American "problem area" high school.

Staircase says yes so strongly that it can stir any audience out of its apathy; touches a social nerve that is not new, but can be only a tense undercurrent to those who have never confronted the hostility to conformity embodied in mixed-up youngsters.

The kids in Staircase make their own way and the ones who rebel pay for that rebellion. But, in the end, a handful have been helped toward the development of their consciousness and responsibility and toward taking their places as men and women . . . and more than that cannot be expected in so dense a jungle as Collidge High School, Stairway's crumbling educational fortress on the edge of the metropolitan slums.

Scholmarm Heroine

Through these cold, callous, garbage-strewn streets comes Sandy Dennis, an Academy Award winner who re-creates with considerable grace the tyro schoolmarm of the novel. There is no denying she is excellent in the role of Sylvia Barrett, brand new teacher whose "respectful" students welcome her aboard with the catcall of the streets, "Hi, teach!"

But when all is said and done, and the Dennis professionalism and sometimes too cloying mannerisms are stripped from the script, it is the kids themselves, recruited from those same New York City streets, who carry this film.

Non-professionals all, they are the real stars in the classless society in which they live. If their problems revolve around broken homes, harsh parents, street gangs and poverty in all its guises—including juvenile delinquency—they shed a light on the future. Even though their current education may offer some possible escape, the promise of maturity holds little for a teen-ager, they seem to say. The dull part-time job of today will probably become the duller full-time job of tomorrow, the dull life of the slums can only be exchanged, if at all, for a life of boob tubes, freezers which de-ice and refuse to function, babies and baby sitters, power-driven lawnmowers with broken blades, an annual wage that never quite makes ends meet, taxes and more taxes, too little social security, inadequate hospitalization insurance, platitudinous patriotism, hypocritical idealism . . . and death.

Staircase is a movie that entertains in spite of all this because it has the ring of truth, because it moves, and because it forces the audience to take home an unresolved, disturbing recognition of social difficulties. The fine performances come fast and furiously and, in addition to Miss Dennis and her pupils, Eileen Heckart is superb as another teacher.

Real School Used

By using actual school buildings as backgrounds, the staging has been kept simple—allows the actors' faces and voices to do the work, and illustrates better than any constructed set how a delinquent's hostility to auhority is aroused.

Staircase has much humor and is dramatic and disturbing . . . but we can identify with the hatreds and hopes it inspires.

Up the Down Staircase goes on at Woodstock, 7 and 9 p. m. tonight and tomorrow and at 8 o'clock Sunday and Monday. It can be seen in Red Hook at the regular times, except for Saturday and Sunday afternoon at 2 p.m. when "Smokey," based on Will James' story of a once noble horse demoted to pulling a junk wagon, will be seen. In color, this one stars Fess Parker, TV's Daniel Boone.

The Born Losers

Any resemblance to a film with clarity and a compelling dramatic line will not be found in this movie—all about those vicious cycles and playing at the Community in Kingston tonight, tomorrow and Sunday. The Losers of the title are a bunch of heavy boozing, all shook up motorcyclists who get their kicks by behaving like the hoods they are, mauling women and terrorizing towns. Even the police steer clear of confrontations with these sordid types, and the uneducated riff raff is allowed to lord it over the natives of California and, but natch, wear swastikas and iron crosses and talk in pre-hippie bebop language.

Crime is how they keep their cool and it makes for nowhere viewing. Finally brought to justice by, of all people, a rodeo bum of partial Indian ancestry (played by Tom Laughlin), they get their come uppance. The audience can only breath a sigh of relief when, like say, hey, man, cool baby, they throw in the sponge and cry into their beards.

Losers also has Jane Russell, but she's slipped far down the ladder since "The Outlaw," although that one, too, was a low-grade western . . . with horses instead of cycles. Still, Miss Russell emerges from the fray in far better shape than the audience. She has lost only some of her old physical attributes—but the audiences loses everything from the price of admission to a wasted evening. The cliche of the century comes when a policeman scowls cameraward and asks, "Where did we go wrong?" One expects the viewers to thunder in reply: "Like, man, from the first uncool reel, hey, baby!"

It Is Long

But, if you decide to sit through this one, you might as well stay for the rest of the Community's double bill. Dub-bed "The Long Duel," it's exactly 1 hour and 55 minutes of Paramount porridge, vintage 1967—an English made period melodrama in color starring Trevor Howard and Yul Brynner.

Elsewhere around the area, TO SIR, WITH LOVE (reviewed as excellent fare in The Freeman last week) continues into next week at the Mayfair in Kingston. It stars Sidney Poitier and "Lulu," Britain's singing sensation.

The Sand Pebbles

The Pebbles (praised in this paper several weeks back) is at the Rosendale Theatre. A big film, it's about a gunboat in China in 1926; has Steve McQueen as an engineer who'd rather work with engines than fight; Richard Attenborough as an old salt who'd rather love than fight; and Richard Crenna as the captain, who'd rather fight. There's lots of war, good acting and authentic locations.

If you're heading up Albany way any time this month, GONE WITH THE WIND (and which of us does not remember this one) has opened at the Hellman Theatre there.

Hall of Fame Show Begins 17th Season

By BOB THOMAS
AP Movie-Television Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — The Hallmark Hall of Fame, which has captured more Emmies and added more distinction to television than any other series of programs, begins its 17th season Saturday night with an "opened-up" version of "A Bell for Adano."

The special is based on Paul Osborne's 1944 Broadway play, which was based on John Hersey's novel. But the television program will not be limited to indoor sets.

"It has been opened up," explains star John Forsythe, using the trade expression employed in the transition of plays to the film medium.

"We shot some scenes down at the harbor, in the hills, all over. Television viewers demand this nowadays, especially with the advent of color and the popularity of movies on TV. You can no longer play a show like this one entirely in a studio.

"Otherwise the play is mostly intact. Roger Hirshon, who adapted it for television, also went back to the Hersey novel for added material, particularly the humor which wasn't as noticeable in the play version. We have used nothing from the movie, which starred John Hodiak and wasn't very successful"

Forsythe plays Major Joppola, the Italian-American officer who tries to govern a small Italian village after it has been liberated by the allied armies. The role was created by Frederic March on Broadway.

The NBC special marks the actor's return to television after the disastrous "John Forsythe Show" of a season ago. The experience appears to have caused no trauma for Forsythe, a remarkably well-adjusted actor.

"It was my own fault," he commented, "for letting myself be talked into it. I made the mistake of not demanding a strong producer to watch over the show; I thought perhaps I could keep an eye on things myself, but that's impossible when you're starring in a series."

Forsythe himself had a five-year hit in "Bachelor Father," which he admits "made me rich beyond my wildest dreams of avarice." For that reason he can afford to call his shots, such as "A Bell for Adano" and his recent film, "In Cold Blood."

Vassar Concert Set Saturday by Fredonia Group

The Fredonia Percussion Ensemble, under the direction of Theodore C. Frazeur, will give a concert at Vassar College Saturday at 8:30 p. m. in Skinner Recital Hall. Area residents are invited.

The program will include Michael Colgrass' Variations for Tuned Drums and Viola, Interactions for Vibraphone and Percussion, by John Bergamo, and Circles, 1960, by Luciano Berio, based on Poems by E. E. Cummings. After a short intermission, the Percussion Sextet will play Richard Fitz' Chamber Sonata, 1964, and the Percussion Quartet will perform Wililam Kraft's Suite for Percussion Quartet. The final number will be Divertimento for Piano and Percussion, by Nicholas Flagello.

Mr. Frazeur, director of the Fredonia Percussion Ensemble, is assistant professor of percussion in the music department of the State College at Fredonia. He holds the degrees of Bachelor of Music and Master of Music and the Performers Certificate from the Eastman School of Music of the University of Rochester. In addition to his performances as a percussion solist, he has composed extensively for a variety of media.

Under his guidance, the Percussion Ensembles was formed in 1956 at Fredonia as part of the then newly instituted major in percussion. The Ensemble has won critical acclaim for its three annual concerts at Fredonia and for its appearances at the New York State Music Conference, the Music Educators National Conference, and on state-wide tours.

Data Available At Onteora for College Exams

Onteora Central School Guidance Director William Yeaple has announced that information is now available on the new college-level examination program.

According to Yeaple, the college board is initiating a new testing program conceived to serve not the traditional full-time student who moves from secondary school to college, but almost everyone else interested in continuing his education and getting formal recognition for it.

The new program, sponsored by the non-profit College Entrance Examination Board, is expected to create a greater sense of equality of opportunity and, if the program succeeds, it can improve access to higher education, encourage individual development, and provide better utilization of human resources.

The college-level examination program will give credit by examination and should afford adults a chance to demonstrate what they have learned through independent study, work experience, correspondence courses, TV courses, adult education courses, on-the-job studies, and military service.

Examination results may be used for college credit, professional advancement, self-fulfillment, college equivalency, licensing requirements, or certification requirements.

Examination will be given monthly at 50 centers throughout the country.

Program headquarters are at Box 977, Princeton, N. J.

Kenya's Attorney General Nixes Latest Miniskirts

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) — Attorney General Charles Njonjo would like to get a law passed banning miniskirts but fears it would give Kenya's police force too much extra work.

Airing his views in a local newspaper, Njonjo revealed a split in the Kenya cabinet over women's fashion.

Whereas the bachelor Attorney-General denounced miniskirts as "human depravity," Minister of Commerce and Industry Mwai Kibaki reported he approved of them on younger women.

But Njonjo is adamant.

"I think the miniskirt fashion is ugly," he said. "It seems to accentuate the ugly parts of the body — from the knees downward. I saw a lot of these minis in London and it was terrible. I can only think of it as human depravity.

"I once thought of introducing legislation to ban miniskirts but it would mean having all the police force on the street. One can only hope that with the occasional scathing letter in the press, women will stop wearing them."

Njonjo disapproves also of African women who straighten their hair. He reported he had warned his sister he would not associate with her if she straightened hers.

Commerce and Industry Minister Kibaki is more of a fashion liberal. His sole aversion is to boots.

"They never look right, even with a mini," he said. "They cover up the legs, and, after all, a man wants to see a woman's legs."

ADULT COUPLES' DANCE COMMITTEE—Members of the St. Peter's Adult Couples' Dance committee met Monday evening to complete plans for their dance which has been scheduled for Saturday, Nov. 18, at St. Peter's Hall at 9 p. m. Look Here Mrs. Homemaker

Meat shoppers who choose pork this November will profit from the ample supplies at the market. Prices are lower than last year, with specials on numerous cuts widely advertised, says Louise M. Kakargo. With prices favorable, now may be a good time to treat the family to some of the more costly choice cuts of pork.

Pork plentiful this November. Supplies are high enough this fall for pork to place on the U. S. Department of Agriculture's list of plentiful foods for November. Pork production under Federal inspection in recent weeks has been considerably above a year earlier. In addition, supplies typically show a seasonal increase at this time of year.

One way to get the most for the money is to take advantage of pork sales. Markets have frequently been featuring several cuts of pork at special sale prices in recent weeks.

Even when pork is not low in price as it is currently, it offers high meat value for the money. Cut for cut, pork is usually less expensive than other meats.

Pork does not vary as much in tenderness and flavor as other meats because for one thing, hogs are marketed at an early age. Tender, well-flavored meat comes from these young animals. Then, too hogs are bred solely for meat and can be relatively easily improved by selective breeding.

The best roasts and chops come from the loin. They are the most demanded cuts of pork and sell for a higher price per pound than cuts from the shoulder section.

The loin is one of the leanest cuts, second only to the Boston, a shoulder cut, in per cent of lean meat, but it also has a high amount of bone which adds to the cost of a serving. The amount of bone differs by location on the loin. Center cut chops from the middle of the loin will yield four servings per pound, but end roasts will yield only two and one-half servings per pound.

A whole pork loin weighing from 10 to 14 pounds can be cut into three pieces: loin end, center, and rib end. The loin end is the thickness of the three with a large portion of the tenderloin and a sizable bone. The center loin roast has the T-bone and is easily carved into uniform chop portions; it contains the tip end of the tenderloin. The rib end has the most bone and no tenderloin, yet yields tender, juicy meat.

The backbones of these pork roasts are useful during cooking as a natural rack holding the meat above the drippings. To simplify carving, have the backbone loosened before cooking so it can be removed easily.

Match chops to intended use. When buying pork chops, it is best to know in advance how you plan to cook them so they can be cut to the appropriate thickness. Thin chops — one-half inch — are best fried or panbroiled. For broiling, chops should be at least one inch thick. The distance of the meat from the heat source should be adjusted to allow for slow broiling and thorough cooking. For braising or baking, chops should be cut from three-fourths to one and one-fourth inches thick.

Hints from Heloise

Dear Folks:

I just discovered something that my husband said is a terrific idea.

So here 'tis:

We've been saving cardboard rolls from toilet tissue, foil, wax paper, etc. and knew we would find good use for them. And we did.

One of the best things we've found is to use them to start a fire in a fireplace or a barbecue grill. They are great when placed under logs or briquettes.

You can roll up wax paper or newspaper and stick it inside the cardboard roll (and don't forget that newspaper must have a small air hole in the middle of it.) Man, does it start a fire!

Just place them between the logs—which will allow the oxygen to get through so the flames will start — and away it goes! The wax peper ignites quickly and the center of the tube allows good ventilation.

So, gals, never throw away those tubes from rolls of anything you buy. They have many uses.

Heloise

P. S. We have learned that since testing this ieda, it is well also to save all cardboard boxes or containers that are coated with wax. Just tear open the bottom of the boxes, roll them up, wring tightly (that means twist), and use for your fire starters, too.

You should put them at the bottom of the fire if you're starting big logs, or between the logs if you're piling on lots of small logs.

It's the most fantabulous thing you've ever seen in your entire life.

Heloise

Dear Heloise:

I made a lightweight cover for my heating pad and sewed a strip of tape across each end. The strips extend out about six inches.

Now, if I need heat on an arm or leg, I can just tie it on and it will stay in place without holding.

A Reader

Dear Heloise:

Those clear plastic trays that supermarkets use to package meats are so handy around the house.

I use a large one under the electric can-opener to catch drips, and a small one under the vinegar and oil bottles. I also use them under bottles and cans in the cupboard where I keep my cleaning supplies.

I think they're great.

Dear Heloise:

When I make chiffon or angel food cakes, or anything where the egg whites have to be folded into the batter last, I remove the beaters from the mixer and leave the bowl on the turntable.

Then I pour the egg whites over the batter, gently folding them in as I pour.

As I stir with the spoon, the motion moves the bowl around on the turn-table. This makes for even distribution of the eggs and batter.

Sure makes the last step of mixing much easier, without the feeling of needing a third hand.

Roberta Paranick

Dear Heloise:

Recently I ripped up one of my daughter's old nylon net petticoats to use as a sweater drier.

I washed and pressed the pieces, and sewed two together just large enough for a sweater to fit on nicely. I also sewed a strip for a tie to each corner.

I had planned to fasten this to a frame. So far I have just tied it real taut between my clotheslines. It works so well like that that I'm not going to bother with the frame.

I like it very much because my sweaters dry so fast with the air circulating up through the net.

Need Proper Research For a Good Paper

By The Reading Laboratory

(Excerpted from the World publishing Company Book, "Study Faster and Retain More." Illustrations by Roy Doty)

When paper time comes around, many students rush in a panic to the library for the first time that year.

How many times have you wandered around a strange library, wishing you were sure of what you wanted and where to find it?

By now you should be aware that regular use of the library puts you far ahead of your classmates when you've been assigned a paper.

You've probably been told many times that you can't write a good paper if you aren't clear about your topic. Usually students react to this by saying, "How can I know what I want to say before I start my paper?" They don't believe it's possible. But it is. And it is true that the better you organize your research, the better you will organize what you have to say.

Suppose your history teacher assigns a research paper. She tells you to pick the topic, but she wants you to collect facts to support an interpretation of an event, or a period, or a person's role in history. When you pick your topic, you have to remember two things.

First, the topic has to be the right size for you to handle in the time you have.

Second, it has to be a topic for which you can get the necessary information.

Once you've done a little thinking about the topics that might interest you, it's time to take a trip to the library you've been using. You might go first to the reference section and skim articles in an encyclopedia or a biographical dictionary to test your interest.

Let's assume you've found a topic you want to write about. If there is a bibliography at the end of the reference article you read, jot it down, including the author's name, title, publisher and date of publication, volume and edition of each book.

Now, go to the card catalogue to make sure your library has books or articles on your topic. Remember you can look up the subject itself or the titles and authors of books you've found mentioned in other places.

Everything is going smoothly. Your library has many books and articles on your topic. Begin by writing down the titles on note cards.

Now you have to select what you are going to read. To do that you should know something about the books, and often a conference with your teacher or the librarian can help you at this stage. They can eliminate material that is too complicated, out-of-date, or even poorly written.

When you start to read for your paper, begin with the most general reading. Always move from general to more detailed information. This helps fix firmly in your mind what your topic is, what the subtopics are, and finally what facts you will need to support your interpretations.

As you read you should take notes on 5x7 cards ,using a separate card for every important point. Also include the book title and page number for the reference, in case you need to look it up later or use it in a footnote. And keep your notes in a card file, organized under subject headings.

Now that you've finished your research, you can begin writing your paper using all the skills summarizing that you've learned here. If you've studied well, you will have a clear and interesting paper!

Mrs. Maria Olsson To Receive Award

The managers of Fanny Farmer Candy Shops in this area will hold their annual Christmas meeting and dinner at Gene Whalen's Restaurant, 286 Wall Street, this city, on Wednesday, Nov. 15.

A highlight of this event will be the presentation of a five-year pin to Mrs. Maria Olsson, manager of Kingston Fanny Farmer Shop, 335 Wall Street. The presentation will mark Mrs. Olsson's fifth year with the company in Kingston.

CALIFORNIA DESIGNER Rudi Gernreich introduced the "bloomer" look November 7 in his latest collection for spring 1968. For evening, Rudi creates these two chiffon short "drinking" dresses with his bloomer-like skirt. The models wear matching masks and their ears are surrounded by feathers. (UPI TELEPHOTO).

RVCS Will Sponsor Dinner - Dance

Advance ticket sales indicate that the first annual dinner-dance of the Rondout Valley Scholarship Fund will be a well-attended affair, with all parts of the central district represented. The function, which will be held on Saturday at the Granit Hotel in Accord, will begin at 6:30 p.m. when cocktails and hors d'oeuvres will be served.

Dinner, at 8 p.m. in a private dining room, will offer a choice of entrees. After dinner, guests will enjoy the popular entertainment and dancing for which the Granit is so well known.

Dr. Solomon S. Shapiro, chairman of the dinner-dance, will welcome the guests. John Wilkie, who has succeeded the late A. J. Anderson as chairman of the Fund's Board of Directors, will speak about the Fund. All proceeds of the event will be used for scholarships, which the Fund awards annually to graduates of Rondout Valley Central High School.

Mary Beth Anne Smith of Hurley--Crowned Sewing Queen

Eighteen of America's top 10-18 year old seamstresses promenaded down the runway in the Plaza Ballroom in New York yesterday afternoon before hundreds of fashion press and guests and our own Mary Beth Anne Smith of Hurley, a 12-year old, was crowned "Queen of Sewing" in her Junior Miss Division.

From Villanova to Vancouver, from Phoenix to Feeding Mills (Mass.) the 18 young ladies competed within their own age groups in the Grand Ballroom of the Plaza Hotel at the climax of the nationwide contest which attracted nearly 68,000 entrants throughout the nation.

Judging the finals were Eugenia Sheppard, nationally-syndicated fashion columnist; They judged the girls individually within three age categories: Deb, 16 to 18 years old; Sub-Deb, 13 to 15; and Junior Miss, 10-12.

The finals climaxed a busy week of sightseeing and special events for the girls and their mothers. Highlights of the week included a reception by Mrs. John V. Lindsay, wife of New York's Mayor, at Gracie Mansion; meeting Harry Gaz backstage after a performance of "Fiddler on the Roof;" a luau at Trader Vic's; dinner at the Royal Box to see Ella Fitzgerald; fashion photography sessions; and a visit to the pattern houses of Vogue-Butterick, McCall's and Simplicity.

Joining the circle of queens with Mary Beth were: Martha Lynn West, 15 year old from Lexington, Tenn., Sub Deb Division; and Pamela Kay Sebesta, 17 year old from Houston, Texas, Deb Division.

The three "Queens of Sewing" will be awarded all-expense paid trips to London, Paris or Rome and a cash award. Each may elect to accept $1,800 in lieu of the trip. In addition to having won a Singer phonograph and sewing machine, Mary Beth also wins $400 in cash as well as the trip abroad.

To enter the contest, sponsored by the Singer Sewing Company, each of the finalists enrolled in an eight-lesson sewing course at her local Singer Center. Local judging narrowed down the 68,000 entries to about 3,500 which were judged in 25 agencies. These winners received battery-powered portable phonographs. The 75 regional winners were each awarded a "Touch and Sew" sewing machine, and their entries were sent to New York City for semi-final judging in September. The 18 finalists were selected from this group.

For the competition, Mary Beth Anne made a three-piece wool ensemble consisting of sheath type dress, coat and matching hat in tones of toast brown.

The young Queen of Sewing is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph A. Smith of 46 Mountain View Avenue, Hurley. Mrs. Smith accompanied her daughter to the competition.

It was interesting to note that all the girls in the competition have earmarked their prize money for college. They are also very interested, and have definite opinions on, fashion. Mary Quant, Laroche, Christian Dior and Yves Saint Laurent are mentioned most often among them as favorite designers. For most of the style makers, the mini and Twiggy are in, but long hair on boys is out.

Highlights of the competition will be featured next week on the Woman's Pages of The Freeman.

State Historian Speaks to DAR

Mrs. Robert H. Tapp, Bronxville, State Historian, Daughters of American Revolution, addressed Wiltwyck Chapter on Monday evening, Nov. 6, at the Chapter House.

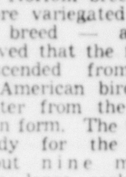

Outlining the work of the National Society in her office, Mrs. Tapp stated that; for 44 years awards in American History have been presented to students in high and grade schools throughout the country; that efforts have been made via State Legislatures and U. S. Congress, to have February permanently made American History month and to honor the birthdays of George Washington and Abraham Lincoln; that erected in 1928, the 12 statues, "Madonna of the Trail," marked women's part in America's trek westward. She spoke about the Memorial Bell Tower at Valley Forge, costing one-half million dollars, honoring veterans of the American Revolution, World War I and II, and Korean War, which was deeded to the Washington Chapel.

Mrs. Floyd N. Ellsworth, regent, conducted the business session. It was announced that Mrs. Eugene Hoffman, Mt. Tremper, had completed special work on the dining room chairs. Mrs. Charlotte Peck reminded members that toys for Cerebral Palsy Clinic should be brought to the December meeting.

DINNER TURKEY

Poultry breeders recognize two quite distinct breeds of domestic turkey in this country—the black-plumed Norfolk breed, and the more variegated Cambridge breed — and it is believed that the former is descended from the North American bird, and the latter from the more southern form. The turkey is ready for the table in about nine months, when a large cock may weigh as much as 20 lbs. In the olden days, when big flocks were "walked" into London — a journey often taking a week or more — the birds were protected from "cold feet" by being shod, their feet being tied up in sacking and provided with leather boots. Geese do not allow themselves to be shod, and the feet of these birds, when similarly driven, were protected by a coat of tar covered with grit. As a result the phrase to "shoe a goose" was once a cant simile for attempting a hopeless task.

The turkey cock is larger than the hen and less economical, as its bones are heavier; as a rule the hen is also more tender than the cock. A large turkey cock with sharp spurs is best stuffed by a taxidermist; it is an old bird to be avoided by all cooks. The best turkey is a hen from seven to nine months old which has been reared in semi-liberty, and given plenty of food, but made to scratch for at least some of it. It's legs should be black, the neck short, the breast broad and plump, and the flesh snow-white.

Business Leaders' Conference Held Recently

Several local business teachers attended the area conference at Poughkeepsie on Friday, Nov. 3, under the sponsorship of the State Education Department, Bureau of Business and Distributive Education. Attending were: Mrs. Audrey Heinze, chairman, Highland High School; Loryne Connick, chairman, Kingston High School; Mrs. Thelma L. Loth, chairman, Marlboro High School; Mrs. Doris B. White, chairman, New Paltz Central School; Bernard Stahl, chairman, Onteora Central School, Boiceville; Mrs. Marian Traver, chairman, Rondout Valley Central School, Accord; Mrs. Joan Beckwith and Neil Ryder, Division of Business, Ulster County Community College, Stone Ridge.

Also: Mrs. Edith Luft, business department, associate professor, Orange County Community College, Middletown; Barry Rothschild, Fallsburgh Central High School; Carol Kirll, business department, Sullivan County Community College, Fallsburgh; Robert Wilcox, business division, Ulster County Community College, Stone Ridge.

Similar conferences in 15 areas throughout the State are being held to encourage better understanding among schools, business, industry, and post-secondary institutions.

The morning session, "Why Is Industry Looking for Increased Skills in Business Education Graduates," concentrated on bridging the communication gap between industry and formal business training. Glen R. Osberg, personnel representative IBM, examined with the teachers student development and vocational objectives. Mr. Osberg listed six general factors involved in hiring procedures for his company: testing, experience, education, background, interview, and medical examination. He emphasized the importance of the ability of applicants to communicate as well as being competent in the skills area. Changes in office equipment and procedures, rising costs, time involvement were identified within the framework of industry's concern about skills of administrative people by Vincent Coughlin, branch manager of IBM Poughkeepsie Office Products Division. Mr. Coughlin highlighted his presentation with a film on the value, use, and operation of IBM "Selectric" composition equipment in technical graphic reproduction. Millard Collins manager of Education Services Office Products Division stimulated the morning session with a survey of techniques being used by schools to increase utilization of teachers' time and skills in the teaching of typewriting, office practice, and secretarial practice. Mr. Collins concluded that business teachers must find new and practical ways to teach basic skills in less time in order to devote more time to preparing students for job requirements in new areas of job specilization.

At Taconic Hall, Dutchess Community College, Anthony Krzywicki, head of the Department of Business Technologies, chaired the afternoon session centered around the theme "Articulation Between High School Business Departments and Community Colleges." Dr. Lawrence H. Monaco, dean of Collegiate Technical Division, extended greetings from the College. Panelists included M. Dorothy MacPherson, chairman of Business Administration; Arthur P. Rose, chairman of Retailing; Charles W. Grech, chairman, Accounting and Data Processing; and Anthony Krzywicki, Secretarial Science. The panel members stressed the importance of creating better understanding between high school and post-secondary teachers by encouraging active visitation programs. Representatives from the business departments of Orange, Sullivan and Ulster counties community colleges participated in the discussion.

Mrs. Thelma Loth, business-area coordinator of Marlboro High School, planned and coordinated events as chairman of the Area 10 Business Leaders Conference. Mr. Ronald Wing, associate spervisor of Business Education, represented the State Bureau. The conference will be followed by workhops and seminars at the community colleges in each county.

The Doctor Says

Alcohol, Barbiturates Dangerous Combination

By Wayne G. Brandstadt, M.D.

(Last of Three Related Articles)

Q—I have heard that death may be caused by a combination of alcohol and barbiturates. Is this because, when intoxicated, a person is likely to take an overdose of barbiturate? What about taking muscle relaxants after drinking?

A—Although the worst results of taking barbiturates after drinking are due to taking an overdose, the combination is always dangerous because both drugs are nervous system depressants and the alcohol more than doubles the depressant action of the barbiturate.

Some muscle relaxants contain barbiturates and others are liver poisons, just as is ascohol. All of them, like alcohol, are depressants. Therefore, although little is known specifically about their effect when combined with alcohol, I would advise that they be used with great caution, if at all, when you have had a few drinks.

Q—What is neuritis? How long dows it last? What kind of doctor is best for it?

A—This is an inflammation of one or more nerves. It may be caused by poisoning with lead, arsenic, alcohol and other chemicals; such infections as dephtheria, leprosy, German measles, typhus and typhoid; pressure on the nerve by a tumor; injury; poor circulation or a vitamin B deficiency. How long it would last depends on the cause and how promptly corrective measures are applied. A nerve specialist would be able either to help you or prevent your wasting time and money following false leads.

Kingston Plays Powerful Middies Here Saturday

By ED PALLADINO
Freeman Sports Staff

Fresh from its spine-tingling win last week over Hudson, Kingston High's 2-4 grid team returns to the friendly Dietz Stadium confines to entertain powerful Middletown in a Saturday DUSO feature. Game time is 1:30.

Six other games are on tap in the final weekend of schoolboy football activity. Only the traditional Thanksgiving Day contests remain.

In another DUSO feature, Newburgh plays at Port Jervis.

There's a pivotal DCSL attraction matching unbeaten Poughkeepsie at Arlington. Saugerties, High closes its season at Beacon in another circuit tilt.

The non-league slate has Lourdes going to Nanuet, Tri-Valley playing at Ellenville and Roosevelt finishing up at New York Military Academy.

Though Middletown has lost its last two games, the Middies figure to be the toughest opponent on the KHS schedule.

After victories over Spring Valley (14-0), Mt. Vernon (14-7), Newburgh (13-6) and Mamaroneck (49-6), the Middies were belted, 52-14, by Mont Pleasant and, 23-13, by White Plains.

Hughes Keys Middies

Quarterback Paul Hughes, a three-year veteran, is the key to the Middie hopes. An excellent passer, he throws to split end John Peterson, tight end Charlie Thomas and tailback Dick Field. Fullback Don day and flanker Ron Lybolt are the leading ground gainers.

Kingston, which played its best game of the year against Hudson, will be trying to snap a seven game loss skein at the hands of the visitors. The last KHS triumph was in 1959.

Coach Bill Hurley was pleased with the overall performance of his gridders at Hudson. "We moved the ball well but our offense didn't do the job in close," he said. The Maroon players were inside the Hudson 10 on four occasions and failed to score.

The local need this win to keep their DUSO championship hopes alive. A victory over the Middies and another against Newburgh Thanksgiving will also make a .500 season out of a woeful start.

Port Jervis and Newburgh will be battling for survival in their game at the Hilly City gridiron. The Raiders hold a win over Kingston and must play Middletown on Turkey Day.

Can Tie for First

Poughkeepsie, tied only by Wappingers, can clinch a DCSL tie by beating Arlington. However, this is a traditional contest with both teams at fever pitch. An upset is not out of the question and coach Don Smith's club must give an all-out effort.

Saugerties and Beacon are winless in DCSL competition and the winning eleven will escape the cellar. The Sawyers played a good game against Roosevelt while the Bulldogs have been going downhill, having been walloped in recent weeks by Newburgh and Poughkeepsie.

In the non-league efforts, Lourdes is the choice to snap a three-game losing streak at Nanuet; Roosevelt is favored over New York Military Academy and Ellenville should close its season with a victory over outclassed Tri-Valley.

Honor Messenger at NYMA

New York Military Academy at Cornwall-on-Hudson will dedicate its football field in memory of General Edwin Messenger on Nov. 11.

The dedication will take place during the half-time period of the football game between NYMA and Roosevelt High which highlights the annual fall homecoming weekend.

Gen. Messenger, who died in 1965, was a native of Kingston who played varsity football at Kingston High, NYMA and later at the U. S. Military Academy at West Point in 1928, 1929 and 1930. He earned All-America recognition as an end on the Army teams.

Mrs. Messenger, the former Emily C. Nelson will be the NYMA superintendent's special guest at the ceremony and will unveil a bronze tablet. Brief remarks will be made by Donald S. Walker, Class of 1920 at NYMA and a member of the Board of Trustees who played football at the Naval Academy about the same time General Messenger was playing for Army.

GENERAL MESSENGER

The Cadet First Captain, the color guard and the academy band will participate on behalf of the corps.

A star in three major sports—football, baseball and basketball—Gen. Messenger entered NYMA in Sept. 1924, graduating with the class of 1925. With the U. S. Military Academy as his goal, he returned to NYMA for a post graduate course in 1925-26.

At NYMA, he was voted "Best New Guy" by the upperclassmen. He was also elected captain of the football team for the following year, a singular honor for a one-year man.

Gen. Messenger served in World War II and Korean campaign and received numerous decorations for distinguished service in each war. In July, 1954, he was assigned to the prestigious post of Commandant of Cadets at the United States Military Academy.

Gino's 11 Goals Pace KSC

Schwaben Club Here Sunday

All-America Eugene (Gino) Ventriglia's 11 goals lead the Kingston Sport Club, as the unbeaten Kickers seek their seventh German-American Soccer Association victory Sunday at Oehler's Mountain Lodge.

With a record of 6 wins, 2 ties and no losses, Kingston has 14 points to lead runnerup Yonkers by one point. The Sunday opposition—Schwaben of New York—is mired near the cellar with a win, tie and six losses.

With Ventriglia setting the pace, the Kickers have racked up a league leading total of 37 goals, six more than the runnerup Yonkers squad which has played one more game than the locals.

Runnerup to Ventriglia, the former State U (New Paltz) wizard is Elliott Robbie-Asare, the tall Republic of Ghana star now attending State U who has 7 goals. Tony Reinhardt has scored 5. Richie Lotze and Walt Grasmeier each have 5. Single goals have been scored by Reiner Schwebel, Lee Roberts and Selimotic.

Coach Bob Graves' Kickers are off to their best start in the League Division of the GASA since graduating from the Central New York Soccer Association, a league they dominated for several years.

The expectation is the league will play at least three weekends before the annual winter hiatus. Coach Graves' highly geared Kickers are confident they can sweep the set and open the 1968 phase of the season with their best chance yet to win the divisional title.

While Kingston figures to romp against Schwaben, Yonkers hosts third place Bavarians (tied with White Plains), while the Plainsmen travel to Dalmatinac (3-2-3).

Sunday's game at Oehler's will be preceded by a preliminary between the reserve teams at 1 p. m.

Hawkins, Vaughn Lead Piper Win

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Some deadeye shooting by Connie Hawkins and Chico Vaughn snapped a three-game losing streak for the Pittsburgh Pipers in the American Basketball Association.

Hawkins, with 27 points, and Vaughn, with 22, combined for 49 points to lead the Pipers over the Minnesota Muskies at Pittsburgh Thursday night. The Muskies took a 12-point lead in the third period, but couldn't hold it when Hawkins and Vaughn cut loose.

Five of Vaughn's seven baskets were three-pointers from outside the 25-foot line. Hawkins got 10 field goals and made seven of seven free throws. Don Freeman topped the Muskies with 23 points.

The Oakland Oaks snapped a five-game losing streak by edging the Houston Mavericks 99-98 in the other ABA scheduled game. Houston had the ball for the last 22 seconds, but Dewitt Menyard's try for a winning basket in the closing seconds bounced off the rim.

Jim Hadnot led the winners with 24 points. Art Becker topped Houston with 20.

Kenya's Attorney General Nixes Latest Miniskirts

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) — Attorney General Charles Njonjo would like to get a law passed banning miniskirts but fears it would give Kenya's police force too much extra work.

Airing his views in a local newspaper, Njonjo revealed a split in the Kenya cabinet over women's fashion.

Whereas the bachelor Attorney-General denounced miniskirts as "human depravity," Minister of Commerce and Industry Mwai Kibaki reported he approved of them on younger women.

But Njonjo is adamant.

"I think the miniskirt fashion is ugly," he said. "It seems to accentuate the ugly parts of the body — from the knees downward. I saw a lot of these minis in London and it was terrible. I can only think of it as human depravity.

"I once thought of introducing legislation to ban miniskirts but it would mean having all the police force on the street. One can only hope that with the occasional scathing letter in the press, women will stop wearing them."

Njonjo disapproves also of African women who straighten their hair. He reported he had warned his sister he would not associate with her if she straightened hers.

Commerce and Industry Minister Kibaki is more of a fashion liberal. His sole aversion is to boots.

Look Here Mrs. Homemaker

Meat shoppers who choose pork this November will profit from the ample supplies at the market. Prices are lower than last year, with specials on numerous cuts widely advertised, says Louise M. Kakargo. With prices favorable, now may be a good time to treat the family to some of the more costly choice cuts of pork.

Pork plentiful this November. Supplies are high enough this fall for pork to place on the U. S. Department of Agriculture's list of plentiful foods for November. Pork production under Federal inspection in recent weeks has been considerably above a year earlier. In addition, supplies typically show a seasonal increase at this time of year.

One way to get the most for the money is to take advantage of pork sales. Markets have frequently been featuring several cuts of pork at special sale prices in recent weeks.

Even when pork is not low in price as it is currently, it offers high meat value for the money. Cut for cut, pork is usually less expensive than other meats.

Pork does not vary as much in tenderness and flavor as other meats because for one thing, hogs are marketed at an early age. Tender, well-flavored meat comes from these young animals. Then, too hogs are bred solely for meat and can be relatively easily improved by selective breeding.

The best roasts and chops come from the loin. They are the most demanded cuts of pork and sell for a higher price per pound than cuts from the shoulder section.

The loin is one of the leanest cuts, second only to the Boston, a shoulder cut, in per cent of lean meat, but it also has a high amount of bone which adds to the cost of a serving. The amount of bone differs by location on the loin. Center cut chops from the middle of the loin will yield four servings per pound, but end roasts will yield only two and one-half servings per pound.

A whole pork loin weighing from 10 to 14 pounds can be cut into three pieces: loin end, center, and rib end. The loin end is the thickness of the three with a large portion of the tenderloin and a sizable bone. The center loin roast has the T-bone and is easily carved into uniform chop portions; it contains the tip end of the tenderloin. The rib end has the most bone and no tenderloin, yet yields tender, juicy meat.

The backbones of these pork roasts are useful during cooking as a natural rack holding the meat above the drippings. To simplify carving, have the backbone loosened before cooking so it can be removed easily.

Match chops to intended use. When buying pork chops, it is best to know in advance how you plan to cook them so they can be cut to the appropriate thickness. Thin chops — one-half inch — are best fried or panbroiled. For broiling, chops should be at least one inch thick. The distance of the meat from the heat source should be adjusted to allow for slow broiling and thorough cooking. For braising or baking, chops should be cut from three-fourths to one and one-fourth inches thick.

Hints from Heloise

Dear Folks:

I just discovered something that my husband said is a terrific idea.

So here 'tis:

We've been saving cardboard rolls from toilet tissue, foil, wax paper, etc. and knew we would find good use for them. And we did.

One of the best things we've found is to use them to start a fire in a fireplace or a barbecue grill. They are great when placed under logs or briquettes.

You can roll up wax paper or newspaper and stick it inside the cardboard roll (and don't forget that newspaper must have a small air hole in the middle of it.) Man, does it start a fire!

Just place them between the logs—which will allow the oxygen to get through so the flames will start — and away it goes! The wax peper ignites quickly and the center of the tube allows good ventilation.

So, gals, never throw away those tubes from rolls of anything you buy. They have many uses.

Heloise

P. S. We have learned that since testing this ieda, it is well also to save all cardboard boxes or containers that are coated with wax. Just tear open the bottom of the boxes, roll them up, wring tightly (that means twist), and use for your fire starters, too.

You should put them at the bottom of the fire if you're starting big logs, or between the logs if you're piling on lots of small logs.

It's the most fantabulous thing you've ever seen in your entire life.

Heloise

Dear Heloise:

I made a lightweight cover for my heating pad and sewed a strip of tape across each end. The strips extend out about six inches.

Now, if I need heat on an arm or leg, I can just tie it on and it will stay in place without holding.

A Reader

Dear Heloise:

Those clear plastic trays that supermarkets use to package meats are so handy around the house.

I use a large one under the electric can-opener to catch drips, and a small one under the vinegar and oil bottles. I also use them under bottles and cans in the cupboard where I keep my cleaning supplies.

I think they're great.

Dear Heloise:

When I make chiffon or angel food cakes, or anything where the egg whites have to be folded into the batter last, I remove the beaters from the mixer and leave the bowl on the turntable.

Then I pour the egg whites over the batter, gently folding them in as I pour.

As I stir with the spoon, the motion moves the bowl around on the turn-table. This makes for even distribution of the eggs and batter.

Sure makes the last step of mixing much easier, without the feeling of needing a third hand.

Roberta Paranick

Dear Heloise:

Recently I ripped up one of my daughter's old nylon net petticoats to use as a sweater drier.

I washed and pressed the pieces, and sewed two together just large enough for a sweater to fit on nicely. I also sewed a strip for a tie to each corner.

I had planned to fasten this to a frame. So far I have just tied it real taut between my clotheslines. It works so well like that that I'm not going to bother with the frame.

I like it very much because my sweaters dry so fast with the air circulating up through the net.

Need Proper Research For a Good Paper

By The Reading Laboratory

(Excerpted from the World publishing Company Book, "Study Faster and Retain More." Illustrations by Roy Doty)

When paper time comes around, many students rush in a panic to the library for the first time that year.

How many times have you wandered around a strange library, wishing you were sure of what you wanted and where to find it?

By now you should be aware that regular use of the library puts you far ahead of your classmates when you've been assigned a paper.

You've probably been told many times that you can't write a good paper if you aren't clear about your topic. Usually students react to this by saying, "How can I know what I want to say before I start my paper?" They don't believe it's possible. But it is. And it is true that the better you organize your research, the better you will organize what you have to say.

Suppose your history teacher assigns a research paper. She tells you to pick the topic, but she wants you to collect facts to support an interpretation of an event, or a period, or a person's role in history. When you pick your topic, you have to remember two things.

First, the topic has to be the right size for you to handle in the time you have.

Second, it has to be a topic for which you can get the necessary information.

Once you've done a little thinking about the topics that might interest you, it's time to take a trip to the library you've been using. You might go first to the reference section and skim articles in an encyclopedia or a biographical dictionary to test your interest.

Let's assume you've found a topic you want to write about. If there is a bibliography at the end of the reference article you read, jot it down, including the author's name, title, publisher and date of publication, volume and edition of each book.

Now, go to the card catalogue to make sure your library has books or articles on your topic. Remember you can look up the subject itself or the titles and authors of books you've found mentioned in other places.

Everything is going smoothly. Your library has many books and articles on your topic. Begin by writing down the titles on note cards.

Now you have to select what you are going to read. To do that you should know something about the books, and often a conference with your teacher or the librarian can help you at this stage. They can eliminate material that is too complicated, out-of-date, or even poorly written.

When you start to read for your paper, begin with the most general reading. Always move from general to more detailed information. This helps fix firmly in your mind what your topic is, what the subtopics are, and finally what facts you will need to support your interpretations.

As you read you should take notes on 5x7 cards ,using a separate card for every important point. Also include the book title and page number for the reference, in case you need to look it up later or use it in a footnote. And keep your notes in a card file, organized under subject headings.

Now that you've finished your research, you can begin writing your paper using all the skills summarizing that you've learned here. If you've studied well, you will have a clear and interesting paper!

Hoople's Picks

Middies to Beat KHS, Sawyers Over Beacon

BY MAJOR AMOS B. HOOPLE
Peerless Pigskin Phophet

Egad, friends, this is a week that is guaranteed to please even the zaniest football filbert. In every section of our glorious land collegiate titans are set to bang heads against each other.

Ah, yes, dear readers, the high school head hunters also have some big ones this week.

For those who might not have had time to follow our predictions a week ago, we had a whooping 22 of 25 games correctly picked.

Included was the Rondout Valley UCAL clinching victory over Liberty and Onteora's upset win at Marlboro.

The Hoople System—kaff-kaff — correctly forecast that Miami would knock Virginia Tech from the ranks of the unbeaten and that Yale's Bulldogs would do the same to Dartmouth. We narrowly missed on our UCLA-Oregon State forecast when the Uclans rallied to boot three field goals for a 16-16 tie—um-kumph!

Gazing into the crystal ball, we see those monsters from Middletown beating Kingston, 27-7, on the Dietz Stadium sod; Saugerties coming out on top of Beacon, 19-13; Poughkeepsie gaining a share of the DCSL crown by whipping Arlington, 27-7; and Newburgh riding Port Jervis into the ground, 20-6.

Our Three-Star Special in the collegiate ranks is Penn State to end the North Carolina State streak at eight games by edging the Wolfpack, 15-7. And remember, you read it first in the Hoople forecast —harumph!

The Old Boy Himself

In two other big attractions, I like Indians to whip the Michigan State Spartans, 26-8, and the lightning fast Purdue boys over the powerful, but ponderous Minnesota Gophers, 22-12.

Dr. I. M. Inorbit, our West Coast correspondent who is on leave from the Cape Kennedy Space Center, assures us Southern California will hold on to its No. 1 rating by turning back the tough Oregon State Beavers, 26-19. He also gives us UCLA over Washington, 10-8, and Wyoming's Cowboys over New Mexico, 37-3.

I have dispatched some of my correspondents to the four schools involved in the two Thanksgiving Day Classics and they will give me detailed reports on the eve of the games.

My weekend figures to be hectic. I have to speak at the diet-watchers forum tonight; will attend meeting of the New York Football Giant critics with George Svirsky and Digger Gilpatric Saturday at Chic's Plaza Eating Palace and have to deliver some of Uncle George's Hot Weiner Sauce to servicemen at the Palo Alto Fun Club Saturday night before flying back to the area for an elbow bending party at Bonnie's late Sunday.

Now on with the forecast.

Edwards' NHL Debut Results in 5-1 Win

By The Associated Press

Roy Edwards has spent his first sleepless night as a Natal Hockey League goalie — haunting the Pittsburgh Penguins.

Edwards, a chronic winter insomniac for nine minor league seasons, made his NHL debut Thursday night in the Detroit Red Wings' cage and breezed past Pittsburgh 5-1.

Los Angeles' West Division leaders stunned Toronto's East Division front-runners 4-1 in the only other game on the schedule, snapping the Maple Leafs' unbeaten string at five.

Edwards' victory over the Penguins was doubly sweet for the 30-year-old journeyman, rescued from the minors by Detroit this week to replace shook-up Roger Crozier. Edwards was selected by Pittsburgh in the expansion draft last spring, only to be cut loose before the start of the season.

The Red Wings got him in a trade for goalie Hank Bassen, then farmed him out to Fort Worth of the Central League, where he registered four shutouts, a 1.33 goals-against average and an 8-0-1 record in nine games. He was promoted Tuesday after Crozier, strafed for 18 goals as the Wings lost three straight last week, abruptly quit the game and went home to Canada.

Edwards was beaten in the first period by Bill Speer's long screened shot on a Pittsburgh power play. He blanked the Penguins the rest of the way while goals by Floyd Smith, Ted Hampson, Dean Prentice, Doug Roberts and Norm Ullman lifted the Wings into a second place tie with New York in the East—two points behind the Maple Leafs.

Ed Joyal, a former Leaf, scored twice and rookie goalie Wayne Rutledge came up with 37 saves to pace Los Angeles to its third victory over an established NHL club. Brian Smith and defenseman Dale Rolfe also connected for the Kings, who now lead second-place Pittsburgh by five points in the West.

Csonka Seeks Records For Syracuse Eleven

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (AP) — Larry Csonka, power - running fullback for Syracuse University, will be going for a school football record Saturday when the Orange meets underdog Holy Cross.

The bruising fullback needs only 86 yards to erase Floyd Little's career record of 2,704 yards. He already has surpassed the rushing feats as former Orange stars Jimmy Brown and Ernie Davis.

The game at Archbold Stadium highlights a state football schedule Saturday that also finds Army at home against Utah, Buffalo at Villanova, Cornell at home against Brown, and Colgate at Hamilton against Bucknell.

The remainder of the schedule includes Union at Alfred, Northeastern at Cortland, St. Lawrence at Hamilton, RPI at Hobart, American International at Ithaca and Brockport at Shippenburg.

Holy Cross (4-2) will be relying on quarterback Phil O'Neil to provide the brunt of the attack. The Crusaders are off to the finest start since 1962 and have provided Yale's only loss.

Army (6-1), fresh from a victory over Air Force, hopes to extend its winning string with a triumph over Utah (3-4). A decisive victory could place the Cadets in strong contention for the Lambert Trophy, traditional symbol of Eastern football supremacy.

Buffalo (5-3) also can assure a winning season if they can get by Villanova (3-5).

Knicks Rip Cincy, 123-106

By ED SCHUYLER Jr.
Associated Press Sports Writer

"When you get a lot of talent together, sometimes it's hard to bring it together as a unit."

So says Willis Reed.

And for a time Thursday night it looked like it was going to be another one of those hard times for Reed and the rest of the New York Knickerbockers.

The Knicks, considered by most observers to have more talent than they've had in many a year, looked something like a computer with its tape in backwards as they fell behind 32-22 to Cincinnati after one quarter.

Then, presto—every unit clicked and the Knicks had a 123-106 National Basketball Association victory over the Royals.

Celtics Win

In other NBA action, Detroit edged Seattle 119-118 in the opening half of a doubleheader which also featured the Knicks-Royals at New York's Madison Square Garden, and Boston beat the Bulls 107-93 at Chicago.

"There's no team other than Boston or Philadelphia that is deeper than us," Reed said after the Knicks ran the Royals, hobbled by Oscar Robertson's injury and the lack of a big man to help Jerry Lucas, off the court.

The Knicks began clicking as soon as the second period started, running off 10 straight points to tie the game at 32-32. They led 88-83 after three periods and then clinched their sixth victory in 13 games when Walt Bellamy and Dick Barnett each hit for eight points to give them a 104-89 lead.

Detroit trailed for most of the game, took a 119-115 and then spent some anxious seconds.

Joe Strawder put Detroit ahead 117-115 with a foul shot. Eddie Miles then batted the ball from the hands of Seattle's Bob Rule and Detroit's Dave Bing picked it up. He was fouled in the backcourt and made both foul shots for a 119-115 Piston lead.

Walt Hazard then made it 119-117 with a Seattle basket, and with five seconds left Bob Weiss stole Detroit's inbounds pass, took a shot and was fouled. He made the first but missed the second, and the Pistons' Dave DeBusschere grabbed the rebound.

39 for Bing

Bing led all scorers with 39 points. Hazard dumped in 33 and Rule 32 for Supersonics.

Boston fell behind 58-45 at intermission but roared back for its eighth victory in nine games as Sam Jones scored 18 points in the second half.

Jones finished with 25 and player-coach Bill Russell added 21 for the Celtics. Jerry Sloan and Bob Boozer each got 24 for the Bulls.

We thought our new "Winning Line" game would be a real winner, and it is.
For everyone but us.
People are beating us at our own game right and left. Thousands of people so far. And for more money than you'd believe.
So if you haven't struck it rich yet, don't despair. The game is still going strong. You don't have to buy anything. And we've resigned ourselves to losing over a million dollars before we cry "Uncle."
A tidy sum. Which might make you think that we're in this for more than fun and games. We are. In fact, we even figure that we're coming out ahead.
Because we know that for every dollar—all the way up to 2500 of them—that we pay out in prizes, someone has gotten to know us and the things we sell.
So what are we really losing? Only games. But we're winning friends.
And that was the whole idea. Mobil

Kingston Plays Powerful Middies Here Saturday

By ED PALLADINO
Freeman Sports Staff

Fresh from its spine-tingling win last week over Hudson, Kingston High's 2-4 grid team returns to the friendly Dietz Stadium confines to entertain powerful Middletown in a Saturday DUSO feature. Game time is 1:30.

Six other games are on tap in the final weekend of schoolboy football activity. Only the traditional Thanksgiving Day contests remain.

In another DUSO feature, Newburgh plays at Port Jervis.

There's a pivotal DCSL attraction matching unbeaten Poughkeepsie at Arlington. Saugerties High closes its season at Beacon in another circuit tilt.

The non-league slate has Lourdes going to Nanuet, Tri-Valley playing at Ellenville and Roosevelt finishing up at New York Military Academy.

Though Middletown has lost its last two games, the Middies figure to be the toughest opponent on the KHS schedule.

After victories over Spring Valley (14-0), Mt. Vernon (14-7), Newburgh (13-6) and Mamaroneck (49-6), the Middies were belted, 52-14, by Mont Pleasant and, 23-13, by White Plains.

Hughes Keys Middies

Quarterback Paul Hughes, a three-year veteran, is the key to the Middie hopes. An excellent passer, he throws to split end John Peterson, tight end Charlie Thomas and tailback Dick Field. Fullback Don day and flanker Ron Lybolt are the leading ground gainers.

Kingston, which played its best game of the year against Hudson, will be trying to snap a seven game loss skein at the hands of the visitors. The last KHS triumph was in 1959.

Coach Bill Hurley was pleased with the overall performance of his gridders at Hudson. "We moved the ball well but our offense didn't do the job in close," he said. The Maroon players were inside the Hudson 10 on four occasions and failed to score.

The local need this win to keep their DUSO championship hopes alive. A victory over the Middies and another against Newburgh Thanksgiving will also make a .500 season out of a woeful start.

Port Jervis and Newburgh will be battling for survival in their game at the Hilly City gridiron. The Raiders hold a win over Kingston and must play Middletown on Turkey Day.

Can Tie for First

Poughkeepsie, tied only by Wappingers, can clinch a DCSL tie by beating Arlington. However, this is a traditional contest with both teams at fever pitch. An upset is not out of the question and coach Don Smith's club must give an all-out effort.

Saugerties and Beacon are winless in DCSL competition and the winning eleven will escape the cellar. The Sawyers played a good game against Roosevelt while the Bulldogs have been going downhill, having been walloped in recent weeks by Newburgh and Poughkeepsie.

In the non-league efforts, Lourdes is the choice to snap a three-game losing streak at Nanuet; Roosevelt is favored over New York Military Academy and Ellenville should close its season with a victory over outclassed Tri-Valley.

Honor Messenger at NYMA

New York Military Academy at Cornwall-on-Hudson will dedicate its football field in memory of General Edwin Messenger on Nov. 11.

The dedication will take place during the half-time period of the football game between NYMA and Roosevelt High which highlights the annual fall homecoming weekend.

Gen. Messenger, who died in 1965, was a native of Kingston who played varsity football at Kingston High, NYMA and later at the U. S. Military Academy at West Point in 1928, 1929 and 1930. He earned All-America recognition as an end on the Army teams.

Mrs. Messenger, the former Emily C. Nelson will be the NYMA superintendent's special guest at the ceremony and will unveil a bronze tablet. Brief remarks will be made by Donald S. Walker, Class of 1920 at NYMA and a member of the Board of Trustees who played football at the Naval Academy about the same time General Messenger was playing for Army.

GENERAL MESSENGER

The Cadet First Captain, the color guard and the academy band will participate on behalf of the corps.

A star in three major sports—football, baseball and basketball—Gen. Messenger entered NYMA in Sept. 1924, graduating with the class of 1925. With the U. S. Military Academy as his goal, he returned to NYMA for a post graduate course in 1925-26.

At NYMA, he was voted "Best New Guy" by the upperclassmen. He was also elected captain of the football team for the following year, a singular honor for a one-year man.

Gen. Messenger served in World War II and Korean campaign and received numerous decorations for distinguished service in each war. In July, 1954, he was assigned to the prestigious post of Commandant of Cadets at the United States Military Academy.

Schwaben Club Here Sunday

All-America Eugene (Gino) Ventriglia's 11 goals lead the Kingston Sport Club, as the unbeaten Kickers seek their seventh German-American Soccer Association victory Sunday at Oehler's Mountain Lodge.

With a record of 6 wins, 2 ties and no losses, Kingston has 14 points to lead runnerup Yonkers by one point. The Sunday opposition—Schwaben of New York—is mired near the cellar with a win, tie and six losses.

With Ventriglia setting the pace, the Kickers have racked up a league leading total of 37 goals, six more than the runnerup Yonkers squad which has played one more game than the locals.

Runnerup to Ventriglia, the former State U (New Paltz) wizard is Elliott Robbie-Asare, the tall Republic of Ghana star now attending State U who has 7 goals. Tony Reinhardt has scored 5. Richie Lotze and Walt Grasmeier each have 5. Single goals have been scored by Reiner Schwebel, Lee Roberts and Selimotic.

Coach Bob Graves' Kickers are off to their best start in the League Division of the GASA since graduating from the Central New York Soccer Association, a league they dominated for several years.

The expectation is the league will play at least three weekends before the annual winter hiatus. Coach Graves' highly geared Kickers are confident they can sweep the set and open the 1968 phase of the season with their best chance yet to win the divisional title.

While Kingston figures to romp against Schwaben, Yonkers hosts third place Bavarians (tied with White Plains), while the Plainsmen travel to Dalmatinac (3-2-3).

Sunday's game at Oehler's will be preceded by a preliminary between the reserve teams at 1 p. m.

Hawkins, Vaughn Lead Piper Win

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Some deadeye shooting by Connie Hawkins and Chico Vaughn snapped a three-game losing streak for the Pittsburgh Pipers in the American Basketball Association.

Hawkins, with 27 points, and Vaughn, with 22, combined for 49 points to lead the Pipers over the Minnesota Muskies at Pittsburgh Thursday night. The Muskies took a 12-point lead in the third period, but couldn't hold it when Hawkins and Vaughn cut loose.

Five of Vaughn's seven baskets were three-pointers from outside the 25-foot line. Hawkins got 10 field goals and made seven of seven free throws. Don Freeman topped the Muskies with 23 points.

The Oakland Oaks snapped a five-game losing streak by edging the Houston Mavericks 99-98 in the other ABA scheduled game. Houston had the ball for the last 22 seconds, but Dewitt Menyard's try for a winning basket in the closing seconds bounced off the rim.

Jim Hadnot led the winners with 24 points. Art Becker topped Houston with 20.

Green Bay Selected To Defeat Cleveland

By MURRAY ROSE
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — New Orleans' upset of the heavily favored Philadelphia Eagles last Sunday and the flu bug combined to knock out Jack Hand, the regular operator of this weekly guessing game. While Hand is recuperating and resting on a 56-20-7 record, we borrowed his play books and miniature computer.

But you need more help than that in trying to figure out the big game of the week—Green Bay vs. Cleveland—for both the National and American football leagues Sunday.

Baltimore finally caught up to Green Bay after losing to the Packers five straight, and now the Browns have the same chance against the Packers at Milwaukee. It's going to be very close but we don't think the Browns are going to make it.

Here's how we see the Sunday program:

NFL

Green Bay 17, Cleveland 14—The Packers, leaders in the Central Division with 5-2-1, will have Donny Anderson and Ben Wilson as their running backs in place of injured regulars Elijah Pitts and Jim Grabowski. But Vince Lombardi has Bart Starr at quarterback as well as the NFL's No. 1 team in total defense and pass defense. The Browns, 5-3, tied with St. Louis for first in the Century Division, have a battered quarterback in Frank Ryan but a terrific 1-2 running punch in Leroy Kelly and Ernie Green. This match-up will be seen on television in most parts of the country. Starting time is 4 p.m., EST.

Baltimore 35, Atlanta 7—The Colts, 6-0-2, the only unbeaten team in the NFL and just a game in front of Los Angeles in the Coastal Division, beat the Falcons, 1-6-1, 38-31, in their opener after holding a 31-7 lead at the half. Johnny Unitas and Co. won't let down this time at Atlanta.

Dallas 28, New Orleans 14—The Cowboys, 6-2, leaders of the Cahitol Division, should break the Saints' one-game winning streak at New Orleans.

St. Louis 31, Pittsburgh 7—The Cardinals, 5-3, have Jim Bakken, the league's top scorer, to throw a fright into the Steelers, 2-6, at St. Louis. Bakken kicked a record seven field goals in nine attempts in a 28-14 win over the Steelers at Pittsburgh on Sept. 24.

Los Angeles 35, Philadelphia 7—The erratic Eagles, upset 31-24 by New Orleans last week, are hurting badly with tackle Bob Brown, tight end Mike Ditka and defensive back Ron Medved out. L.A. is 5-1-2 and Philadelphia 4-4.

Chicago 28, New York 24—The Giants, 4-4, have been hurt badly on kickoff returns. The Bears ,3-5, have the NFL's best kickoff returner in Gale Sayers.

San Francisco 28, Washington 14—The 49ers, 5-3, have lost their last two games while the Skins, 2-4-2, haven't won in their last five (two ties, three losses). Washington probably regains linebacker Sam Huff from the injury list but it won't be enough even on the homefield.

Minnesota 17, Detroit 7—An upset for the rebounding Vikings, 2-5-1, over the tough Lions, 3-4-1, at Minnesota. The Vikings' fine rookies are coming along fast.

AFL

New York 28, Buffalo 24—The Bills, 3-5, have beaten the Jets, 5-2-1, in their last four meetings. Although the Jets have lost running back Emerson Boozer, they may get Matt Snell back.

Houston 14, Denver 10—The Oilers, 4-3-1, are still trying to mesh their attack but should just have enough over the Broncos, 1-8, at Denver. Denver has lost eight straight.

San Diego 35, Miami 7—The Dolphins, 1-6, have lost six straight. Quarterback Bob Griese is improving but the Chargers, 5-1-1, rested after a week off, have too many guns.

Kansas City 14, Boston 10—The Chiefs, 5-3, with Mike Garrett rolling up 192 yards, whipped the Jets 42-18 last week while the Patriots 3-5-1, beat Houston, 18-7. This one's at Boston but the Chiefs, with 94 points in their last two games, are on the warpath.

Oakland, leading the Western Division with a 7-1 record, has a bye this week.

Arnold Palmer

Arnie, Jack Cup Leaders

By STRATFORD C. JONES

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Arnold Palmer and Jack Nicklaus, fighting to keep the World Cup golf team championship for the United States, held a one-point lead over Argentina today as the second round started and 80 golfers sharpened to the course.

Palmer, who said the greens seemed to have gotten faster overnight, made most putts count as he came out of the first nine two-under par, shaved off two more strokes on the back nine, and finished with a 68 that tied him with Argentina's Florentino Molina for low individual score.

Nicklaus fired a steady 72 to give Palmer the backing he needed. Molina's teammate, Fidel de Luca, came in at 73.

South Africa's Gary Player carded a 69 on the strength of his putting. He finished with a flourish, sinking a 30-foot putt on the 17th and a 10-footer on the 18th for two birdies.

Palmer and Nicklaus, who are defending the team title they won last year in Tokyo, played three holes in the rain, which caught Player and teammate Harold Henning on the 18th.

Player and Henning hoped to get back in it as a team today.

"Harold finished with a 74.," Player said Thursday, "but he had some impossible shots. He didn't play that badly, more like a 71."

In at 70 were Canada's Al Balding, Spain's Ramon Sota, and Jose Maria Gonzalez of Brazil. George Knudson of Canada, defending his individual championship won at Tokyo, shot a 73, but his teammate said later, "George will be the individual star before this thing is over."

Balding said he believed the altitude was affecting him, as did Palmer. "I've never felt so shaky," said Balding.

Palmer said that in the pro-am tourney Wednesday the altitude affected him so much he couldn't drive. "But I felt much better today," Palmer said.

The 7,250-yard course demands exacting placement of shots, and all golfers here who talk about the greens summed them up in one word: "Difficult."

Trailing the U.S. and Argentina in team standings as the second round started were Canada, South Africa, and the Belgian team of Donald Swaelens and Flory Van Donck, all at 143.

Simpson Back For USC

By RON RAPOPORT
Associated Press Sports Writer

The giants meet the giant killer Saturday and the giant's doctor says he will be at top strength for the test.

Top-ranked Southern California received the good news Thursday that running back O.J. Simpson, out of action last week with an injured food, will be able to start against Oregon State.

The Trojans survived Simpson's absence last week and beat California, but Oregon State is another matter entirely. The Beavers beat Purdue earlier in the season when the Boilermakers were ranked second in th country and last week they tied UCLA, also No. 2 at the time.

Simpsons return makes Southern Cal Coach John McKay about the happiest man in Los Angeles. Already this season O.J. has gained 1,050 yards on 203 carries.

Also on the West Coast, fourth-ranked UCLA tuned up for Washington as Gary Beban completed 15 of 17 passes in a scrimmage Thursday. The Bruins are 6-0-1 while the Huskies are 5-3.

Second-ranked Tennessee, 5-1, meets Tulane, 3-4, and third-ranked North Carolina State, 8-0, has a tough opponent in Penn State, which is 5-2 and is riding a four-game winning streak.

Purdue, No. 5 with a 6-1 mark, is another team with a battle on its hands. The Boilermakers meet Minnesota, which is 6-1 and unbeaten in Big Ten play. The Gophers have won five straight.

Indiana, ranked sixth and unbeaten in seven games, faces another potential barrier to its Rose Bowl dreams, meeting Michigan State, which is dangerous despite its 2-5 mark.

Wyoming, No. 7 and 8-0, plays New Mexico, which has lost seven in a row after its opening-game victory. Okalhoma, No. 8 and 5-1, meets Iowa State, 2-6, in a Big Eight game.

Ninth-ranked Notre Dame, 5-2, travels to Pittsburgh, 1-6, and 10-ranked Houston plays Memphis State, 5-2, at night.

CHICAGO (AP) — Jockey Leonard Pong, 39, of Hamilton, Ont., died Thursday in a hospital where he was being treated for a basal skull fracture and internal injuries after being thrown from his mount in the seventh race at Sportsman's Park.

FRAN TARKENTON SAYS:

Simple Pass Play Leads to Touchdown

Let me take you inside the huddle of a professional football team the way it really happens. I'll reconstruct an actual game situation.

In the third quarter of the New York-Minnesota game, I had just completed a slant-in pass on second down and long yardage to Homer Jones, who ran the ball to the Viking 44-yard line. Back on my own 35, walking to where the officials spotted the ball, I could see we were going to be a half yard short.

As the officials were measuring to confirm my belief, I started thinking: "What should I do? Should I try a 21 quick trap or a dive 26 or 27? That would be a running play to give us the short yardage to keep the drive going. "Or," my thoughts kept running, "should I fake a sweep 27, wide delay and over."

THAT WOULD BE a pass play hoping for a big gainer against the jammed Viking defense. It was the only pass pattern that ran through my mind, and I save it for special occasions.

I was standing on the right side of the field, almost in line with the ball. Center Gregg Larson already had formed the huddle several yards behind it. When I broke into the circle of men, the five linemen were on my right, starting with Charlie Harper, the right tackle. Directly across the huddle was Ernie Koy and beside him Homer, then the other backs and ends until we got to tight end Aaron Thomas at my left elbow.

I LOOKED OVER at Homer and said: "Get you a good split and run an inside fly. And if the inside safety doesn't pick you up, I got you." I wanted Homer to know he was a receiver and clear things out.

If the safety doesn't pick him up, I'll go to Homer with the pass because that's the play I already made up my mind to call. Once in the huddle, I didn't waste any time. You only have 30 seconds. I yelled: "Red right, fake sweep, 27 delay and over, on one!" There's never time for conversation.

IN MY FIRST GAME in the NFL, Hugh McElhenny came back to the huddle after a long run and gasped: "Kid, don't run me. I'm tired." I ran him the next two plays. Being a pro, he ran well.

Some teams may tip off whether it's going to be a pass or a run by the length of time they stay in the huddle. When you have to describe pass routes, it takes longer to call a pass play. To throw the other team off, I have on occasion called a quick running play, then repeated the call in the huddle to keep the boys there longer.

With the play decided, I clapped my hands together and so did the other 10 guys to break the huddle and swing around to line up over the ball.

I trotted up behind them and looked over the defense. This was the important part for me. I expected the Vikings to be a true 6-1 defense, with the two outside linebackers down and dirty and coming. They were. But Jeff Jordan, the weakside safety, was up close and jumping around, which bothered me. He'd be right in Aaron Thomas' way if I passed to the tight end.

I STARTED MY cadence: "Set." The team went from hands to knees to a three-point stance. "Four-85." That was a dummy call to confuse them.

"Ready. Hut! The ball went into my hands. We're off.

I turned around and faked a handoff to Tucker Frederickson. I didn't know what I'd see when I turned around again to pass.

I looked first to Homer and saw a lot of color around him. He wasn't open. Then I switched to Aaron, who had cut across behind the defensive line and was all alone in the left flat.

I threw him the ball, and he went for a touchdown. I wish they were all that simple.

Damascus Is Favored To Cop International

By ORLO ROBERTSON
Associated Press Sports Writer

LAUREL, Md. (AP) — The $150,000 Washington D.C. International will be run for the 16th time at Laurel Saturday with Damascus, the uncrowned king of American thoroughbreds, the strong favorite even though he never has competed in a grass course race.

The 1½-mile race over the finely-cropped turf, one of the world's horse racing classics despite its youth, has a strong American flavor with five of the nine entries from seven countries either bred in the United States, owned by an American or tracing their ancestry back to U.S. breeding farms.

First prize of $90,000 will be at stake when the nine get the word from Starter Eddie Blind at 3:45 p.m., EST, with national television (NBC) scheduled for 3:30-4 p.m., EST.

In addition to Mrs. Edith W. Bancroft's Damascus, the United States will be represented by Fort Marcy, a proven grass course performer fom the Rokeby Stable of Paul Mellon.

Ribocco, bred in the blue grass country of Kentucky and owned by platinum king Charles W. Engelhard of Far Hills, N.J., and In Command, a 3-year-old filly, will carry the hopes of England.

From Australia comes Tobin Bronze, a 5-year-old for whom William Breliant and I. M. Litz of Los Angeles recently paid somewhere between $336,000 and $448,000.

He's A Smoothie, Canadian champion owned by Bill Beasley of Toronto and trained by his son, Warren, was bred north of the border but his roots are in Kentucky. His sire, Round Table, stands in the Blue Grass country and his dam, Ratine, was a one-time resident of the same area.

Middies to Beat KHS, Sawyers Over Beacon

BY MAJOR AMOS B. HOOPLE
Peerless Pigskin Phophet

Egad, friends, this is a week that is guaranteed to please even the zaniest football filbert. In every section of our glorious land collegiate titans are set to bang heads against each other.

Ah, yes, dear readers, the high school head hunters also have some big ones this week.

For those who might not have had time to follow our predictions a week ago, we had a whooping 22 of 25 games correctly picked.

Included was the Rondout Valley UCAL clinching victory over Liberty and Onteora's upset win at Marlboro.

The Hoople System—kaff-kaff — correctly forecast that Miami would knock Virginia Tech from the ranks of the unbeaten and that Yale's Bulldogs would do the same to Dartmouth. We narrowly missed on our UCLA-Oregon State forecast when the Uclans rallied to boot three field goals for a 16-16 tie—um-kumph!

Gazing into the crystal ball, we see those monsters from Middletown beating Kingston, 27-7, on the Dietz Stadium sod; Saugerties coming out on top of Beacon, 19-13; Poughkeepsie gaining a share of the DCSL crown by whipping Arlington, 27-7; and Newburgh riding Port Jervis into the ground, 20-6.

Our Three-Star Special in the collegiate ranks is Penn State to end the North Carolina State streak at eight games by edging the Wolfpack, 15-7. And remember, you read it first in the Hoople forecast —harumph!

In two other big attractions, I like Indians to whip the Michigan State Spartans, 26-8, and the lightning fast Purdue boys over the powerful, but ponderous Minnesota Gophers, 22-12.

Dr. I. M. Inorbit, our West Coast correspondent who is on leave from the Cape Kennedy Space Center, assures us Southern California will hold on to its No. 1 rating by turning back the tough Oregon State Beavers, 26-19. He also gives us UCLA over Washington, 10-8, and Wyoming's Cowboys over New Mexico, 37-3.

I have dispatched some of my correspondents to the four schools involved in the two Thanksgiving Day Classics and they will give me detailed reports on the eve of the games.

My weekend figures to be hectic. I have to speak at the diet-watchers forum tonight; will attend meeting of the New York Football Giant critics with George Svirsky and Digger Gilpatric Saturday at Chic's Plaza Eating Palace and have to deliver some of Uncle George's Hot Weiner Sauce to servicemen at the Palo Alto Fun Club Saturday night before flying back to the area for an elbow bending party at Bonnie's late Sunday.

Now on with the forecast.

Edwards' NHL Debut Results in 5-1 Win

By The Associated Press

Roy Edwards has spent his first sleepless night as a Natal Hockey League goalie — haunting the Pittsburgh Penguins.

Edwards, a chronic winter insomniac for nine minor league seasons, made his NHL debut Thursday night in the Detroit Red Wings' cage and breezed past Pittsburgh 5-1.

Los Angeles' West Division leaders stunned Toronto's East Division front-runners 4-1 in the only other game on the schedule, snapping the Maple Leafs' unbeaten string at five.

Edwards' victory over the Penguins was doubly sweet for the 30-year-old journeyman, rescued from the minors by Detroit this week to replace shook-up Roger Crozier. Edwards was selected by Pittsburgh in the expansion draft last spring, only to be cut loose before the start of the season.

The Red Wings got him in a trade for goalie Hank Bassen, then farmed him out to Fort Worth of the Central League, where he registered four shutouts, a 1.33 goals-against average and an 8-0-1 record in nine games. He was promoted Tuesday after Crozier, strafed for 18 goals as the Wings lost three straight last week, abruptly quit the game and went home to Canada.

Edwards was beaten in the first period by Bill Speer's long screened shot on a Pittsburgh power play. He blanked the Penguins the rest of the way while goals by Floyd Smith, Ted Hampson, Dean Prentice, Doug Roberts and Norm Ullman lifted the Wings into a second place tie with New York in the East—two points behind the Maple Leafs.

Ed Joyal, a former Leaf, scored twice and rookie goalie Wayne Rutledge came up with 37 saves to pace Los Angeles to its third victory over an established NHL club. Brian Smith and defenseman Dale Rolfe also connected for the Kings, who now lead second-place Pittsburgh by five points in the West.

Csonka Seeks Records For Syracuse Eleven

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (AP) — Larry Csonka, power - running fullback for Syracuse University, will be going for a school football record Saturday when the Orange meets underdog Holy Cross.

The bruising fullback needs only 86 yards to erase Floyd Little's career record of 2,704 yards. He already has surpassed the rushing feats as former Orange stars Jimmy Brown and Ernie Davis.

The remainder of the schedule includes Union at Alfred, Northeastern at Cortland, St. Lawrence at Hamilton, RPI at Hobart, American International at Ithaca and Brockport at Shippenburg.

Holy Cross (4-2) will be relying on quarterback Phil O'Neil to provide the brunt of the attack. The Crusaders are off to the finest start since 1962 and have provided Yale's only loss.

Army (6-1), fresh from a victory over Air Force, hopes to extend its winning string with a triumph over Utah (3-4). A decisive victory could place the Cadets in strong contention for the Lambert Trophy, traditional symbol of Eastern football supremacy.

Buffalo (5-3) also can assure a winning season if they can get by Villanova (3-5).

Knicks Rip Cincy, 123-106

By ED SCHUYLER Jr.
Associated Press Sports Writer

"When you get a lot of talent together, sometimes it's hard to bring it together as a unit."

So says Willis Reed.

And for a time Thursday night it looked like it was going to be another one of those hard times for Reed and the rest of the New York Knickerbockers.

The Knicks, considered by most observers to have more talent than they've had in many a year, looked something like a computer with its tape in backwards as they fell behind 32-22 to Cincinnati after one quarter.

Then, presto—every unit clicked and the Knicks had a 123-106 National Basketball Association victory over the Royals.

Celtics Win

In other NBA action, Detroit edged Seattle 119-118 in the opening half of a doubleheader which also featured the Knicks-Royals at New York's Madison Square Garden, and Boston beat the Bulls 107-93 at Chicago.

"There's no team other than Boston or Philadelphia that is deeper than us," Reed said after the Knicks ran the Royals, hobbled by Oscar Robertson's injury and the lack of a big man to help Jerry Lucas, off the court.

The Knicks began clicking as soon as the second period started, running off 10 straight points to tie the game at 32-32. They led 88-83 after three periods and then clinched their sixth victory in 13 games when Walt Bellamy and Dick Barnett each hit for eight points to give them a 104-89 lead.

Detroit trailed for most of the game, took a 119-115 and then spent some anxious seconds.

Joe Strawder put Detroit ahead 117-115 with a foul shot. Eddie Miles then batted the ball from the hands of Seattle's Bob Rule and Detroit's Dave Bing picked it up. He was fouled in the backcourt and made both foul shots for a 119-115 Piston lead.

Walt Hazard then made it 119-117 with a Seattle basket, and with five seconds left Bob Weiss stole Detroit's inbounds pass, took a shot and was fouled. He made the first but missed the second, and the Pistons' Dave DeBusschere grabbed the rebound.

39 for Bing

Bing led all scorers with 39 points. Hazard dumped in 33 and Rule 32 for Supersonics.

Boston fell behind 58-45 at intermission but roared back for its eighth victory in nine games as Sam Jones scored 18 points in the second half.

with an Ariens SNO-THRO

Put yourself BEHIND an Ariens Sno-Thro — then . . . let it snow, let it blow, let it drift . . . let that weather get just as mean as it wants to get. Your worries about "getting out", shoveling, and missed appointments or work need never bother you again.

Ariens gives you "self-propelled" operation. No pushing, jamming or bucking into drifts or plowed-in driveways. With four speeds, you work at the pace you want to work and a reverse allows you to turn around without pushing and pulling. Two stage design principle handles heavy wet snow, drifted packed snow or light little flurries . . . with equal ease. Four, five, six or seven horse power engine and directional chute will move snow up to 30 feet . . . where it need not be handled again. NEW LOCK-OUT DIFFERENTIAL: Switch from differential wheel action to straight through power train traction — simply, quickly. Prevents one-wheel spin during operation.

Ariens GARD-N-YARD EQUIPMENT

When you see this sign . . . You're at the right place . . . Just walk in and ask to see an Ariens SNO-THRO.

We thought our new "Winning Line" game would be a real winner, and it is.

For everyone but us.

People are beating us at our own game right and left. Thousands of people so far. And for more money than you'd believe.

So if you haven't struck it rich yet, don't despair. The game is still going strong. You don't have to buy anything. And we've resigned ourselves to losing over a million dollars before we cry "Uncle."

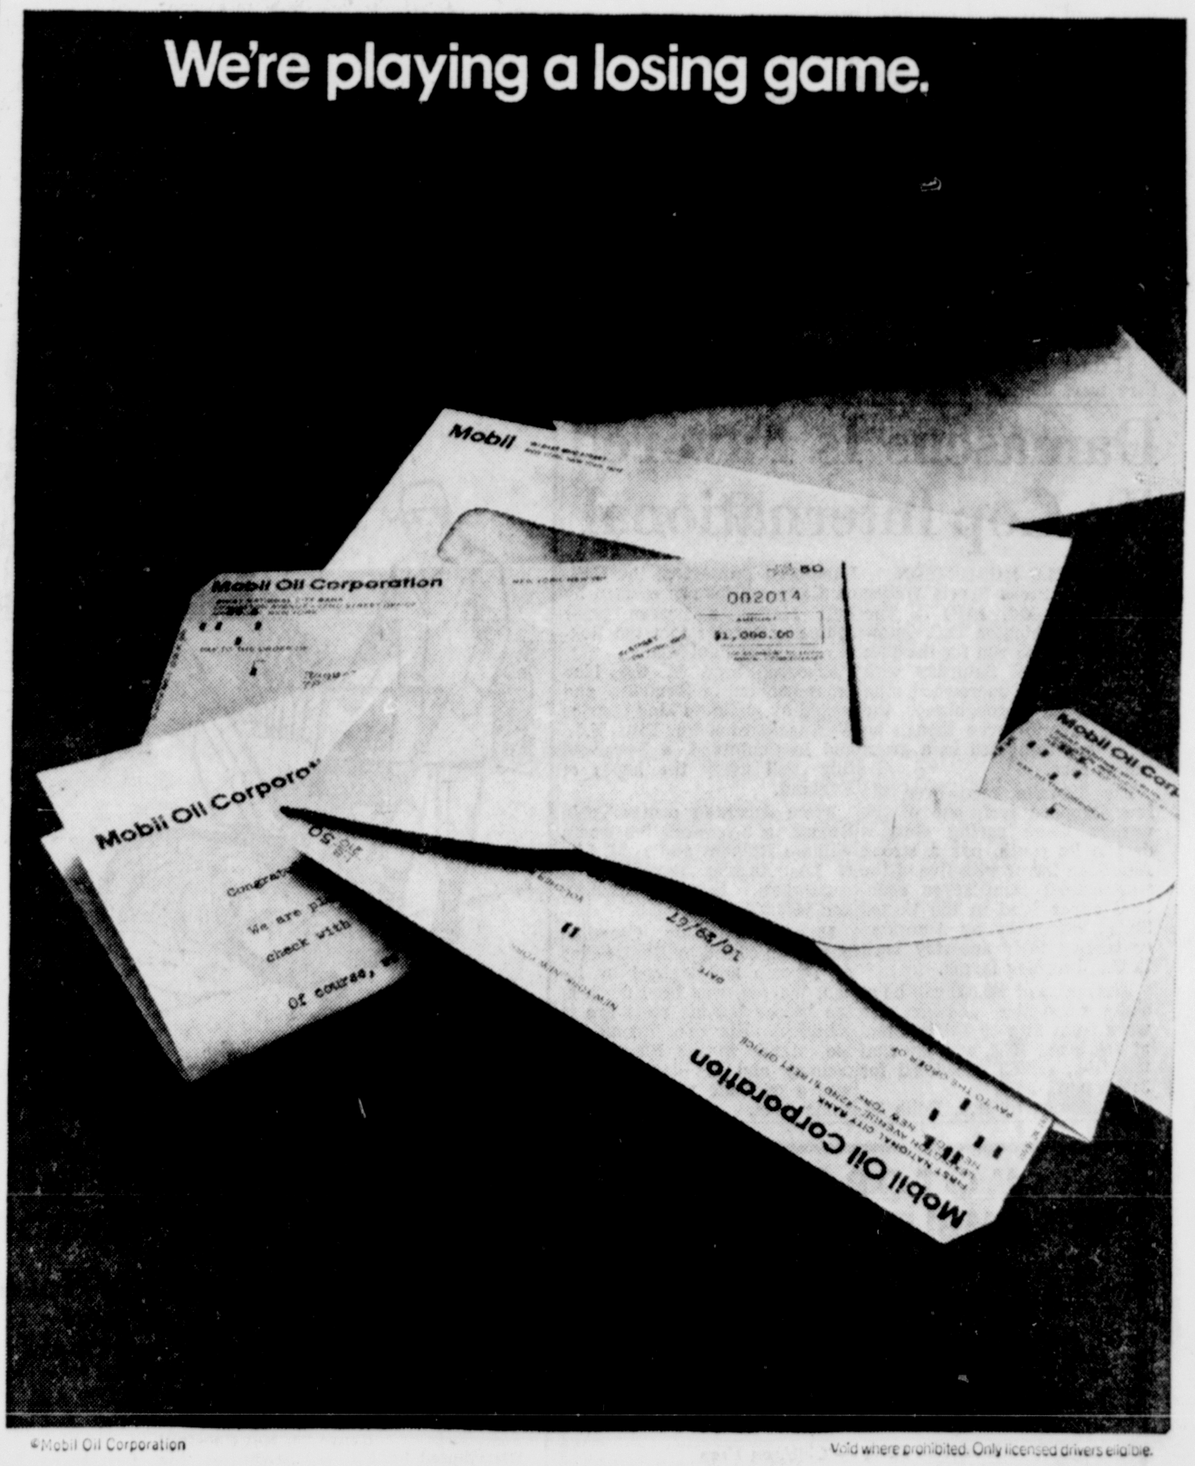

A tidy sum. Which might make you think that we're in this for more than fun and games. We are. In fact, we even figure that we're coming out ahead.

Because we know that for every dollar—all the way up to 2500 of them—that we pay out in prizes, someone has gotten to know us and the things we sell.

So what are we really losing? Only games. But we're winning friends.

And that was the whole idea. Mobil

We're playing a losing game.

Green Bay Selected To Defeat Cleveland

By MURRAY ROSE
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — New Orleans' upset of the heavily favored Philadelphia Eagles last Sunday and the flu bug combined to knock out Jack Hand, the regular operator of this weekly guessing game. While Hand is recuperating and resting on a 56-20-7 record, we borrowed his play books and miniature computer.

But you need more help than that in trying to figure out the big game of the week—Green Bay vs. Cleveland—for both the National and American football leagues Sunday.

Baltimore finally caught up to Green Bay after losing to the Packers five straight, and now the Browns have the same chance against the Packers at Milwaukee. It's going to be very close but we don't think the Browns are going to make it.

Here's how we see the Sunday program:

NFL

Green Bay 17, Cleveland 14—The Packers, leaders in the Central Division with 5-2-1, will have Donny Anderson and Ben Wilson as their running backs in place of injured regulars Elijah Pitts and Jim Grabowski. But Vince Lombardi has Bart Starr at quarterback as well as the NFL's No. 1 team in total defense and pass defense. The Browns, 5-3, tied with St. Louis for first in the Century Division, have a battered quarterback in Frank Ryan but a terrific 1-2 running punch in Leroy Kelly and Ernie Green. This match-up will be seen on television in most parts of the country. Starting time is 4 p.m., EST.

Baltimore 35, Atlanta 7—The Colts, 6-0-2, the only unbeaten team in the NFL and just a game in front of Los Angeles in the Coastal Division, beat the Falcons, 1-6-1, 38-31, in their opener after holding a 31-7 lead at the half. Johnny Unitas and Co. won't let down this time at Atlanta.

Dallas 28, New Orleans 14—The Cowboys, 6-2, leaders of the Cahitol Division, should break the Saints' one-game winning streak at New Orleans.

St. Louis 31, Pittsburgh 7—The Cardinals, 5-3, have Jim Bakken, the league's top scorer, to throw a fright into the Steelers, 2-6, at St. Louis. Bakken kicked a record seven field goals in nine attempts in a 28-14 win over the Steelers at Pittsburgh on Sept. 24.

Los Angeles 35, Philadelphia 7—The erratic Eagles, upset 31-24 by New Orleans last week, are hurting badly with tackle Bob Brown, tight end Mike Ditka and defensive back Ron Medved out. L.A. is 5-1-2 and Philadelphia 4-4.

Chicago 28, New York 24—The Giants, 4-4, have been hurt badly on kickoff returns. The Bears, 3-5, have the NFL's best kickoff returner in Gale Sayers.

San Francisco 28, Washington 14—The 49ers, 5-3, have lost their last two games while the Skins, 2-4-2, haven't won in their last five (two ties, three losses). Washington probably regains linebacker Sam Huff from the injury list but it won't be enough even on the homefield.

Minnesota 17, Detroit 7—An upset for the rebounding Vikings, 2-5-1, over the tough Lions, 3-4-1, at Minnesota. The Vikings' fine rookies are coming along fast.

AFL

New York 28, Buffalo 24—The Bills, 3-5, have beaten the Jets, 5-2-1, in their last four meetings. Although the Jets have lost running back Emerson Boozer, they may get Matt Snell back.

Houston 14, Denver 10—The Oilers, 4-3-1, are still trying to mesh their attack but should just have enough over the Broncos, 1-8, at Denver. Denver has lost eight straight.

San Diego 35, Miami 7—The Dolphins, 1-6, have lost six straight. Quarterback Bob Griese is improving but the Chargers, 5-1-1, rested after a week off, have too many guns.

Kansas City 14, Boston 10—The Chiefs, 5-3, with Mike Garrett rolling up 192 yards, whipped the Jets 42-18 last week while the Patriots 3-5-1, beat Houston, 18-7. This one's at Boston but the Chiefs, with 94 points in their last two games, are on the warpath.

Oakland, leading the Western Division with a 7-1 record, has a bye this week.

Arnold Palmer

Arnie, Jack Cup Leaders

By STRATFORD C. JONES

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Arnold Palmer and Jack Nicklaus, fighting to keep the World Cup golf team championship for the United States, held a one-point lead over Argentina today as the second round started and 80 golfers sharpened to the course.

Palmer, who said the greens seemed to have gotten faster overnight, made most putts count as he came out of the first nine two-under par, shaved off two more strokes on the back nine, and finished with a 68 that tied him with Argentina's Florentino Molina for low individual score.

Nicklaus fired a steady 72 to give Palmer the backing he needed. Molina's teammate, Fidel de Luca, came in at 73.

South Africa's Gary Player carded a 69 on the strength of his putting. He finished with a flourish, sinking a 30-foot putt on the 17th and a 10-footer on the 18th for two birdies.

Palmer and Nicklaus, who are defending the team title they won last year in Tokyo, played three holes in the rain, which caught Player and teammate Harold Henning on the 18th.

Player and Henning hoped to get back in it as a team today.

"Harold finished with a 74," Player said Thursday, "but he had some impossible shots. He didn't play that badly, more like a 71."

In at 70 were Canada's Al Balding, Spain's Ramon Sota, and Jose Maria Gonzalez of Brazil. George Knudson of Canada, defending his individual championship won at Tokyo, shot a 73, but his teammate said later, "George will be the individual star before this thing is over."

Balding said he believed the altitude was affecting him, as did Palmer. "I've never felt so shaky," said Balding.

Palmer said that in the pro-am tourney Wednesday the altitude affected him so much he couldn't drive. "But I felt much better today," Palmer said.

The 7,250-yard course demands exacting placement of shots, and all golfers here who talk about the greens summed them up in one word: "Difficult."

Trailing the U.S. and Argentina in team standings as the second round started were Canada, South Africa, and the Belgian team of Donald Swaelens and Flory Van Donck, all at 143.

Simpson Back For USC

By RON RAPOPORT
Associated Press Sports Writer

The giants meet the giant killer Saturday and the giant's doctor says he will be at top strength for the test.

Top-ranked Southern California received the good news Thursday that running back O.J. Simpson, out of action last week with an injured food, will be able to start against Oregon State.

The Trojans survived Simpson's absence last week and beat California, but Oregon State is another matter entirely. The Beavers beat Purdue earlier in the season when the Boilermakers were ranked second in th country and last week they tied UCLA, also No. 2 at the time.

Simpsons return makes Southern Cal Coach John McKay about the happiest man in Los Angeles. Already this season O.J. has gained 1,050 yards on 203 carries.

Also on the West Coast, fourth-ranked UCLA tuned up for Washington as Gary Beban completed 15 of 17 passes in a scrimmage Thursday. The Bruins are 6-0-1 while the Huskies are 5-3.

Second-ranked Tennessee, 5-1, meets Tulane, 3-4, and third-ranked North Carolina State, 8-0, has a tough opponent in Penn State, which is 5-2 and is riding a four-game winning streak.

Purdue, No. 5 with a 6-1 mark, is another team with a battle on its hands. The Boilermakers meet Minnesota, which is 6-1 and unbeaten in Big Ten play. The Gophers have won five straight.

Indiana, ranked sixth and unbeaten in seven games, faces another potential barrier to its Rose Bowl dreams, meeting Michigan State, which is dangerous despite its 2-5 mark.

Wyoming, No. 7 and 8-0, plays New Mexico, which has lost seven in a row after its opening-game victory. Okalhoma, No. 8 and 5-1, meets Iowa State, 2-6, in a Big Eight game.

Ninth-ranked Notre Dame, 5-2, travels to Pittsburgh, 1-6, and 10-ranked Houston plays Memphis State, 5-2, at night.

CHICAGO (AP) — Jockey Leonard Pong, 39, of Hamilton, Ont., died Thursday in a hospital where he was being treated for a basal skull fracture and internal injuries after being thrown from his mount in the seventh race at Sportsman's Park.

FRAN TARKENTON SAYS:

Simple Pass Play Leads to Touchdown

Let me take you inside the huddle of a professional football team the way it really happens. I'll reconstruct an actual game situation.

In the third quarter of the New York-Minnesota game, I had just completed a slant-in pass on second down and long yardage to Homer Jones, who ran the ball to the Viking 44-yard line. Back on my own 35, walking to where the officials spotted the ball, I could see we were going to be a half yard short.

As the officials were measuring to confirm my belief, I started thinking: "What should I do? Should I try a 21 quick trap or a dive 26 or 27? That would be a running play to give us the short yardage to keep the drive going. "Or," my thoughts kept running, "should I fake a sweep 27, wide delay and over."

THAT WOULD BE a pass play hoping for a big gainer against the jammed Viking defense. It was the only pass pattern that ran through my mind, and I save it for special occasions.

I was standing on the right side of the field, almost in line with the ball. Center Gregg Larson already had formed the huddle several yards behind it. When I broke into the circle of men, the five linemen were on my right, starting with Charlie Harper, the right tackle. Directly across the huddle was Ernie Koy and beside him Homer, then the other backs and ends until we got to tight end Aaron Thomas at my left elbow.

I LOOKED OVER at Homer and said: "Get you a good split and run an inside fly. And if the inside safety doesn't pick you up, I got you." I wanted Homer to know he was a receiver and clear things out.

If the safety doesn't pick him up, I'll go to Homer with the pass because that's the play I already made up my mind to call. Once in the huddle, I didn't waste any time. You only have 30 seconds. I yelled: "Red right, fake sweep, 27 delay and over, on one!" There's never time for conversation.

IN MY FIRST GAME in the NFL, Hugh McElhenny came back to the huddle after a long run and gasped: "Kid, don't run me. I'm tired." I ran him the next two plays. Being a pro, he ran well.

Some teams may tip off whether it's going to be a pass or a run by the length of time they stay in the huddle. When you have to describe pass routes, it takes longer to call a pass play. To throw the other team off, I have on occasion called a quick running play, then repeated the call in the huddle to keep the boys there longer.

With the play decided, I clapped my hands together and so did the other 10 guys to break the huddle and swing around to line up over the ball.

I trotted up behind them and looked over the defense. This was the important part for me. I expected the Vikings to be a true 6-1 defense, with the two outside linebackers down and dirty and coming. They were. But Jeff Jordan, the weakside safety, was up close and jumping around, which bothered me. He'd be right in Aaron Thomas' way if I passed to the tight end.

I STARTED MY cadence: "Set." The team went from hands to knees to a three-point stance. "Four-85." That was a dummy call to confuse them.

"Ready. Hut! The ball went into my hands. We're off.

I turned around and faked a handoff to Tucker Frederickson. I didn't know what I'd see when I turned around again to pass.

I looked first to Homer and saw a lot of color around him. He wasn't open. Then I switched to Aaron, who had cut across behind the defensive line and was all alone in the left flat.

I threw him the ball, and he went for a touchdown. I wish they were all that simple.

Damascus Is Favored To Cop International

By ORLO ROBERTSON
Associated Press Sports Writer

LAUREL, Md. (AP) — The $150,000 Washington D.C. International will be run for the 16th time at Laurel Saturday with Damascus, the uncrowned king of American thoroughbreds, the strong favorite even though he never has competed in a grass course race.

The 1½-mile race over the finely-cropped turf, one of the world's horse racing classics despite its youth, has a strong American flavor with five of the nine entries from seven countries either bred in the United States, owned by an American or tracing their ancestry back to U.S. breeding farms.

First prize of $90,000 will be at stake when the nine get the word from Starter Eddie Blind at 3:45 p.m., EST, with national television (NBC) scheduled for 3:30-4 p.m., EST.

In addition to Mrs. Edith W. Bancroft's Damascus, the United States will be represented by Fort Marcy, a proven grass course performer fom the Rokeby Stable of Paul Mellon.

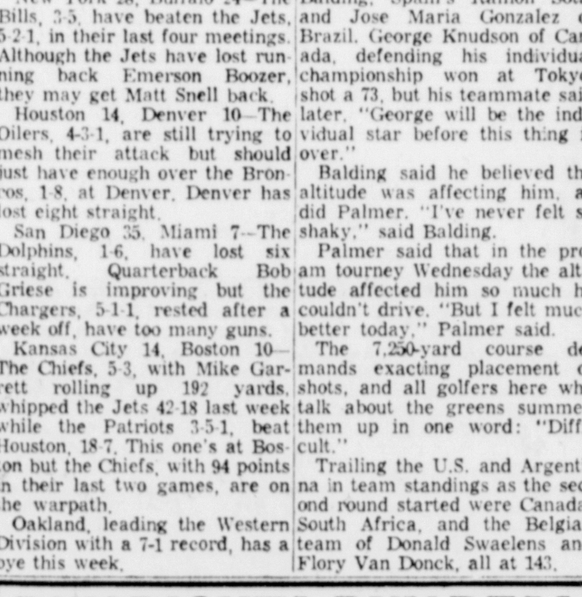

Ribocco, bred in the blue grass country of Kentucky and owned by platinum king Charles W. Engelhard of Far Hills, N.J., and In Command, a 3-year-old filly, will carry the hopes of England.

From Australia comes Tobin Bronze, a 5-year-old for whom William Breliant and I. M. Litz of Los Angeles recently paid somewhere between $336,000 and $448,000.

He's A Smoothie, Canadian champion owned by Bill Beasley of Toronto and trained by his son, Warren, was bred north of the border but his roots are in Kentucky. His sire, Round Table, stands in the Blue Grass country and his dam, Ratine, was a one-time resident of the same area.

Dear Abby

Girl Not a Facts Bureau

DEAR ABBY: I am 13 and people tell me I am very mature for my age. Abby, I know more about the facts of life and the course of nature than most kids, and I got it straight from my mother. She told me everything starting from the age of 8.

I don't know how I got the reputation, but girls from 10 to 16 come to me for information about the pill and that sort. Even boys come to me with questions.

Should I answer their questions, or tell them to ask their mothers or what?

"LITTLE ABBY"

DEAR "LITTLE ABBY": I don't know how you got the reputation of knowing so much, but it's not because you've kept it a secret. If a girl (between 10 and 16) asks a 13-year-old for information about "the pill and that sort," perhaps her mother should know she is seeking such information, so the best thing for you to do is to tell her to ask her mother. Your own mother appears to have pretty good sense, so ask her how much she thinks you should be telling the other kids.

DEAR ABBY: We are a family of five, plus one. The new addition is a basset hound. We got him when he was 3 weeks old. He was real cute then and everybody loved him.

Today he is 8 months old and a regular pain-in-the-neck. When he eats, he slops all over. And when he drinks water, his ears get sopping wet. He drools and climbs up on the furniture and slobbers all over everybody and everything. And he's still not housebroken.

My husband can't stand him. He says he makes him sick. I put up with the dog because the children love him. My husband wants to get rid of him, but it would break the children's hearts.

The hound's name is "Snoopy," but we should have named him "Smelly." But that's another problem. What should we do?

DOG TIRED

DEAR DOG TIRED: It's not the poor dog's fault that he wasn't properly trained to be a lovable, obedient, attractive pet. Dogs (not unlike children) can't be expected to know what they haven't been taught. It may be too late to train "Snoopy," but give it a try. Otherwise, I'm with dad.

DEAR ABBY: This is for Cindy, whose husband asks her out with only an hour's notice:

God bless him for asking you and not one of the girls from the office. Let me tell you from experience, it's smart always to be ready. Have a long list of sitters you can call at the last minute. And some good "friends" in reserve in case you can't get a sitter. Do something with your hair during the daytime just in case that's the night your husband wants to take you out. And always have something ready to wear.

Me? I take no chances. All I need is 5 minutes notice and I can get ready for an audience with the Pope. PREPARED.

CONFIDENTIAL TO Hurt Wife: Tell your loving husband that a married man has no business wearing an I.D. bracelet given to him by an old flame, and if it doesn't "mean anything" he shouldn't mind putting it away. And until he does he shouldn't expect you to function properly as a loving wife.

How has the world been treating you? Unload your problems on Dear Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Calif. 90069. For a personal, unpublished reply, inclose a self-addressed, stamped envelope.

For Abby's booklet, "How to Have a Lovely Wedding," send $1.00 to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal., 90069

Bridge

Only Gain Is Declarer's Risk

By Oswald and James Jacoby

Westport bridge teacher Sally Johnson won the mixed pairs at Grossinger's in New York this September. Sally really had to bid and play this hand well, and we will let her tell her own story:

"When my partner didn't bother to use Blackwood on his way to six, he told me that he wasn't interested in aces. Therefore, I could be sure that he held all four first round controls. In that case, my king-small of clubs and seven-card trump suit had to be pure gold, so I went on from six to seven.

"The dummy was a trifle disappointing. I had hoped for better clubs and, of course the queen of hearts was worth nothing to me. I just didn't know how to go about playing the hand. Of course, if clubs would break a friendly 3-2, I would have no worries. I also would have a cinch if I could ruff out my three spades in dummy. The problem there was that I would have to get to my hand three times for the ruffs and a fourth time to draw trumps, and I would wind up losing a trick to the nine of trumps.

"Finally I decided to try for the 3-2 club break but to give myself an extra chance in case East would hold singletons in both minor suits. I played one trump to my king and then led out king and another club. East couldn't follow, but he couldn't ruff and was stone cold dead. I ruffed a club, entered dummy with the jack of trumps, ruffed another club to set up the last two, ruffed a spade, discarded my last two spades on the good clubs and was home."

The key to her whole play was that she risked nothing in case clubs broke 3-2 but gave herself one slight extra chance, and the one slight extra chance was there for her.

BARBS

By PHIL PASTORET

Rushed right over to tell you about the man who cassed a friend in Chinatown and got a wong number.

There's only one thing to do with a poison-pen letter: toss it into the insunuator.

What with rising prices and one thing and another, the fine, old art of penny-pinching has given way to quarter-squeezing.

Our Girl Friday is getting her hair restyled today — and she'll pick ut up after work.

Neighbor of ours has no interest in horses, though he has a nag at home.

It pays to get a haircut every week. Just ask the barber.

For breakfast, we like fruit, cereal, eggs, bacon, toast and coffee. We get coffee.

Quick Quiz

Why We Say--

CAN'T BE SPLIT: The word atom is derived from the Greek "atamos" which means indivisible. The name was applied because it was wrongly thought that the atom was the smallest unit which could not be split. Scientists now know the great power obtained by dividing atoms.

a short visit

During his sojourn to France, a trip which lasted three weeks, he visited all the major cities and seacoast towns. The travel agency announced it would sponsor an elaborate sojourn to Las Vegas.

As a child, John and his parents would make an annual sojourn to visit his great-grandmother who lived in a small country village.

Carol Channing Resourceful

NEW YORK (AP) — Miss Carol Channing, former star of "Hello Dolly", arrived at 21, at the peak of the lunch-hour rush in her working clothes. The guardian of its portals looked, recognized, gasped—and barred her from the dining area.

Miss Channing's work clothes were white wool plus fours, a matching Norfolk jacket worn with black turtleneck sweater, black woolen socks and white buckskin golf shoes (without cleats). "My walking suit," she said.

So Back to Limousine

The management of 21 enforces its ban on ladies in pants as rigidly as it does its regulation that gentlemen wear ties.

Miss Channing, however, is a woman of resource. She returned to her chauffeur-driven limousine and back she came in a pale tourmaline mink coat that covered her discreetly from ear lobes to knees. A headwaiter led her party to a corner table.

Miss Channing's curious costume was part of her current job: drumming up interest in her forthcoming ABC special, "Carol Channing and 101 men" next Wednesday night.

The special is the first of six in three years she is to do under her ABC contract, sandwiched in between film commitments and, if plans mature, another Broadway musical.

Carol had an overnight success 17 years ago on Broadway with "Gentlemen Prefer Blondes." Her Dolly was a sell-out and she left the Broadway cast to tour the country in the show. Next she did the film, "Thoroughly Modern Millie." She has not had a vacation in years.

"My idea of a vacation is a change of occupation—like going from "Dolly" to "Millie." You can have more fun working with a new company than just going some place and sitting around."

Dear Abby

Girl Not a Facts Bureau

DEAR ABBY: I am 13 and people tell me I am very mature for my age. Abby, I know more about the facts of life and the course of nature than most kids, and I got it straight from my mother. She told me everything starting from the age of 8.

I don't know how I got the reputation, but girls from 10 to 16 come to me for information about the pill and that sort. Even boys come to me with questions.

Should I answer their questions, or tell them to ask their mothers or what?

"LITTLE ABBY"

DEAR "LITTLE ABBY": I don't know how you got the reputation of knowing so much, but it's not because you've kept it a secret. If a girl (between 10 and 16) asks a 13-year-old for information about "the pill and that sort," perhaps her mother should know she is seeking such information, so the best thing for you to do is to tell her to ask her mother. Your own mother appears to have pretty good sense, so ask her how much she thinks you should be telling the other kids.

DEAR ABBY: We are a family of five, plus one. The new addition is a basset hound. We got him when he was 3 weeks old. He was real cute then and everybody loved him.

Today he is 8 months old and a regular pain-in-the-neck. When he eats, he slops all over. And when he drinks water, his ears get sopping wet. He drools and climbs up on the furniture and slobbers all over everybody and everything. And he's still not housebroken.

My husband can't stand him. He says he makes him sick. I put up with the dog because the children love him. My husband wants to get rid of him, but it would break the children's hearts.

The hound's name is "Snoopy," but we should have named him "Smelly." But that's another problem. What should we do?

DOG TIRED

DEAR DOG TIRED: It's not the poor dog's fault that he wasn't properly trained to be a lovable, obedient, attractive pet. Dogs (not unlike children) can't be expected to know what they haven't been taught. It may be too late to train "Snoopy," but give it a try. Otherwise, I'm with dad.

DEAR ABBY: This is for Cindy, whose husband asks her out with only an hour's notice:

God bless him for asking you and not one of the girls from the office. Let me tell you from experience, it's smart always to be ready. Have a long list of sitters you can call at the last minute. And some good "friends" in reserve in case you can't get a sitter. Do something with your hair during the daytime just in case that's the night your husband wants to take you out. And always have something ready to wear.

Me? I take no chances. All I need is 5 minutes notice and I can get ready for an audience with the Pope. PREPARED.

CONFIDENTIAL TO Hurt Wife: Tell your loving husband that a married man has no business wearing an I.D. bracelet given to him by an old flame, and if it doesn't "mean anything" he shouldn't mind putting it away. And until he does he shouldn't expect you to function properly as a loving wife.

How has the world been treating you? Unload your problems on Dear Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Calif. 90069. For a personal, unpublished reply, inclose a self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Bridge

Only Gain Is Declarer's Risk

By Oswald and James Jacoby

Westport bridge teacher Sally Johnson won the mixed pairs at Grossinger's in New York this September. Sally really had to bid and play this hand well, and we will let her tell her own story:

"When my partner didn't bother to use Blackwood on his way to six, he told me that he wasn't interested in aces. Therefore, I could be sure that he held all four first round controls. In that case, my king-small of clubs and seven-card trump suit had to be pure gold, so I went on from six to seven.

"The dummy was a trifle disappointing. I had hoped for better clubs and, of course the queen of hearts was worth nothing to me. I just didn't know how to go about playing the hand. Of course, if clubs would break a friendly 3-2, I would have no worries. I also would have a cinch if I could ruff out my three spades in dummy. The problem there was that I would have to get to my hand three times for the ruffs and a fourth time to draw trumps, and I would wind up losing a trick to the nine of trumps.

"Finally I decided to try for the 3-2 club break but to give myself an extra chance in case East would hold singletons in both minor suits. I played one trump to my king and then led out king and another club. East couldn't follow, but he couldn't ruff and was stone cold dead. I ruffed a club, entered dummy with the jack of trumps, ruffed another club to set up the last two, ruffed a spade, discarded my last two spades on the good clubs and was home."

The key to her whole play was that she risked nothing in case clubs broke 3-2 but gave herself one slight extra chance, and the one slight extra chance was there for her.

Why We Say--

CAN'T BE SPLIT: The word atom is derived from the Greek "atamos" which means indivisible. The name was applied because it was wrongly thought that the atom was the smallest unit which could not be split. Scientists now know the great power obtained by dividing atoms.

Urges Contract Renewal for 1968 Services of Kingston Laboratory

Pointing to the increasing cost of services to Ulster County under a contract with the Kingston Laboratory for welfare and public health laboratory services, Supervisor Clarence C. Raichle, (R), 12th Ward, in a report to the Board of Supervisors, Thursday has recommended the contract be renewed for 1968. However, he suggests that the Board be ready to shift to a "Fee-for-service" method of payment by 1969.

Under the fee-for-service charge for the Social Services Department payment for welfare laboratory tests would be reimbursable at about 75 per cent, whereas under the present system, the county's payments are reimbursable at 50 per cent.

Charges Increase

In the last six months of 1966, the monthly average of cancelled laboratory charges to outpatient Medicaid cases was approximately $100 per month. This rose to approximately $380 in the first quarter of 1967, in the second quarter to $420 per month and in the third quarter to $630 per month.

The cancelled charges for hospitalized welfare patients have likewise increased to an average of $3,500 per month.

Raichle in his report says "the value of the public health laboratory service alone performed on the county contract at no charge to individuals is estimated to reach $157,000 this year."

Obviously these services must continue to be provided to the residents of the county, Raichle points out. "Yet when we consider that 40 per cent of our population is eligible for Medicaid, it is easy to understand the ultimate cost of this meteoric rise, and we can project an even greater rise in the future."

Raichle points out that the county cannot expect to be able to finance these increases in laboratory costs under the same contract.

Lists Services

Services rendered under the contract include free tests for welfare, hospital or outpatients; all laboratory tests for County Health Department in reference to water supply, sewage disposal, milk supply, air pollution, stream pollution and pollen count. All laboratory tests concerned with communicable diseases are performed without charge. The laboratory pathologist performs autopsies and provides consultation for the county coroners and the lay enforcement agencies without charge. In Dutchess County this service alone calls for a $28,000 item in the county budget.

Raichle notes that the present system has provided outstanding service at an insignificant cost, and that the "much publicized cry for a medical examiner system would prove to be a most expensive service in the final analysis it is doubtful whether it could match out present system."

Referring to previous reports, Raichle says, "we really had an unusual bargain in being able to contract services we must provide our taxpayer for less than 70 per cent of what these services would cost if we had to purchase them elsewhere.

He predicts there will soon be an increase in the amount of laboratory work as a result of Medicare and Medicaid for welfare patients and a consequent increase in cost to the county unless a new way can be found to finance the heavy welfare requirements.

In conclusion Raichle reviews some of the new ideas and plans of the laboratory staff for the future, including use of computer equipment.

Morse in Poughkeepsie:

Strategy for War, War, War

POUGHKEEPSIE, N.Y. (AP) — Sen. Wayne Morse, D-Ore., an outspoken critic of United States foreign policy, said today the U.S. has no strategy for peace in Asia, only a strategy for war.

Morse made his comments in a speech prepared for delivery at Dutchess County Community College.

Assails Rusk

"We have no strategy for peace in Asia," Morse said. "We have only a strategy for war. It calls for war, war, and more war from one end of Asia to the other, all the way from Korea to the subcontinent of India, for those are the ends of the line encircling China described by Secretary of State Dean, Rusk."

Morse accused Rusk of perpetuating "the old China hand attitude towards China which was so bound up with Chiang Kai-shek that it has never been willing to admit that Chiang is not China and Taiwan is not China."

Chiang, leader of Nationalist China, was forced from the mainland to Taiwan (Formosa) in 1949 by the Red Chinese. The U.S. has not recognized the mainland regime.

"Mr. Rusk speaks of a billion Chinese with nuclear weapons," Morse said, "but his State Department deals with Chiang Kai-shek and Taiwan when it deals with China."

'Tragic Disparity'

Morse called this "tragic disparity between fact and State Department fantasy in Asia" the greatest failure in U.S. diplomacy.

"When is the State Department going to take its head out of the sand and begin to offer the American people some approach to China that will deal with her in peaceful terms rather than in the terms of nuclear weapons?" Morse asked.

The senator said campus anti-war protests are becoming almost as much of an issue as the reason for the protests. But those who condemn them must keep open certain legitimate channels for debate, he said.

"And here the administration itself is in serious trouble. Far from demonstrating that representative democracy affords dissenters full opportunity to communicate and to change public policy where they can make a convincing case, the administration is rapidly closing those channels," he said.

Morse said it is difficult to convince young people when millions voted for "the peace candidate in 1964, only to find that he vastly expanded the war as soon as the election was over."

New Academy Headmaster Briefs Kiwanis on School

Declaring that "schools are competing for the attention of youth today," Raymond Nelson, headmaster of the new Ulster Academy, spoke before the Kingston Kiwanis Club concerning the new "co-ed college preparatory school" to be established locally.

Nelson revealed that he had been working with youth for the past 15 years, that he was "impressed with young people," and that he believed his life's work to be the "ministry of education."

Broadly Based Support

"The support of Ulster Academy is broadly based," said the speaker, who indicated that Kingston was undergoing a renewal of the entire community and that "Ulster Academy was designed to fit into the fabric of the community." He spoke of the belief of past years that a preparatory school indicated matters of prestige and exclusiveness, "but this is not that kind of an operation." He termed Ulster Academy as "designed to serve a greater Kingston community," and said that it would "offer preliminary study in urban affairs to involve the youngsters in the community." The school would be open to any student qualifying on an educational basis.

Headmaster Nelson further pointed out that an "academic program preparing students for college would be offered, but they can specialize and concentrate in liberal arts education designed for many."

The need for Ulster Academy was described as "pressure from the adult world upon youngsters," and further that the "generational gap between adults and youngsters was less" due to the participation of youth in adult programs but without the adult problems.

Nelson expressed concern with the quality of life "that today's generation is building in," and he emphasized the "serious depth of youth." He said that youth was searching for "love, meaning, stable friendship, and honesty," and indicated that the program of Ulster Academy would be "more than preparing people for college."

In conclusion, Nelson spoke of the "failure of one generation to understand another generation," and said that Ulster Academy would endeavor to help young people better understaond life without the pressures that are to often apparent.

2 Catskill Men Arrested After Report of Bomb

Investigation of an anonymous report that a bomb had been planted in the Eden Park Nursing Home which is under construction in the Greene County community of Jefferson Heights, resulted in the arrest on Thursday of two men by Leeds State Police.

Michael Feldstein, 23, of 82 Summit Avenue, and John Alfred Walde, 21, of 198 Main Street, both of Catskill, were taken into custody by BCI Investigators Joseph Valicenti and Donald Weise.

Feldstein was specifically charged with falsely reporting an incident. Walde was cited for criminal solicitation in the third degree and criminal mischief, third degree. Both charges are violations of the new Penal Law.

Arraigned before Justice of the Peace George E. Carl, Town of Catskill, both defendants entered pleas of guilty. Feldstein was sentenced to 15 deys in the Greene County jail. Walde received a similar sentence on the criminal solicitation charge, which accused him of persuading Feldstein to make the false report to state troopers. On the second charge, which accused him of damaging an electric motor in the nursing home, Judge Carl imposed an unconditional discharge decision.

According to Trooper D. R. Porter, a call was received at the Leeds State Police barracks at 1 p m. Wednesday reporting a bomb had been placed in the nursing home.

A detail of troopers in command of Lieut. Robert Kilfeather investigated the report. Search of the building was made and proved negative.

Investigators Valicenti and Weise continued the investigation which resulted in the arrests of Feldstein and Walde.

Road Vultures Lose Leader Over Watch

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — An attempt by three members of the Road Vultures Motorcycle Club to retrieve an inexpensive watch from another man led to the death of the band's president and the wounding of the other two, police say.

The leader, Thomas G. Bell, 24, was gunned down by the brother of the man possessing the watch, who then turned the weapon on the others as they advanced toward him, detectives said.

Bell died in Meyer Memorial Hospital Thursday night, police said, an hour after he was struck in the right hip and spine by a bullet. His companions, Thomas P. Murray, 20, and Gary Sheriff, 23, suffered leg wounds.

The man described as the shooter remained free of charges early today as detectives continued to take statements.

Asst. Det. Chief Anthony R. Burvid, who led the investigation, gave this story:

Bell, Murray and Sheriff, without first knocking entered the West Side apartment of Jack Edin, 21, who was believed to have the watch in his possession.

Bell immediately grabbed Edin, punched him in the face and knocked him to the floor, where he continued to pummel him with his fists.

Walden Man

Sheriff, meanwhile, flashed a .32 caliber automatic pistol to keep Edin's visitor, Kenneth Perry, 28, of Walden, N.Y., at a safe distance.

As Sheriff lifted a leg to kick Edin, the man's brother Walter Edin, 29, grabbed the weapon and fired the fatal shot at Bell, who apparently still was on the floor.

Sheriff and Murray advanced toward Walter Edin, who first warned them to stay back, then squeezed off two more shots.

Detectives said they could not say why the wrist watch, which was missing its strap, was the motive for the beating or how Jack Edin acquired it.

Sheriff, of Buffalo, and Murray, of suburban West Seneca, were taken to the hospital, and Murray was later jailed. Both were charged with first-degree assault, first-degree burglary and a weapons violation.

The Edin brothers and Perry were described as structural steel workers. Jack Edin's wife and two young children also were in the apartment during the incident, police said.

The death of the bearded Bell was the second of a Road Vultures member in less than two weeks.

Depleted Ranks

On Oct. 28, Charles Pfohl, 23, of Buffalo, a reputed member of the band, suffered a fatal head wound when shot by a policeman in suburban Cheektowaga during an attempted arrest for a traffic violation.

Patrolman Richard Wipperma, who also is a professional heavyweight boxer, was suspended pending a grand jury investigation into the incident.

The Buffalo-based motorcycle band was formed in 1955 and was patterned somewhat after the Hell's Angels of Northern California, police said.

Persons linked by authorities to the Road Vultures have been arrested numerous times on a variety of charges. Bell and Murray were among a group seized in a police narcotics raid at the band's headquarters last Sept. 6. They were awaiting trial.

Jurors Meet Monday Night

The Ulster County Grand Jur-or's Association will conduct a meeting Monday, 8 p. m., County Courthouse.

Attorney Vernon Murphy will be the guest speaker. Murphy's father was the organizer of the association. His talk is expected to touch on his father's efforts in drawingup such an association.

Plans for the annual Christmas party will also be discussed.

Distress Signal

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) — Workers on the Capitol grounds were startled recently to see an international distress signal—the American flag flying upside down-atop the welfare building.

Clear Field for Egypt In Security Council

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — Egypt had a clear field against Israel in the U.N. Security Council Thursday night as the Israelis refused to debate because a Soviet maneuver had placed them far down on the speaker's list.

The United States rallied to Israel's cause but became embroiled with the Soviet Union, first in a procedural clash and then in debate on the Middle East deadlock.

Eban Incensed

A U.S. effort to let Israel speak directly after Egypt was defeated in a narrow vote that may have been an indication of future balloting on resolutions before the 15-nation council.

Incensed at being relegated to seventh place, Israeli Foreign Minister Abba Eban issued a statement to newsmen that he "declined the offer to address the Security Council at midnight in conditions prejudicial to Israel's position." He will speak when the debate resumes Monday morning.

An Israeli spokesman said: "The council by its action, has manifested onesidedness adversely affecting the objective and impartial consideration of a matter of grave importance."

The council is considering two rival resolutions.

One by India, Mali and Nigeria calls for Israeli withdrawal from all Arab territories and an end to Arab belligerence against Israel. Israel rejected the draft when it was first circulated before the session.

The other draft, by the United States, calls for "withdrawal of armed forces from occupied territories," without naming Israel.

Lengthy Session

Egyptian Foreign Minister Mahmound Riad opened the long session which lasted until 11:14 a.m.—with a lengthy blast against Israel. He accused the Jewish nation of waging a "piecemeal war" and called on the council for enforcement measures if Israeli troops don't withdraw from occupied Arab soil.

"We urge," Riad declared, "that military, political and economic assistance to Israel be withheld until Israel withdraws its aggressive forces from all the territories it has occupied as a result of its aggression."

The procedural battle came when the United States moved that both the Egyptian and Israelis speak ahead of all council members, but the proposal fell one short of the nine votes needed for adoption.

The vote was 8-0 in favor of the U.S. motion with 7 abstentions. Those in favor were the United States, Britain, Nationalist China, Argentina, Brazil, Canada, Denmark and Japan. Abstaining were the Soviet Union, France, Bulgaria, Ethiopia, India, Mali and Nigeria.

The United States entered its motion after the Soviet Union had persuaded the council's president for November, Mamadou Boubacar Kante of Mali, to change the speakers' list so that Israel was dropped from second to seventh position.

Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Vasily V. Kuznetsov charged Israel with increasing threats against the Arab states and exhibiting an "impetuous desire to expand." He accused the United States of "connivance" with Israel in what he described as the Jewish nation's "aggression."

Carol Channing Resourceful

NEW YORK (AP) — Miss Carol Channing, former star of "Hello Dolly", arrived at 21, at the peak of the lunch-hour rush in her working clothes. The guardian of its portals looked, recognized, gasped—and barred her from the dining area.

Miss Channing's work clothes were white wool plus fours, a matching Norfolk jacket worn with black turtleneck sweater, black woolen socks and white buckskin golf shoes (without cleats). "My walking suit," she said.

So Back to Limousine

The management of 21 enforces its ban on ladies in pants as rigidly as it does its regulation that gentlemen wear ties.

Miss Channing, however, is a woman of resource. She returned to her chauffeur-driven limousine and back she came in a pale tourmaline mink coat that covered her discreetly from ear lobes to knees. A headwaiter led her party to a corner table.

Miss Channing's curious costume was part of her current job: drumming up interest in her forthcoming ABC special, "Carol Channing and 101 men" next Wednesday night.

The special is the first of six in three years she is to do under her ABC contract, sandwiched in between film commitments and, if plans mature, another Broadway musical.

Carol had an overnight success 17 years ago on Broadway with "Gentlemen Prefer Blondes." Her Dolly was a sell-out and she left the Broadway cast to tour the country in the show. Next she did the film, "Thoroughly Modern Millie." She has not had a vacation in years.

"My idea of a vacation is a change of occupation—like going from "Dolly" to "Millie." You can have more fun working with a new company than just going some place and sitting around."

Urges Contract Renewal for 1968 Services of Kingston Laboratory

Pointing to the increasing cost of services to Ulster County under a contract with the Kingston Laboratory for welfare and public health laboratory services, Supervisor Clarence C. Raichle, (R), 12th Ward, in a report to the Board of Supervisors, Thursday has recommended the contract be renewed for 1968. However, he suggests that the Board be ready to shift to a "Fee-for-service" method of payment by 1969.

Under the fee-for-service charge for the Social Services Department payment for welfare laboratory tests would be reimbursable at about 75 per cent, whereas under the present system, the county's payments are reimbursable at 50 per cent.

Charges Increase

In the last six months of 1966, the monthly average of cancelled laboratory charges to outpatient Medicaid cases was approximately $100 per month. This rose to approximately $380 in the first quarter of 1967, in the second quarter to $420 per month and in the third quarter to $630 per month.

The cancelled charges for hospitalized welfare patients have likewise increased to an average of $3,500 per month.

Raichle in his report says "the value of the public health laboratory service alone performed on the county contract at no charge to individuals is estimated to reach $157,000 this year."

Obviously these services must continue to be provided to the residents of the county, Raichle points out. "Yet when we consider that 40 per cent of our population is eligible for Medicaid, it is easy to understand the ultimate cost of this meteoric rise, and we can project an even greater rise in the future."

Raichle points out that the county cannot expect to be able to finance these increases in laboratory costs under the same contract.

Lists Services

Services rendered under the contract include free tests for welfare, hospital or outpatients; all laboratory tests for County Health Department in reference to water supply, sewage disposal, milk supply, air pollution, stream pollution and pollen count. All laboratory tests concerned with communicable diseases are performed without charge. The laboratory pathologist performs autopsies and provides consultation for the county coroners and the lay enforcement agencies without charge. In Dutchess County this service alone calls for a $28,000 item in the county budget.

Raichle notes that the present system has provided outstanding service at an insignificant cost, and that the "much publicized cry for a medical examiner system would prove to be a most expensive service in the final analysis it is doubtful whether it could match out present system."

Referring to previous reports, Raichle says, "we really had an unusual bargain in being able to contract services we must provide our taxpayer for less than 70 per cent of what these services would cost if we had to purchase them elsewhere.

He predicts there will soon be an increase in the amount of laboratory work as a result of Medicare and Medicaid for welfare patients and a consequent increase in cost to the county unless a new way can be found to finance the heavy welfare requirements.

In conclusion Raichle reviews some of the new ideas and plans of the laboratory staff for the future, including use of computer equipment.

Clear Field for Egypt In Security Council

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — Egypt had a clear field against Israel in the U.N. Security Council Thursday night as the Israelis refused to debate because a Soviet maneuver had placed them far down on the speaker's list.

The United States rallied to Israel's cause but became embroiled with the Soviet Union, first in a procedural clash and then in debate on the Middle East deadlock.

Eban Incensed

A U.S. effort to let Israel speak directly after Egypt was defeated in a narrow vote that may have been an indication of future balloting on resolutions before the 15-nation council.

Incensed at being relegated to seventh place, Israeli Foreign Minister Abba Eban issued a statement to newsmen that he "declined the offer to address the Security Council at midnight in conditions prejudicial to Israel's position." He will speak when the debate resumes Monday morning.

An Israeli spokesman said: "The council by its action, has manifested onesidedness adversely affecting the objective and impartial consideration of a matter of grave importance."

The council is considering two rival resolutions.

One by India, Mali and Nigeria calls for Israeli withdrawal from all Arab territories and an end to Arab belligerence against Israel. Israel rejected the draft when it was first circulated before the session.

The other draft, by the United States, calls for "withdrawal of armed forces from occupied territories," without naming Israel.

Lengthy Session

Egyptian Foreign Minister Mahmound Riad opened the long session which lasted until 11:14 a.m.—with a lengthy blast against Israel. He accused the Jewish nation of waging a "piecemeal war" and called on the council for enforcement measures if Israeli troops don't withdraw from occupied Arab soil.

"We urge," Riad declared, "that military, political and economic assistance to Israel be withheld until Israel withdraws its aggressive forces from all the territories it has occupied as a result of its aggression."

The procedural battle came when the United States moved that both the Egyptian and Israelis speak ahead of all council members, but the proposal fell one short of the nine votes needed for adoption.

The vote was 8-0 in favor of the U.S. motion with 7 abstentions. Those in favor were the United States, Britain, Nationalist China, Argentina, Brazil, Canada, Denmark and Japan. Abstaining were the Soviet Union, France, Bulgaria, Ethiopia, India, Mali and Nigeria.

The United States entered its motion after the Soviet Union had persuaded the council's president for November, Mamadou Boubacar Kante of Mali, to change the speakers' list so that Israel was dropped from second to seventh position.

Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Vasily V. Kuznetsov charged Israel with increasing threats against the Arab states and exhibiting an "impetuous desire to expand." He accused the United States of "connivance" with Israel in what he described as the Jewish nation's "aggression."

Morse in Poughkeepsie:

Strategy for War, War, War

POUGHKEEPSIE, N.Y. (AP) — Sen. Wayne Morse, D-Ore., an outspoken critic of United States foreign policy, said today the U.S. has no strategy for peace in Asia, only a strategy for war.

Morse made his comments in a speech prepared for delivery at Dutchess County Community College.

Assails Rusk

"We have no strategy for peace in Asia," Morse said. "We have only a strategy for war. It calls for war, war, and more war from one end of Asia to the other, all the way from Korea to the subcontinent of India, for those are the ends of the line encircling China described by Secretary of State Dean, Rusk."

Morse accused Rusk of perpetuating "the old China hand attitude towards China which was so bound up with Chiang Kai-shek that it has never been willing to admit that Chiang is not China and Taiwan is not China."

Chiang, leader of Nationalist China, was forced from the mainland to Taiwan (Formosa) in 1949 by the Red Chinese. The U.S. has not recognized the mainland regime.

"Mr. Rusk speaks of a billion Chinese with nuclear weapons," Morse said, "but his State Department deals with Chiang Kai-shek and Taiwan when it deals with China."

'Tragic Disparity'

Morse called this "tragic disparity between fact and State Department fantasy in Asia" the greatest failure in U.S. diplomacy.

"When is the State Department going to take its head out of the sand and begin to offer the American people some approach to China that will deal with her in peaceful terms rather than in the terms of nuclear weapons?" Morse asked.

The senator said campus anti-war protests are becoming almost as much of an issue as the reason for the protests. But those who condemn them must keep open certain legitimate channels for debate, he said.

"And here the administration itself is in serious trouble. Far from demonstrating that representative democracy affords dissenters full opportunity to communicate and to change public policy where they can make a convincing case, the administration is rapidly closing those channels," he said.

Morse said it is difficult to convince young people when millions voted for "the peace candidate in 1964, only to find that he vastly expanded the war as soon as the election was over."

New Academy Headmaster Briefs Kiwanis on School

Declaring that "schools are competing for the attention of youth today," Raymond Nelson, headmaster of the new Ulster Academy, spoke before the Kingston Kiwanis Club concerning the new "co-ed college preparatory school" to be established locally.

Nelson revealed that he had been working with youth for the past 15 years, that he was "impressed with young people," and that he believed his life's work to be the "ministry of education."

Broadly Based Support

"The support of Ulster Academy is broadly based," said the speaker, who indicated that Kingston was undergoing a renewal of the entire community and that "Ulster Academy was designed to fit into the fabric of the community." He spoke of the belief of past years that a preparatory school indicated matters of prestige and exclusiveness, "but this is not that kind of an operation." He termed Ulster Academy as "designed to serve a greater Kingston community," and said that it would "offer preliminary study in urban affairs to involve the youngsters in the community." The school would be open to any student qualifying on an educational basis.

Headmaster Nelson further pointed out that an "academic program preparing students for college would be offered, but they can specialize and concentrate in liberal arts education designed for many."

The need for Ulster Academy was described as "pressure from the adult world upon youngsters," and further that the "generational gap between adults and youngsters was less" due to the participation of youth in adult programs but without the adult problems.

Nelson expressed concern with the quality of life "that today's generation is building in," and he emphasized the "serious depth of youth." He said that youth was searching for "love, meaning, stable friendship, and honesty," and indicated that the program of Ulster Academy would be "more than preparing people for college."

In conclusion, Nelson spoke of the "failure of one generation to understand another generation," and said that Ulster Academy would endeavor to help young people better understaond life without the pressures that are to often apparent.

2 Catskill Men Arrested After Report of Bomb

Investigation of an anonymous report that a bomb had been planted in the Eden Park Nursing Home which is under construction in the Greene County community of Jefferson Heights, resulted in the arrest on Thursday of two men by Leeds State Police.

Michael Feldstein, 23, of 82 Summit Avenue, and John Alfred Walde, 21, of 198 Main Street, both of Catskill, were taken into custody by BCI Investigators Joseph Valicenti and Donald Weise.

Feldstein was specifically charged with falsely reporting an incident. Walde was cited for criminal solicitation in the third degree and criminal mischief, third degree. Both charges are violations of the new Penal Law.

Arraigned before Justice of the Peace George E. Carl, Town of Catskill, both defendants entered pleas of guilty. Feldstein was sentenced to 15 deys in the Greene County jail. Walde received a similar sentence on the criminal solicitation charge, which accused him of persuading Feldstein to make the false report to state troopers. On the second charge, which accused him of damaging an electric motor in the nursing home, Judge Carl imposed an unconditional discharge decision.

According to Trooper D. R. Porter, a call was received at the Leeds State Police barracks at 1 p. m. Wednesday reporting a bomb had been placed in the nursing home.

A detail of troopers in command of Lieut. Robert Kilfeather investigated the report. Search of the building was made and proved negative.

Investigators Valicenti and Weise continued the investigation which resulted in the arrests of Feldstein and Walde.

Road Vultures Lose Leader Over Watch

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — An attempt by three members of the Road Vultures Motorcycle Club to retrieve an inexpensive watch from another man led to the death of the band's president and the wounding of the other two, police say.

The leader, Thomas G. Bell, 24, was gunned down by the brother of the man possessing the watch, who then turned the weapon on the others as they advanced toward him, detectives said.

Bell died in Meyer Memorial Hospital Thursday night, police said, an hour after he was struck in the right hip and spine by a bullet. His companions, Thomas P. Murray, 20, and Gary Sheriff, 23, suffered leg wounds.

The man described as the shooter remained free of charges early today as detectives continued to take statements.

Asst. Det. Chief Anthony R. Burvid, who led the investigation, gave this story:

Bell, Murray and Sheriff, without first knocking entered the West Side apartment of Jack Edin, 21, who was believed to have the watch in his possession.

Bell immediately grabbed Edin, punched him in the face and knocked him to the floor, where he continued to pummel him with his fists.

Walden Man

Sheriff, meanwhile, flashed a .32 caliber automatic pistol to keep Edin's visitor, Kenneth Perry, 28, of Walden, N.Y., at a safe distance.

As Sheriff lifted a leg to kick Edin, the man's brother Walter Edin, 29, grabbed the weapon and fired the fatal shot at Bell, who apparently still was on the floor.

Sheriff and Murray advanced toward Walter Edin, who first warned them to stay back, then squeezed off two more shots.

Detectives said they could not say why the wrist watch, which was missing its strap, was the motive for the beating or how Jack Edin acquired it.

Sheriff, of Buffalo, and Murray, of suburban West Seneca, were taken to the hospital, and Murray was later jailed. Both were charged with first-degree assault, first-degree burglary and a weapons violation.

The Edin brothers and Perry were described as structural steel workers. Jack Edin's wife and two young children also were in the apartment during the incident, police said.

The death of the bearded Bell was the second of a Road Vultures member in less than two weeks.

Depleted Ranks

On Oct. 28, Charles Pfohl, 23, of Buffalo, a reputed member of the band, suffered a fatal head wound when shot by a policeman in suburban Cheektowaga during an attempted arrest for a traffic violation.

Patrolman Richard Wipperma, who also is a professional heavyweight boxer, was suspended pending a grand jury investigation into the incident.

The Buffalo-based motorcycle band was formed in 1955 and was patterned somewhat after the Hell's Angels of Northern California, police said.

Persons linked by authorities to the Road Vultures have been arrested numerous times on a variety of charges. Bell and Murray were among a group seized in a police narcotics raid at the band's headquarters last Sept. 6. They were awaiting trial.
